ROOSEVELT EXCUSED FROM STAND AFTER LONG EXAMINATION

Colonel Roundly Cheered as He Appears in Courtroom.

Letter From Governor Whitman Last Evidence Given Jury.

Said Time Was Ripe to Rid State of Party Control.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 29.—Col. Roosevelt was excused from the stand this morning shortly after a letter was produced by his counsel from Governor Charles S. Whitman, then district attorney of New York, in which Whitman told Charles H. Duell of New York, that "the time is ripe" for all progressive Republicans and members of the Progressive party to "rid the state of the party control which is responsible for corrupt conditions."

The letter was written in 1914, and then the district attorney wrote that the "men and the policies responsible" for the corrupt conditions were not confined to any one party. Mr. Barnes' name was not mentioned in the letter, but the colonel in reply to questions said he understood that the reference was to him. The letter was introduced near the end of the re-direct examination.

Roosevelt Applauded.

When Col. Roosevelt entered the courtroom today the spectators applauded him and attendants had some difficulty in restoring order.

The colonel was smiling as he took his seat in the witness chair and awaited the first question, which was about a letter in which Messrs. Bidwell and Stranahan were mentioned.

"I remember that letter," said the colonel. "Senator Platt wanted Mr. Bidwell appointed collector of the port of New York. It seemed inadvisable, however, so I appointed Mr. Stranahan, a state senator."

In regard to the election of Seth Low as mayor of New York city and a meeting he arranged between Mr. Low and Senator Platt, the colonel said:

"The organization had helped elect Mr. Low. I wanted Mr. Low to take the same attitude I did toward the organization. Therefore I wrote to Mr. Platt about a meeting between the two. I didn't want the organization to feel it was being slighted. But I wanted Mr. Low always to understand that he was to do what he thought best. I was president then."

"Why did you write about Mr. Platt's man and someone else's man?" asked Mr. Bowers.

"Why, that meant nothing derogatory to the men. It was simply to identify them."

"How did you finally happen to be nominated for vice president in 1900?"

An objection was sustained.

Letter From McKinley.

VILLA TROOPS ARE DEFEATED

Lose Heavily in Engagement With Constitutionalists at Villaldama.

New York, April 29.—Francisco R. Elias, Carranza consul general here, announced today that he had received a cablegram from Gen. Carranza stating the Villa troops had been decisively defeated by Constitutionalists at Villaldama, losing eleven officers killed, thirty-one field pieces, ammunition, equipment and horses, and that communication had been re-established between the main body of Constitutionalists and the Constitutionalist army isolated at Laredo.

A second cablegram from Gen. Carranza read:

"We have received a report from Ebano advertising that the Villa forces have surrendered to Gen. Prezilco."

Expects Recognition.

Washington, April 29.—Unofficial advices received here early today which said that Gen. Carranza expected early recognition by the United States government attracted widespread attention in official and diplomatic circles.

The Carranza authorities have been active recently in seeking recognition and it had been reported that they intended issuing a statement covering their intentions.

PROBLEMS OF THE TEXTILE INDUSTRY

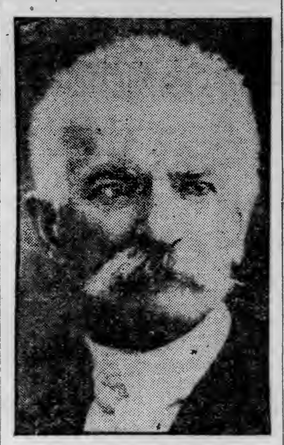

Papers Pertaining Thereto Read at Convention of Cotton Men.

Boston, Mass., April 29.—A business session and the reading of papers, largely technical, completed the work of the annual convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers today. A paper by Arthur H. Gulliver of Norwichtown, Conn., dealt with problems in the textile industry emphasized by the European war.

"It is very necessary," said Mr. Gulliver, "for us to consider with the utmost care the change in methods of doing business that have been brought to our attention by the European conflict. In the manufacture of dyes it is useless for us to try to compete at short notice with a nation that has made discoveries and experiments and has spared no expense in producing results from coal tar. It may be possible for us in a number of years to give them some competition."

Textile fabrics discovered in the caves of the pre-historic cliff dwellers of the southwest were described in a paper by Prof. Byron Cummings of the University of Utah.

HOT SHOT AT PESSIMISTS

Secretary Redfield Denounces Calamity Howlers and Poverty Preachers.

Wilson Administration Policies Have Brought Country to Prosperity.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 29.—Denunciation of "calamity howlers" and a vigorous defense of the policies of President Wilson's administration were the features of a speech here last night by Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce before a Democratic "love feast." The secretary defended the tariff, lauded the Federal reserve act, declared that the Clayton anti-trust law and the Federal trade commission act have made plainer the way of the business man, and asserted that in the condition of the country today "there is no happiness for those who would do evil to the administration."

The secretary quoted several newspaper articles to show that the country was on the way to prosperity and paid caustic respects to "purveyors of pessimism."

Preachers of Poverty.

"Those preachers of poverty for personal purposes," he said, "will in due time go to their own places unwept, unhonored and unsung, followed by the deserved curses of the deceived, falling into the limbo of the calamity howler where long ago the muckraker preceded them. These are they who in secret places speak evil of those who have brought the country through the most terrible commercial shock in its history and landed her

GREAT BUILDINGS ARE DEDICATED

President Vincent of Minnesota Delivers Address at St. Louis Ceremony.

St. Louis, Mo., April 29.—The new buildings of the medical school of Washington university were dedicated with an elaborate program here today.

The three large buildings, which contain laboratories, dispensaries, lecture rooms and libraries, cost $1,200,000 and with the new Barnes hospital, the St. Louis Children's hospital and St. John's hospital form one of the largest groups of buildings in the world devoted to medical and surgical purposes.

Addresses were delivered today by Dr. William Henry Welch, professor of pathology at Johns Hopkins university; by President Lowell of Harvard university; by Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching, and by President Vincent of the University of Minnesota. The dedicatory program will continue Friday.

DID NOT SEE BRITON NEAR NEUVE CHAPELLE

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, April 29.—Wilhelm Schefmann, a well known German war correspondent, has sent the following report to his papers:

"When one compares the German general staff report with that of the British there is an irreconcilable difference. In my trips along the front by Neuve Chapelle and Givenchy I have traveled much of the time in rural territory and towns which, according to reports and maps published in English newspapers, is in possession of the British troops, but in reality I did not see a single Englishman on the road, not even a prisoner.

"In one village every house was flying the Bavarian flag, made by tearing the superfluous red stripes from the French tri-color."

GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE AND ITALY SAID TO HAVE AGREED ON WAR TERMS

Understanding Reached in Case Latter Decides to Enter Conflict.

Will Refrain From Hostilities Until the Right Moment Arrives.

Territory to Be Awarded in Case of Victory Agreed on.

Rome, Italy, April 29, via Paris.—From persons in close touch with the war situation, as it affects Italy, there was obtained today information which indicates that the government has arrived at an understanding with Great Britain and France concerning the terms upon which Italy will enter the war, if she eventually decides to do so. This information, while unofficial, is gathered from men who have made a close and careful study of the situation. The agreement is described as follows:

Military Action.

First—A provision for concerted military action. Italy will refrain from hostilities during the present stage of desultory trench warfare, which would enable Germany and Austria to concentrate a large part of their forces against her. She will time her blow contemporaneously with a general effort by all the opponents of the central empires now in the field.

Second—An understanding concerning the territory to be awarded to Italy in the event of victory.

Third—A provision that after the war an alliance shall be formed between Italy and the present triple entente of Great Britain, France and Russia.

Italy Held Out.

It is intimated that at the outset Great Britain was not disposed to make terms with Italy, bat that Italy

SKELETON HANGS ON CHURCH TOWER

Odd Freak of Shell Fire in Little French Village.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

General Headquarters, British Army, France, April 14.—One of the huge German 42-centimeter shells opened a grave in the little cemetery in the village of Riche Bourg St. Vaaste recently and, exploding, lifted a coffin and the skeleton therein fifty feet in the air where bones and splintered wood caught and hung on the side of the church tower. Wind and rain have come, but part of the skeleton still depends from the tower, rattling and swaying in the breeze. A correspondent of the Associated Press, motoring along the British lines, saw the strange sight, perhaps the oddest freak of shell fire of the war. Parts of the skeleton, whose, nobody knows (for the villagers have fled) has dropped to the church yard below, but enough of the bones remain in midair to be identified as those of a human being.

BURN BRIDGES AT VANCOUVER

Two Fired By Incendiaries; Believed Part of Plot to Burn City.

Great Connaught Structure Damaged to Extent of $300,000.

Vancouver, B. C., April 29.—Fires believed to be of incendiary origin started nearly simultaneously early today in the Cambie and Granville street bridges connecting the business and residence portions of this city. Car service was demoralized.

Police officials admitted a theory that the fires were part of a plot to burn the city.

Aside from the bridges, however, no attempts at arson were discovered, so far as could be learned.

The great Connaught bridge at Cambie street was damaged, it is estimated, to the extent of $300,000. The frame of the bridge is steel, but its paving of wood and tar.

The flames gradually burned themselves out.

The fire at the Granville street bridge, a mile from the Connaught bridge, also was in the pavement. It was extinguished in a few minutes.

WOULD ELIMINATE COMMERCIALISM

Speaker Thinks Ministers' Pensions Would Stop "Money-Making on Side."

Chicago, April 29.—Pensions for retired ministers would have a tendency to eliminate the commercialization of the pulpit through "money making on the side," according to Dr. W. R. Warren of Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the board of ministerial relief of the Disciples of Christ, who addressed the national convention of conference claimants of the Methodist Episcopal church today.

Plans are being considered by the convention to raise a $10,000,000 fund to provide pensions for retired ministers, their widows and orphans.

"Pensions would help to obtain more and better ministers," Dr. Warren said, "by overcoming the natural opposition of parents, by enlisting the sons of ministers who would otherwise have to go into business to care for the parents, and by challenging the young man of executive gifts, as well as faith and courage, who needs a modest pension as well as a subsistence wage to justify his committing wife and children as well as his own life to the service of the church."

Body of Wilson Recovered.

Chicago, April 29.—The body of H. L. Wilson, 3414 Harriet avenue, Minneapolis, who jumped into the river here a month ago, was recovered today. He is said to have left a wife and two children.

MINNESOTA SANITATION

United States to Investigate Conditions in Rural Territory.

Will Work With Local Service in Improvement of Health.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 29.—Sanitary conditions in rural communities in Minnesota will be made the subject of an investigation by the United States public health service in the near future. The public health service has been making such investigations in five states, and the work in Kansas is nearly ended. When that is completed the force will be sent to Minnesota.

Work of this kind is always conducted in co-operation with the state health service and that plan will be followed in Minnesota. For the present only one county will be "surveyed" but which county will be covered has not been determined. The work will be in charge of Dr. L. L. Lumsden. Community and home water supplies will be tested, sanitary conditions in the villages and on the farms will be studied and other conditions that have a bearing on the health of the residents will be looked into.

Officials of the public health service say that good has resulted from investigations made in other states. The most notable result has been a decrease in the number of typhoid cases after poor sanitary conditions have been corrected in accordance with the advice of the government experts.

ACTIVITY SHOWN BY BELGIAN ARTILLERY

London, April 29.—There has been given out in Belgian military headters an official report on the progress of hostilities which reads:

"Several points on our front, such as Ramscapelle, Pervyse, Lampernisse and Oeveldpren, have been repeatedly bombarded. The Belgian artillery has vigorously co-operated with the French in their attack against Steenstraate. Our aviators have shown great activity.

INUNDATED AREA IN TEXAS NARROWING

Houston, Tex., April 29. — Another day and night without rainfall strengthened hopes that the great flood rushing gulfward in the Brazos and Colorado rivers will pass without adding to the injury already done. Reports today showed the inundated area apparently narrowing. No additional loss of life has been reported.

To Resume Inquiry May 31.

Washington, April 29.—Inquiry into the financial operations of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton and the Pere Marquette railroads will be resumed by the interstate commerce commission at Detroit May 3, it was announced today before Commissioner Hall.

FAMOUS GERMAN GENERAL RECOVERING FROM WOUNDS

GEN. VON KLUCK.

Amsterdam, Holland, April 29, via London.—Gen. von Kluck, the German commander who was wounded last month, is now on the road to recovery, according to the Hamburg Nachrichten. This newspaper adds that the general is now able to appear in the garden of his villa, which has been converted into a hospital.

FIGHTING ON PENINSULA

Allies and Turks Meet at Several Points on the Gallipoli.

Reports Contradictory as to Results Accomplished There.

London, April 29.—The fighting at the tip of the Gallipoli peninsula, across which the British have strung their forces, and the efforts to dislodge the Germans from Steenstraate, the only point on the west bank of the Yser which the invaders have been able to hold since the recent rush in Flanders, today are the war areas which, although comparatively small, hold the greatest possibilities for far-reaching results.

Although the Turks and the Germans maintain that the British on the west and the French on the east side of the Dardanelles are being crushed in their attempts to press forward, newspaper readers in London are being told that all official statements from Constantinople and Berlin bearing on the Dardanelles struggle are being not only censored, but framed with the especial purpose of exerting favorable influence on Italy and other wavering neutrals.

No Gains By Either Side.

French and Belgian artillery is today battering away at the German bridgehead at Steenstraate, but there is no claim of substantial gains by either side. At the same time the British show no disposition to abandon their attempts to force the Germans to yield the ground gained by them up to the present time. There is no information of the rumor current that they have recaptured St. Julien.

In the expectation that the Germans

WHEELER HALL AT ASHLAND BURNED

One of Main Buildings of Northland College Destroyed.

Ashland, Wis., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wheeler Hall, one of the main buildings of Northland college here and its equipment were practically destroyed by fire today.

The building was valued at $40,000 and its contents at $10,000. Both were partly insured.

REFERENDUM PLANS ARE WELL ADVANCED

Many Signing North Dakota Petitions for Special Election.

Fargo, N. D., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The claim is made that 3,500 of the 8,000 to 9,000 signatures required to apply the referendum to certain recent legislative enactments in this state have already been secured. This has been accomplished in face of the fact that the farmers are exceptionally busy at this season and it is more difficult to secure their names.

Those in charge of circulating the petitions claim they will have little difficulty in securing the requisite number as they have until June 4 to complete their canvass.

Those interested in the matter are especially active.

ARTILLERY AND AIRMEN ARE ACTIVE

Field Marshal French Says German Advance Definitely Checked.

New Battles Are Developing Along the East Prussian Border.

Encounters Are Numerous But No Decisive Results Reported.

The battle of Flanders apparently has passed the high point of intensity and is becoming less severe. An official Belgian statement speaks merely of the activity of artillery and aviators along the part of the front held by the Belgian forces. Field Marshal Sir John French, the British commander, has announced that the German advance has been checked definitely.

Today's official statements from Paris and Berlin do not indicate that significant changes occurred in yesterday's fighting. The French report says Belgian and French troops made progress in Flanders, while the German announcement asserts that attacks on the German positions on the west bank of the Yser canal failed.

In the Russian campaign, capture by the Germans of a Polish village is claimed, as well as the occupation of a Russian position near Sochaczew on the Warsaw front. This is the first indication for several weeks of fighting of consequence along this line.

Petrograd attaches importance to the Russian capture of Loubnia, northeast of Usok pass. Possession of this town, it is said, will enable the Russians to interrupt the operation of the railroad on which the Austrians have relied for moving troops along the Beskid mountains.

In the Russian campaign new battles are developing in the north along the East Prussian border. Petrograd dispatches speak of various indecisive encounters, but make no mention of the victory along a twelve-mile front which the German war office announced yesterday. Neither has it conceded the reported Austrian victory in Bukowina.

A Berlin news agency announces that the Austro-Italian negotiations are proceeding toward a satisfactory adjustment and that the most important points have been settled. Rome advices, however, say that Italy is unyielding.

Turkish and British reports of the land operations in the Dardanelles region again are in direct conflict. From the Turkish version it would appear that the Anglo-French land invasion has resulted in disaster for the allies. Further claims to victories are made in an official report from Constantinople. It is said the forces which landed near Kaba Tepeh were forced back along the whole front with heavy losses, four brigades being driven into the sea and others surrendering. One transport is said to have been sunk.

British official reports give no hint of defeat. The latest statement from London says the land forces have succeeded in establishing a line across the Gallipoli peninsula, on the European side of the straits, and are advancing steadily. An unofficial dispatch from Athens states that the allies were victorious in a battle on the west side of the peninsula, inflicting serious losses on the Turks and capturing one battalion.

It is reported from Rome that Italy

GERMANS DECLARE REPORTS ARE UNTRUE

Say Hartmans-Weilerkopf and Het Sas Not Recaptured.

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, April 29.—The Overseas News Agency says today that German headquarters has officially declared to be untrue the French statement that Hartmans-Weilerkopf, in the Vosges, has been reconquered. Hartmans-Weilerkopf, it is announced, was taken by the Germans April 25. A French counter-attack on April 26 failed and since this date there have been no further attacks.

Equally untrue, according to German headquarters, is the British report that the French have reconquered Het Sas.

DIFFICULT POINTS HAVE BEEN OVERCOME

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, April 29.—"According to reliable information, the Austro-Italian negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily," says the Overseas News Agency. "The most difficult point already has been overcome. The remaining ones are comparatively unimportant."

AUSTRIAN TROOPS SENT TO ITALIAN FRONTIER

Verona, April 28, via Paris, April 29.—Railway service on the Austrian side of the frontier virtually has been suspended for ordinary purposes. All lines are being used to carry troops to the Italian frontier.

THREE MORE ACCIDENTS

Two Men Injured By Jitneys and Woman By Motor Truck.

One Driver Accused of Running at Reckless Rate of Speed.

While the city commissioners were planning an emergency ordinance covering the jitney bus problem, three more automobile accidents were reported today by police, an elderly woman and two men being injured.

Shandoss Hood, 121 East Eighth street, reported late yesterday afternoon that his mother was thrown from a carriage in which she was riding and seriously injured when a motor truck collided with the light rig. The accident happened at Fourth avenue east and Third street.

Paul Winters, 224 West First street, who drives a truck for the E. F. Burg Supply company, 224 West First street, reported to the police this morning that Mrs. Hood's horse shied at the truck and ran up over the curb, throwing her to the pavement. The injured woman is being cared for at her home.

Matt Manninan, a transient rooming in a hotel at 526 West Superior street, was struck by a jitney as he was crossing Superior street at Twentieth avenue west about 6 o'clock last night. He was seriously injured and police will arrest John Shosie, 3712 West Fourth street, driver of the automobile.

Shosie claims that Manninan wasn't paying any attention, and that he "walked right into the car." O. W. Haglund, with Manninan at the time of the accident, claims that the driver was running at a reckless rate, without regard for pedestrians.

Edward Schluter, 23, Astoria hotel, a jitney driver, ran over August Elo, 202 South First avenue east, shortly after 9 o'clock last night, when Elo ran out from the curb and attempted to cross Superior street at First avenue east ahead of the machine. Elo was slightly injured. Witnesses absolved the driver from any blame for the accident, saying that the injured man was at fault.

ALL ORE SHIPS IN COMMISSION SOON

Two Weeks Will See Full Fleet in Operation on Lakes.

Practically all ships owned by ore shippers will be in commission two weeks from Monday. A majority of the vessels controlled by shippers will be running by next Monday, and the following two weeks will see the rest of them going.

The fleet of the Pittsburgh Steamship company will be in operation by Monday, excepting one or two boats that are making minor repairs. M. A. Hanna & Co. has just sent out of Cleveland the J. J. Turner, making 14 out of 23 in operation. The Interlake fleet has about a dozen ships out of 37 in operation. No announcement has been made as to when this fleet will be in commission.

The Shenango boats will be put in commission about May 15, as announced several weeks ago. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company is fitting out a few of its smaller ships, but the management does not know how soon the rest of the fleet will go into commission.

Lake coal shipping has been started in a conservative way by most of the leading shippers. Coal has been started to the lakes by several companies, but the shipments are not heavy. Some of the coal shippers are beginning to believe it will be just as well to ship as much as it is possible to handle before Aug. 1, because of the possibility of a shortage of cars if the ore movement develops a rush in the fall. This is not an impossibility and is almost sure to follow heavy ore shipments.

COLORADO COUPLE IS HAPPY NOW

In a little town in Colorado there has happened a "near" miracle. A man cured his wife of a running varicose ulcer and they are the happiest couple in the state. Four boxes of Allen's Ulcerine Salve did it. (Name and address on application).

Allen's Ulcerine Salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 has been known as the only salve powerful enough to reach chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing. Because it is so powerful it often heals burns and scalds without a scar in a remarkably short time.

Allen's Ulcerine Salve heals from the bottom up and draw out the poisons. If applied on new cuts and sores it heals in one-third the time that common salves and liniments take. Sold by The Spencer Pharmacy Co., and other leading druggists.

ELWOOD GROUNDS; WATER VERY LOW

Pittsburgh Steamer, Ore-Laden, Sticks in Harbor; Released Undamaged.

The steamer Elwood of the Pittsburgh Steamship company went hard aground at 5 o'clock this morning in the bay about 100 feet from the Union Towing company's tug office at the foot of Seventh avenue west, and it took two tugs several hours to release her. She was outward bound, laden with ore. She was uninjured when released and passed through the piers at 10 o'clock, outward bound.

Low water is given as the cause. The water in the harbor this year, it is said, is, on the average, about fifteen inches lower than last year and considerable difficulty is being experienced in entering slips, and much care has to be taken. The water this morning is said to be lower than usual owing to the off-shore wind of yesterday.

This sum represented $5,000, with interest, which Mrs. Marx alleged that she loaned the "master" several years ago, and $750 which she charged she gave him to bring out a hymnal as a memorial to her sister. SAYS SIGNATURE WAS A FORGERY

Another Suit Arises From Tangled Affairs of C. J. O'Donnell.

Another suit arising out of the affairs of C. J. O'Donnell, who has been missing from the city since the Hartman-O'Donnell real estate and insurance agency went to the wall, was filed in district court yesterday afternoon.

The action is one in which Adolph H. Lehtto is suing George D. Head and Fred S. Head, heirs of N. S. Head, to have a purported mortgage assignment set aside as a forgery.

Lehtto claims that he is the owner of the east half of the southeast quarter of section 20, 49-15. On Aug. 4, 1911, he executed a mortgage on his land to secure the payment of a promissory note for $600. The mortgage was executed to Ada L. Cash.

O'Donnell acted as agent for the mortgagor and after he became heavily involved in a number of other matters and absconded, it was learned that N. S. Head held a purported assignment of the Cash mortgage against the Lehtto farm.

The assignment was dated Aug. 24, 1911. Lehtto, in his suit, alleges that the instrument was a forgery so far as Ada L. Cash is concerned and that she never signed it or saw it. Lehtto asks the court to annul the assignment and remove this cloud from the title to his land.

"STAR—Good For One, Better For Two"

Men Who Chew Are Men Who DO

WHEN King or Emperor wants a big gun or a railroad bridge, he says:

"Call up Uncle Sam."

Then the husky fellows in the steel mills take a chew of STAR and turn out the job.

Wherever big, hearty men work, a lot of STAR tobacco is chewed. There's work time cheer and play time comfort in STAR—the thick plug with tightly-packed, mellow long chewing leaf.

And don't forget that STAR is as heavy in weight as it is mild in taste. Each plug contains 16 full chewable ounces of clean tobacco, kept clean by modern manufacturing methods.

Now you can appreciate why 12,500 tons of STAR are chewed every year.

EXPLAINS NEW LAWS AFFECTING GROCERS

Insurance Rates Will Be Taken Up; Plans for Annual Picnic.

Legislation affecting the grocery trade was discussed by State Senator George M. Peterson before the Duluth Retail Grocers' association last evening at the Commercial club. Senator Peterson made special reference to the laws passed by the 1915 legislature affecting garnishment proceedings and weights and measures. Senator Peterson is secretary of the club.

Other matters of interest to the trade were discussed and plans for a meeting to be held on May 19 were also taken up for discussion. Within the next two weeks a special committee will investigate the insurance rate pertaining to grocers of Duluth and will report at the next meeting of the association.

At the meeting in May committees will also be named for the annual picnic to be held some time this summer. A committee will also be appointed to make plans for the holding of the state convention of grocers in Duluth in 1916.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

GOOD NAVY RECRUITS HERE.

Cities of Duluth's Size Furnish Best Sailors in Navy.

Instructions have been received at the local navy recruiting station in the postoffice building to inquire into the residence, antecedents, etc., of each applicant for enlistment in the navy who is found qualified, before he is finally enlisted. This is to reduce the number of men who are found to be unfitted for the navy at the naval training station, Great Lakes, Ill., where they are schooled before being sent to duty on board a warship.

The average number of men discharged for this district has been very low compared with those from larger cities. The men from the smaller cities such as Duluth are found to make the best material for the navy. Desertions have fallen off 17 per cent during the last year and re-enlistments have increased 12 per cent. The American-born and United States naturalized citizens in the navy now number 96 per cent of the total.

APPLICATION FOR WRIT IN THAW CASE GRANTED

New York, April 29.—The appellate division of the supreme court yesterday granted an application of the state attorney general for an alternative writ restraining Supreme Court Justice Hendricks from empaneling a jury to test the sanity of Harry K. Thaw. Argument on the question as to whether the writ should be made permanent, will be heard on May 7.

Justice Hendrick, in a recent opinion, decided that he had power to call in a jury to aid him in determining Thaw's sanity and announced that he would do so. The state authorities, who are fighting to have Thaw returned to the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane, contend that the justice had no such power. The step taken is the first in the announced intention of the attorney general to take the question up to the highest court in the state for final decision.

Salt rheum is one of the worst and unfortunately one of the most common of all diseases. How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales, and then does this all over again! Sometimes it covers the whole body with inflamed, burning patches and causes intense suffering, which is commonly worse at night.

Local applications may do some good, but they cannot permanently relieve. The disease will continue to annoy, pain and perhaps agonize, until the blood has been purified and the general health improved.

CHEAPER TO BUILD NOW

Materials Lower Than Last Year and Mortgages Easy to Handle.

Duluth Growing as Headquarters for All Builders' Supplies.

Duluth builders' supply men are looking forward to the present season being one of the most active and satisfactory in a considerable period. Many large public and commercial buildings are being proceeded with in the various towns through the Duluth district, and work is also rounding up nicely locally.

It is conceded in trade circles that this city is steadily becoming more prominent as a distributing point for all lines of building materials, and in that connection gratification is expressed over the recent decision of the interstate commerce commission definitely confirming the spread in freight rates between Duluth and the Twin Cities.

Building Materials Cheaper.

The pleasing fact is emphasized by dealers that building work can be carried through substantially cheaper than last season owing to lower prices ruling for a number of materials.

Lumber prices will average up 15 per cent lower than last spring in the estimation of R. E. Carroll, manager of the Duluth Lumber company. He commented today upon the fact that building operations are being accelerated through the present ease in the money market and the readiness with which mortgage loans are being put through. There has been a marked improvement lately, he averred in the inquiry for all classes of lumber, and his company's plant is now running full time on millwork.

F. J. Nixon, manager of the Paine & Nixon company, concurred in the view that all building materials may be bought on a reasonable price basis, and that manufacturers are giving good service in filling orders. "So far this season our sales of materials have shown an increase in the aggregate over last year and the prospects are growing brighter every day," he said.

Referring to prices, he pointed out that common brick are now quoted at $8 a thousand f. o. b. Duluth, but that face brick prices are 20 per cent lower on the average. The market in window glass is steady at about the same basis as last spring, but plate glass is cheaper.

The market in paints is strong and their sales are showing a considerable increase. Duluth's "clean-up and paint-up" movement this spring has resulted in materially increasing trade in paints locally, and business in other lines has also been helped through it, he averred. The committee promoting the movement are pleased over the hearty reception accorded it by citizens, and expectations now are that the results will be much ahead of original estimates.

Plate Glass Trade Expands.

Mr. Nixon intimated that his company's operations in plate glass and paints had shown a heavy increase during the past year with orders being booked from over a steadily widening territory. The carrying by his company of plate glass lines direct from the manufacturers has led to the recognition of Duluth as a satisfactory distributing point in it, and trade formerly monopolized by Twin Cities dealers, is now being done from here, leading to the employment of additional hands.

The Cutler-Magner company also advised that its sales of brick, lime, cement and plaster so far this season have shown a good increase in volume over the corresponding period last year. The gain in inquiry has been most noticeable during the past two weeks.

"We are not making any complaints. Our trade in all lines is showing a fair increase over last year," said W. F. Harper, manager of the Duluth Plumbing Supplies company. Outside dealers are buying more freely, and generally speaking they are hopeful regarding the outlook for the season, he intimated.

WEST END IMPROVEMENTS WILL BE TOPIC OF CLUB

Hillside Men Expect to Have Farrell Address Meeting.

Lowering of the grade on Piedmont avenue above Tenth street, having the city put in city scales on the hillside and other improvements needed for the district, will be among the subjects to be discussed at the meeting of the West End Hillside Improvement club to be held on May 12. It is expected to have Commissioner J. A. Farrell present to talk over the improvements.

The lowering of the grade will be required, say the members, before they can hope to have the car lines extended to the intercestion of the Hermantown and Hutchinson roads just west of Miller's creek. The extension is needed in order to remove the danger of the switching of cars from the vicinity of the Ensign school. The switching of the cars at this point is said to be an ever-present danger for the school children.

The present grade is said to exceed 10 per cent. According to members who have interviewed the management of the street railway company, the line cannot be extended until this grade has been reduced to at least 7 per cent.

Members of the club also will ask the commissioner to provide a drain to connect the fountain at Fourteenth street and Piedmont avenue with the Miller creek. The overflow from this fountain is now running down and has loosened the gutters and is rapidly ruining them. The cost of this improvement they say would be small.

The establishment of a city scale near the hilltop has been a subject that the club members have requested several times to be taken up. At present it is said that farmers coming to the city with hay or other produce, which they wish to dispose of, have been compelled to go to Garfield avenue and Superior street. In case of having a customer on the hillside, the trip up the hill has again had to be made. With a scale located in that district, this extra trip would be unnecessary.

TAKES DETECTIVE ALONG

Mill City Jeweler Causes Arrests of Women Who Planned Robbery.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 29.—A carefully laid plot by a lone woman to lure Leopold Metzger, manager of a prominent jewelry company, to a vacant house carrying with him jewels valued at $12,000 and then overpower and drug him, stealing the gems, was frustrated last night when Metzger had a detective accompany him. The woman, who was arrested, and found to be armed and carrying drugs, called up the jewelry company shortly before 6 o'clock saying that she was to be taken to the hospital the next day and that her daughter was to be married in the morning. It was asked that a selection of necklaces, diamonds and other jewels be brought to the residence. Mr. Metzger asked for a city detective as guard. They found the house to be vacant and on breaking in caught the woman.

HAS SUBSTITUTE FOR GASOLINE

Former Duluthian Discovers More Efficient Fuel Costing Much Less.

Gideon Charbonneau, a former Duluthian, and a brother of Joseph Charbonneau of the Duluth life guards, has invented a new and cheap substitute for gasoline, which the Ottawa Citizen of Ottawa, Canada, says may revolutionize the auto industry.

The newspaper account of it follows:

"A remarkable discovery, which if it proves successful will tend to revolutionize the auto and other industries, has just been perfected by Gideon Charbonneau of Hull, who claims he has manufactured a liquid substitute for gasoline, which can be sold much cheaper and has about six times the energy of gasoline. The liquid which the inventor has named 'Charbo-Oil' is of a peculiar green color, transparent and is as thin as water. To illustrate the practical usefulness of his discovery, Mr. Charbonneau conducted a test on Saturday afternoon at his residence, 7 Burke street, Hull, before A. Kastella, mechanical superintendent of dredges, E. Huot and A. Machline of the publiy works department and a number of Hull friends, which was highly successful.

"For the purposes of the demonstration a Gray stationary gasoline engine of 2¾-horse power was used. The inventor mixed two tablespoons full of the liquid with two quarts of water, which was poured into the tank of the engine. To the astonishment of those present, who at first were frankly skeptical regarding the virtues claimed for the liquid, it supplied enough energy to run the engine without any stops for upwards of an hour and a half. A peculiar point noticed in connection with 'Charbo-Oil' is that it does not give off any smoke while burning.

"Mr. Charbonneau, who has been working on his discovery for seventeen years to perfect it, states that he will be able to produce 'Charbo-Oil' in large quantities at the low rate of 4 cents per gallon, whereas gasoline at present costs as high as 18 cents.

"The inventor claims that the liquid in addition to taking the place of gasoline for all automatic traffic, can also be used as a motive power for turbine-driven ships and for the discharge of heavy guns. As soon as he has taken out his patents Mr. Charbonneau intends to submit his discovery to the dominion government, so that his claims as to the tremendous value of 'Charbo-Oil' can be verified."

GOVERNOR'S ABSENCE FAILS TO DAMPEN IRISH SPIRITS

Chief Executive Unable to Keep Engagement With Fellowship Club.

But 250 Members and Guests Enjoy Excellent Substitute Speakers.

Rabbi Lefkovits, John Dwan and Father Kiley in Witty Vein.

RAY M. HUGHES,
Toastmaster at Irish Fellowship Club Banquet.

Shure a little bit of heaven
Fell from the sky one day,
And nestled on the ocean
In a spot so far away;
And when the angels found it,
Shure it looked so sweet and fair,
They said: "Suppose we leave it,
For it looks so peaceful there."
So they sprinkled it with stardust
Just to make the shamrocks grow—
'Tis the only place you'll find them
No matter where you go—
Then they dotted it with silver,
To make its lakes so grand;
And when they had it finished,
Shure they called it Ireland.

Two hundred and fifty men attended the second annual banquet of the Irish Fellowship club, given at the Spalding hotel last evening, and, despite the fact that the expected attendance of Governor Hammond did not materialize, the evening was very much enjoyed, for, as has been said before, never since language was created was there a dearth of orators where Irishmen are gathered.

Governor Hammond, who had fully intended being present, and had, he has told recent visitors to the capitol, looked forward to last evening with pleasureable anticipation, was prevented from attending by a protracted meeting of the pardon board. It began its sessions on Tuesday and it was expected to be through by yesterday noon, but the business before it kept the members of the board in close session until late last night. The governor wired his excuses and best wishes to the club, as did Fred B. Lynch, national Democratic committeeman, P. McDonald of Bemidji and "Tommy" Sands, general freight agent of the Soo road, all of whom had been especially invited to be present.

Musical Numbers.

Interspersed with the speeches, an excellent musical program was given. Mrs. Leo Ball sang "Kerry Dance," and, for an encore, "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms;" John Smith, clad in kilts, gave "The Wearin' o' the Green" as a bagpipe solo; Charles Young sang "Mavoureen" and replied to an encore and Paul Van Hoven closed the program by singing "My Isle of Dreams."

An excellent banquet was served, but it is untrue that the piece de resistance was olives. The favors at each plate consisted of twin flags for the lapel—the Stars and Stripes and the green flag and harp of Ireland.

Following the meal the president of the club, Frank J. Dacey, read the telegrams mentioned and then introduced the toastmaster, Ray M. Hughes. Mr. Hughes spoke of the objects of the club, being, in brief, the unifying of Irishmen for the purpose of promoting civic betterment and the common good and to work for higher citizenship.

Just previous to the opening of the toast list, President Dacey called attention to the yellow slips at each plate, announcing the engagement by the Duluth Curling club of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra for three concerts and urged all present to subscribed. He introduced Mrs. Stephen H. Jones, head of the committee that is furthering the concert plans, and Mrs. Jones explained the object of the engagement; and urged general subscription, laying stress on the fact that if the subscription is great enough a concert will be available for the school children. Mrs. Jones' address, which was brief, was excellently received.

In beginning the toast list, Mr. Hughes said in part:

Toastmaster's Address.

"Tonight and this occasion marks a step in the development of an ideal. For years Irish-Americans of this locality have thought of an organization composed of American citizens of Irish ancestry which could be effective in the work of the common good for our community. They looked around them and saw the German, the Frenchman, the Scandinavian, the Welshman and other nationalities, all seeking with the aid of effective co-operation to play their part in the work of civic and state betterment. Last year there was but this thought rearing its head in single blessedness in the minds of many as to the possibilities of such an organization. But last year a few men caught up this idea, crystallized it into being and organized the Irish Good Fellowship club. Tonight, a period less than a year since its inception, this club gives evidence of its spirit and this assemblage proves the wisdom of its organization.

"But what are its purposes? What its object? Who its beneficiaries? Its constitution states that its object shall be the promotion of good fellowship among men of Irish birth, parentage or lineage, Irish ideals and sympathies. On Jan. 25 of each year brother Scotsmen celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the immortal Burns; on May 17, Norwegians meet to celebrate their day; on June 24, our Swedish people revere the memory of their heroes; on other days other nationalities fittingly observe their natal occasion; all in their own sphere observe their ancestral ideals, yet keep before them the realization of their highest duty, that of their American citizenship.

Must Be Citizens.

"In this club, American citizenship reigns supreme—this its highest obligation—no one who is not a citizen of this republic or who has not indicated his intention of so becoming can have membership in our club. While we seek to promote good fellowship among Irishmen, we charge our members to keep before them always this primary thought that the effectiveness of our club can only be made secure by our loyalty to the ideals of American citizenship.

"Does religious thought enter into our organization? If you call us a political organization which we are not, we answer that the only that seeks political preferment because of religion should have no place in our community and the man who gives up his vote or his influence in the name of religious prejudice is as arrant a traitor as was Benedict Arnold selling his country for gold. No—here in America we have enough room for all creeds. Enough room for faith and conscience all marching in one vast army. Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, Episcopal, Unitarian, Catholic and Jews and all the creeds, all guarding closely the religious ideal they follow, yet all fusing into one vast army under the banner of the star spangled banner.

"We know well our ancestors have played an important part in the development of this commonwealth. We glory in the fact that the personality and the genius of the Irishman have been woven into the very fiber of this republic. We read history and we are proud of our ideals. We therefore exult in our American citizenship and we cherish it as the proudest heritage of all the nations. Our forefathers suffered and died for it. Today we are ready to sacrifice even Irish sentiments and Irish ideals, if necessary, for the perpetuity of the American republic.

"This is our hope, this is our ideal. This our aim and purpose. Patriotic Americans first and always, hoping by co-operation to contribute a share in this betterment and to make the influence of the Irish Good Fellowship club one for the good of our community and by its reflected influence prove our loyalty to the patriotic institutions of the United States of America."

Mayor Prince Speaks.

Mayor Prince, who was introduced as the first speaker of the toastlist, congratulated the club on its immense growth in the space of a year, and acknowledged the obligations that the city owes to its Irish citizens. He attributed the great strides made by America to the fact that the members of all races, coming to these shores, bring with them their accomplishments, inventive genius, arts, and ideas and traditions. He declared that he likes the name of the club, especially the word "fellowship," which, he said, is significant of the proper brotherly spirit which makes for good citizenship.

"The man," said the mayor, "who comes from another land to ours and remembers the ideals and traditions of his own land, makes a better American citizen than the man who forgets them; and Irishmen never forget the ideals and traditions of their race, nor do they forget its sufferings. There are greater possibilities for such an organization as yours than one can see merely on the surface. Any organization formed as yours is formed, for the betterment of American citizenship, is bound to be a success."

The mayor spoke of Irish wit, and told several examples of it in a way that brought much laughter, revealing a gift of story-telling that was unexpected.

Commission Is Cosmopolitan.

"America," said he, "is cosmopolitan, and nowhere will you find a more cosmopolitan group than in the city commission. To my left is Fritz Voss, the German who sits on the lid of the city's strongbox; to my right is Loi Merritt, the French explorer; to my right is Mr. Silberstein, who is already showing us fairness and impartiality in governing the safety of the city; and on my other hand is Commissioner Farrell, whose name reveals his descent. For myself, a common, everyday Yankee, I wish I could have in me combined a little of all that the others have."

Rev. Father Kiley of the Sacred Heart Cathedral, declared that the idea advanced by Zangwill in "The Melting Pot" is also his, and that it is the true idea of America. He declared that neither religion or race should be a barrier to citizenship; and he indorsed the formation of such a club as that before which he spoke, having for its object the cultivation of higher ideals of citizenship. Said he:

Preserving the Ideals.

"One of the chief things that will contribute to the greatness of the nation is the preservation of ideals, art, and traditions of the races from which we spring."

Father Kiley commended the action of Commissioner Silberstein in refusing to permit the red flag to be paraded in the streets, and declared that it has no place in America.

Rabbi Lefkovits of the Temple Emanuel, who was a guest of the club, made a witty speech, which brought rounds of applause, but in serious vein declared that between the Irish and the Jews there should be a close bond because of the similarity of the history of the races. In opening his address he declared that a minister must always speak from a text and he gave his as:

"This is the day the Lord hath made; let us be joyous thereof." He added that when Irishmen meet, it is always the Lord's day, for there is gladness and rejoicing.

"I feel perfectly safe and secure here," said the rabbi, "just as safe as though the entire audience were made up of safety commissioners."

He explained his feeling of security as being due to the fact that should he die, it would be the last place that the devil would look to find a Jewish rabbi.

Irish-Jewish Bonds.

Dr. Lefkovits said that one bond between the Irish and the Jews is the common suffering that both have experienced.

"Each is an orphan race," said he. "They are accustomed to cruel blows where they could not strike back; and have been grateful that they did not receive more. Another bond that should be between them is the ability for success when given a chance. It is well known that shortly after a Jew lands in this country, he will pack a sack and sell goods from house to house, and soon after that will become the proprietor of a large department store. With the Irish, it is also well known, that the formality of becoming citizens does not matter. In six months after landing they are voters, in a year and a half they become aldermen, and in five years city commissioners."

Perseverance and pertinacity of each of the races he ascribed as another bond.

Dr. Lefkovits said that the most learned men declare that the ten lost tribes of Israel went to Ireland, and that that should be another bond; and he asserted that if he were to chose what race to accept as the lost tribes of his own race, he would gladly choose the Irish. He declared that he liked the word "fellowship" in the club's name, and said that the Irish always have a genius for fellowship and friendship.

He indorsed the utterances of Father Kiley, that creed and race should be no barrier to true citizenship, and added:

"That worth, not birth, should be the test, I subscribe to with all my heart, soul and might and with every thrill of my being. If you never do anything else but promote that feeling, it is an accomplishment of which you may well be proud. Hearts are close to hearts everywhere, and across these tables, and I extend to you, with a whole heart, the right hand of fellowship."

Dwan Gives History.

John Dwan of Two Harbors was substituted for the governor, and humorously and in rhyme pleaded to be considered "governor for a day." He declared that the Irish race, next to the Jewish, is the oldest race in the world, and traced its history from the first recorded events. He declared that its civilization was yours than one can see merely on the surface. Any organization formed as yours is formed, for the betterment of American citizenship, is bound to be a success."

The mayor spoke of Irish wit, and told several examples of it in a way that brought much laughter, revealing a gift of story-telling that was unexpected.

"America," said he, "is cosmopolitan, and nowhere will you find a more cosmopolitan group than in the city commission. Don't Ever Rub Your Eyes

Use "Benetol" As An Eye Wash, Not Only Soothing and Cleansing, But Kills Every Germ That May Have Been Blown or Rubbed In.

The hands or gloves collect untold billions of germs. Some may be harmless, others dangerously poisonous when brought into contact with the eyeball or eyelids. When you come home from auto riding and your eyes burn from the dust and wind—or when they smart from any cause—don't rub them. Give them a cooling, healing bath with a mild solution of "Benetol."

Soothing, Cleansing, Antiseptic.

This is only one of hundreds of uses for this wonderful antiseptic and germicide. The sooner you learn of this most remarkable preparation, the better will be your health and general welfare.

As a gargle it cures sore throat, as a mouth wash it keeps the teeth free from tartar, cures pyorrhea and keeps the gums healthy and free from disease, as a nasal cleanser it cures catarrhal conditions, applied to cuts and burns it heals and makes infection impossible, and taken internally it keeps the bowels, kidneys and liver pure, sterilized and free from germ life.

For children and grown-ups it is alike harmless, both internally and externally, yet as a destroyer of disease germs it is more powerful than even pure carbolic acid.

CANNOT REALIZE MARRIAGE.

Kenosha's "Man of Mystery" Still Believes He Is Single.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 29.—Frank Van Wie, Kenosha's "man without a memory," whose mind was restored at Kenosha Tuesday when two vertebrae, displaced nearly two years ago from a fall from a roof of a Milwaukee building, were snapped back into place, returned to Kenosha yesterday to resume his recent position of light employment.

Van Wie, it is expected, will remain in Kenosha several days under the care of a physician who recently has been interested in his case.

When informed that he had married Clara Heise on June 12, 1913, a little more than a month after his accident, Van Wie disclaimed any knowledge of the ceremony.

"No, no, there must be a mistake somewhere, I never got married or it must have been while I was out of my mind," he protested when told he had been married and was now a father.

Van Wie's wife and child are said to be living on a farm at Medford, Wis., with Van Wie's mother.

MARTINSON REAPPOINTED.

Bismarck, N. D., City Commission Names Him Again as Police Captain.

Bismarck, N. D., April 29.—The new city commission with two newly elected members organized and named appointive officers. R. H. Thistlethwaite was named to succeed himself as auditor, both new members voting against him.

Chris Martinson was named police captain after having been let go a year ago as a result of a political scrap. All the commissioners voted for him.

Downing was named chief of police, after having served under the former commissioner for a year. L. E. Updyke was named city treasurer, succeeding John Larson, who has held the office for a number of years.

F. E. McCurdy was elected city attorney to succeed F. H. Register, who was also a candidate. Bids for the city official paper will be called for.

Grain Thief Sentenced.

Rolla, N. D., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chris Olson, who made the mistake of selling his neighbor's flax and retaining the proceeds, has been taken to the penitentiary to serve a one-year sentence imposed by Judge Buttz. Olson pleaded guilty to grand larceny.

To Dedicate Jamestown Church.

Jamestown, N. D., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bishop Quayle of Minnesota will be the principal speaker at the dedication of the new Methodist church here May 23.

The church was erected at a cost of about $25,000 and it has a seating capacity of about 800.

DULUTHIAN BURIED AT FERGUS FALLS

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 29.—Mrs. Harry Morgan came from Duluth to arrange for the burial of her husband here. Mr. Morgan was a former resident of this city, making his home with the Scofield family here when a young man. His death occurred Dec. 23 last from heart disease, and it was decided to bring the remains here for burial. The body arrived on the Northern Pacific Tuesday afternoon and was taken directly to Mount Faith cemetery, Rev. Mr. Shawl officiated.

RED WING VOTERS FAVOR LICENSE

Red Wing, Minn., April 29.—Red Wing, by 260 majority, Tuesday voted to remain in the wet column. Plans already are advanced for the county option election in Goodhue county and it is claimed that the wet forces admit defeat. Only two towns, Red Wing and Goodhue, now are wet in this county. In 1914 Red Wing gave the wets a majority of 343. Tuesday's vote, which cut the majority, was the largest in the history of the city, 1,850 persons casting ballots.

CLOSER STUDY OF THE RATE DECISION SHOWS AN EVEN GREATER DULUTH VICTORY

Commission Has Definitely Upheld the 21 Cent Spread.

Commodity Rate Ordered Adjusted on Basis of Class Rate.

Twin Cities' "Rock of Gibraltar" Is Finally Demolished.

Additional advices concerning the rail-lake-and-rail decision of the interstate comerce commission, handed down in Washington yesterday, and upholding, specifically, the 83-cent scale to the Twin Cities from the East, including the 21-cent spread fought for by the Duluth traffic commission, show that Duluth has scored an even greater victory than was at first hinted.

G. Roy Hall, traffic commissioner of the Duluth Commercial club, upon whose skill in rate matters most of the victory turned, is jubilant today. Mr. Hall says that the decision is a sweeping victory in favor of Duluth.

The interstate commerce commission has not only upheld the 21-cent spread between Duluth and the Twin Cities, but has specifically ordered that the commodity rates be adjusted on the basis of the class rates. In that particular Duluth has scored heavily.

Under the old decision, handed down in July, 1913, a similar order was implied, but not specifically made, so the carriers ignored the readjustment of the commodity rates, putting in force only readjusted class rates. In the case now decided—which was for a 90-cent rate—Duluth asked the commission to specifically order readjustment of the commodity rates, in language that the carriers could not misinterpret or ignore. This the commission has done with emphasis, and it is now up to the carriers to obey.

Important Application.

Class rates affect merchandise of general use. Commodity rates affect coal, iron and steel, and such commodities. This will increase the spread on these between the Twin Cities and Duluth, giving Duluth her rights in the matter. For instance, the spread on iron and steel has been 2 cents; under the new order it will be 7 cents.

Duluth never seriously considered the 90-cent rate, but used it in the way of a counter-attack on the Twin Cities, which tried to have the 83-cent rate, and the 21-cent spread abolished and the old spread of 15 cents restored.

That the interstate commerce commission realizes that the carriers have been favoring the Twin Cities in discrimination against Duluth is shown in the following language of the decision:

"The northwestern lines entered no appearance on this record and their officials testified only under subpoena issued at the request of the Twin Cities, where those lines have their official headquarters.

"ALL CAREFUL EXAMINATION OF THE TESTIMONY GIVEN IN THIS CASE BY THEIR OFFICIALS SHOWS THAT THOSE LINES ARE STILL WILLING TO BUILD UP THE TWIN CITIES AT THE EXPENSE OF DULUTH, THUS HOLDING THE DIFFERENTIAL SCALE DOWN TO THE LOWER LEVEL."

Twins Change Attitude.

An interesting thing in connection with the decision is the attitude of the Twin Cities. The papers there, voicing the traffic commissioners of Minneapolis and St. Paul, declare the decision to be a victory for them. A St. Paul paper says:

"The Twin Cities attacked the present 83-cent scale of rates as being unreasonable to them and unduly preferential, but the commission in its decision held otherwise.

"Association of Commerce members say this ruling is not important."

This is a complete reversal of attitude. For years Traffic Commissioner Trickett of Minneapolis declared that the 15-cent spread was "as fixed as the Rock of Gibraltar," and when the interstate commerce commission in its decision of July, 1913, destroyed this "rock" and substituted the 21-cent spread, Mr. Trickett and other Twin City men emitted first a moan and then a startled hollow that echoed from the farthest corners of the nation.

They declared that they would not stand for it, and even went so far as to threaten Duluth with commercial annihilation. In fact, they went so far as to discuss the matter of establishing a railroad on their own hook from a Lake Michigan point, to connect with steamers to be owned by them, thus taking all of the lake trade going to the Twin Cities away from this port.

It is no exaggeration to say that for a long time the Twin Cities actually sulked, and Duluth men were abused verbally for "trying to rob the Twin Cities of their rights." Instances of that kind occurred in the Twin Cities, in Chicago and in Washington. Julius H. Barnes had an encounter with a group of Twin City men in Washington, where such an incident occurred, and merely laughed at them, telling them that Duluth had only started after the favored twins.

However, they seem to have found it the best thing to bow to the inevitable, and now find that Duluth will be a real competitor. But as to their victory, it is puzzling. As one man paraphrased a famous Biblical quotation:

"O grave of the 15-cent spread, where is thy victory?"

In its decision of yesterday the interstate commerce commission says:

Text of Order.

"The proposed 90-cent scale of rates from trunk line and Central freight association territory to the Twin Cities has not been justified by the respondents and the 28-cent scale of differentials in the rates to the Twin Cities over the rates to Duluth is unduly discriminatory as against the former. The present 83-cent scale of rates to the Twin Cities is not unreasonable or unlawfully discriminatory against those communities, nor is the 83-cent scale of differentials over the rates to Duluth unduly preferential of that port as alleged. For the future any class rates to the Twin Cities in excess of a 21-cent scale of differentials over the rates to Duluth will be unjustly discriminatory as against the Twin Cities, and any class rates to the latter communities on a scale of differentials lower than 21 cents, first class, will be unduly discriminatory as against Duluth. A scale of rates, rail-lake-and-rail from Trunk line and Central Freight association territory to the Twin Cities, based upon a rate of 83 cents, first class, is prescribed for the future. Carriers will be expected to bring their commodity rates into harmony with the class rates."

Question Unchanged.

"So far as the present class rate to Minneapolis is concerned," the commission says, "there was no successful effort on the part of Minneapolis to show it is unreasonable. What was put forward by Minneapolis and St. Paul as of paramount importance to those communities was the rate relation of the Twin Cities and Duluth with respect to the westbound class and commodity rates. The northwestern lines entered no appearances in the case, some of their officials testified, but only under subpoena. While the trunk lines, which filed the tariffs proposing the new scale of class rates to the Twin Cities, took some part in the hearing, the real burden of justifying the new scale of rates was resumed by Duluth. So that the real point in this record is precisely the question that was before us in the Duluth case, namely, what is a reasonable scale of differentials in the class and commodity rates to the Twin Cities over the rates to Duluth?

"The 90-cent scale of rates is to be regarded not so much as an increase in rates for additional revenue to the carriers as a step by them in the effort to bring that controversy to an end by a scale of differentials that will give a fair expression to the difference in the service and that will equitably adjust the rate relation between the extreme demand on the part of Duluth for the sum of the locals to the Twin Cities and the extreme contention on the part of the Twin Cities that the 15-cent rate scale of differentials heretofore in effect is a reasonable scale.

Would Favor Twins.

"As heretofore stated, the northwestern lines entered no appearance on this record, and their officials testified only under subeopa issued at the request of the Twin Cities, where those lines have their official headquarters. A careful examination of the testimony given in the case by their officials shows that those lines are still willing to build up the Twin Cities at the expense of Duluth, thus holding the differential scale down to the lower level.

"Another witness said that the proposed 90-cent scale to the Twin Cities would be all right if the Duluth scale, now fixed under our order at 62 cents, were raised to a 75-cent scale; in other words, the proposed higher scale of rates, in his judgment, ought to satisfy the Twin Cities, provided the Duluth rates were so increased as to preserve the old 15-cent scale of differentials which we condemned.

Governs Commodity Rates.

"It will suffice to say that nothing of record in this case has successfully impeached the conclusions announced in the Duluth case with respect to the rate adjustment under review in this proceeding. In the Duluth case we indicated that our findings were applicable as well to the commodity rates as to the class rates; but as the record was not sufficient to enable us to state specific commodity rates to the Twin Cities, we called upon the carriers to apply the principles of the case to their commodity rates. The respondents, however, took no action, and of this much complaint has been made informally.

"We again hold with respect to the commodity rates to the Twin Cities that the general principles here announced are applicable as well to those rates as to the class rates. We shall, therefore, look to the carriers to propose and submit a schedule of commodity rates to Duluth and to the Twin Cities in which due regard shall be given to the findings herein respecting commodity rates to Duluth, based upon the new class rates to that point, and the commodity rates to the Twin Cities, based upon the differentials herein fixed."

BOXES ARE NUISANCE

"Baby Billboards" Blown Into Street By Heavy Wind.

Contract Will Be Canceled If Council Has the Right.

Three of the commissioners are opposed to the paper receptacles on street corners and in all probability the resolution awarding Spindler Bros., a local advertising firm, permission to place these advertising boxes on the streets will be rescinded by the council at an early meeting.

Commissioner Farrell, head of the public works division, is now awaiting an opinion from the city attorney and he declared this morning that he will also take the matter up with the other members of the commission. Commissioners Voss and Silberstein are both opposed to the boxes, they having declared their intention of supporting Mr. Farrell in any move to cancel the contract.

Last night's heavy wind blew several of the boxes out in the middle of the street. The box at Third avenue west was blown right into the street and an automobile a few minutes later would have crashed right into it, if an oficer had not warned the driver in time.

"These boxes are a nuisance," said Mr. Farrell this morning, "as can be seen by what occurred last night. It will be worse in the winter time. Commissioners Voss and Silberstein agree with me that the boxes will never be used for waste paper and that they will merely amount to advertising signs. In addition, our sidewalks are too narrow for these boxes and they certainly do not add to the beauty of our city.

"I am now taking the matter up with the city attorney and will try to have the resolution passed by the old council rescinded at an early meeting. Should it be found necessary for me to issue permits to the Spindler brothers, I will refuse to do so."

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY.

New York Evening Post: Two old ladies were once talking of how small babies sometimes are when they are born. One old lady said, complacently:

"When I was born, I was so small you could put me into a quart tankard and shut down the lid."

And the other old lady said, astounded:

"Why, did—you—live?"

And the first old lady said:

"They say I did, and growed nicely."

SPECIAL MEETING FOR JITNEY LAW

Ordinance Will Be Passed as Emergency Measure Friday Afternoon.

If the new jitney ordinance is finished by tomorrow noon, a special meeting of the council will be held during the afternoon, so that it can be passed as an emergency measure.

By making it an emergency measure, the ordinance will not require three readings, but will become law if it receives the unanimous approval of the entire commission. Hurried action has been found necessary, as licenses will have to date from May 1.

City Attorney Greene is now preparing the measure for the special meeting tomorrow. In case it is not ready, the ordinance will be introduced at a special meeting some time Saturday morning.

SHIPPED TO DULUTH.

Louis Gloven, Injured and Destitute, Refused Aid in Superior.

After wandering around the streets of Superior with a broken shoulder blade, Louis Gloven, 20, a Pole, applied to Swan S. Hard, poor commissioner of Douglas county, and was told to "go to Duluth," according to a story told police this afternoon.

Destitute and scarcely able to walk, Gloven came to headquarters and asked Capt. A. G. Fiskett to provide for him, saying that Commissioner Hard had told him that "Duluth was the place to go to be cared for."

St. Louis county poor commission officials have refused to handle the case, according to police, as the man should be a Douglas county charge.

Whether or not steps will be taken by local authorities to compel Commissioner Hard to care for the boy has not been determined.

ASSESSORS INSTRUCTED

Gather in Duluth From Every City, Village and Township.

County Auditor Explains Law as to Fixing Valuations.

Assessors from every city, village and township in St. Louis county are assembling today at the courthouse to receive their assessment books and instructions from the office of County Auditor Odin Halden. Seventy-seven assessors from outside tax districts are expected. The books and blanks given them have been so arranged that no delay is experienced in their distribution.

Each year the assessment books are made up in the office of the county auditor. The books contain a description of all taxable property in the county taxing districts. It is the duty of the assessor to fill out the valuations in his respective district and to return the books to the county auditor by the fourth Monday in June.

Fixing of Valuations.

Up to 1914, the law governing the assessment of property required that all property be assessed at its true and full value. The provision of the law, however, was never enforced and instead property was assessed at anywhere from 20 to 50 per cent of its actual value.

The undervaluation practice became a fixed and settled custom in the state, which was recognized in the courts as having the same force as law. The 1913 legislature legalized the custom by passing a law fixing a schedule of percentage of valuation at which property is to be assessed. The law was put into effect on the 1914 assessment. It is known as the classified assessment law.

County Auditor Halden and L. A. Marvin, chief deputy, met with a number of the assessors this morning and explained in detail how assessments should be made in accordance with the new law. It is expected that the assessors will have less difficulty this year in making their returns to the county auditor.

Restrictions for Returns.

Assessors will make no return this year on real estate valuations, except in cases where improvements have been made since the 1914 assessment, in which case, the assessor will make a return only as to the value of the improvement. The 1914 figures will be used as a basis for real estate valuation.

Assessors attending the meeting today at the courthouse are entitled to receive five cents for each mile necessarily traveled in going to and returning from the meeting and to $3 additional for one day's attendance.

DESTRUCTION OF WARSHIP

Details of Loss of French Cruiser Finally Drift Through.

Blown Up on Moonlight Night When No Danger Was Suspected.

Brindisi, Italy, April 27, via Paris, April 28, (delayed in transmission.)—The French cruiser Leon Gambetta has been torpedoed by the Austrian submarine U-6 in the Strait of Otranto, the waterway leading to the Adriatic sea.

The first report of the destruction of the cruiser comes from the semaphore station of Santa Maria Leuca. Vessels were sent out to the aid of the Leon Gambetta from Brindisi, Taranto, Otranto and Bari. The men at the station also went out in their own boats and were the first to reach the scene.

It has not yet been ascertained whether the attack occurred within the territorial waters of Italy.

The Austrian submarine U-6 is the same craft that a few days ago boarded the Italian steamer Jolanda.

Since the beginning of the Anglo-French operations against the Dardanelles the French warships in the Adriatic have limited their activities to watching the Strait of Otranto with the idea of preventing any Austrian submarine escaping from the Adriatic and reaching the coast of Turkey. This patrol duty was particularly to protect the vessels of the allies operating against the Dardanelles.

Story of Disaster.

From information gathered from various survivors, it is possible to construct the story of the disaster, as follows:

The Leon Gambetta parted company with the French cruiser Jules Ferry to cross the strait of Otranto with a view to co-operating with other French ships in an attempt to block the Austrian fleet if it should seek to leave the Adriatic. This was not an unusual maneuver, as the Leon Gambetta, for months had been going up and down the coast from Cape Santa Maria Leuca to Brindisi, Bari or across to Corfu and Vallona.

The sea was perfectly calm and the moon shone brightly. Although the Leon Gambetta showed no lights and adopted the other customary precautions, there was no suspicion of danger.

At midnight the warship was about twenty miles from Cape Santa Maria Leuca. The lookout could see distinctly the lights on the Italian coast. At sea, nothing appeared on the horizon.

Fearful Explosion.

Suddenly there was a fearful explosion which shook the cruiser fore and aft, officers and men remained calm and, the survivors say, their first thought was not for their own safety, but rather to detect and attack their assailant. They scanned the sea for a periscope, but in vain.

As the cruiser was listing rapidly, the commander gave orders that signals for help be sent, and that the boats be lowered. It proved to be most difficult to lower the boats, owing to the position of the ship in the water. Some of the men leaped overboard in the bare hope of saving themselves. Others were washed off the deck. The commander, although urged to abandon his ship, refused to do so.

None of the survivors was able to say how long it was before assistance arrived. It is probable that several hours elapsed before these men were rescued.

firmly declined to consider joining the allies without first having reached a definite agreement with them concerning the nature and time of her co-operation, boundary and adjustments after the war and permanent assistance from the allies. Italy is said to have received powerful assistance from French diplomacy in reaching the desired understanding on these points.

Secret Developments.

On the Italian frontier, April 29, via Paris.—There has been received here from a source in Rome that is thoroughly trustworthy a presentation of secret political developments. It has to do with several important points in the negotiations between Italy and the Central empires. This disclosure, it is said, may now be made without detriment to the interests affected, as the situation has reached such a point that no actions can affect the policy settled upon by Italy. The information thus received is as follows:

When Prince von Buelow was accredited to Rome as German ambassador, he was charged with the definite task of bending every effort toward preventing Italy from entering the war, it being believed by that time that if Italy took up arms it would be on the side of the allies.

Time Needed.

At first the ambassador received encouragment that his mission might result in success. He was too astute a diplomat, however, not to perceive that back of this complaisant attitude of Italy lay the pressing necessity of gaining time, for Italy was unprepared for war and needed an interval for preparations. The ambassador accordingly sought to tie Italy's hands by presenting concrete offers, which, even if satisfying her only in part, would cause a large section of the public to urge the government to accept them and thus avoid the hardships of war.

It was under these circumstances that the German ambassador first proposed a settlement whereby Italy should receive the Austrian territory inhabited principally by Italians. This suggestion originally was vague and was not accompanied by evidence that Austria had acquiesced in it. Several weeks were required to give shape to this proposal, which eventually was reduced to a plan for rectification of the Italian frontier in such a way as to make it less open to invasion.

Sonnino Firmer.

In the meantime Italy's military preparations were approaching completion. This enabled Foreign Minister Sonnino to assume a firmer attitude. He said clearly that the government could not possibly come to any understanding which was contrary to the unanimous wishes of the people and parliament, stating that there was a complete unification of sentiment. Furthermore, he said, the cabinet was unwilling to continue negotiations initiated by Germany unless they should be participated in by Austria, with which any agreement necessarily must be concluded.

Austria at first declared that Emperor Francis Joseph would never consent to the alienation of one inch of territory. Thus facing an impossible situation, Prince Von Buelow threatened to abandon his post. Rather than have a rupture, Austria entered the negotiations and asked Italy to state her demands. It was in the middle of March when Italy made a response repeating to Austria virtually what she had already said about territorial aggrandizement to Prince von Buelow. To this she added that she wished Austria to pledge herself that, whatever the result of the war, she would respect the territorial integrity of Serbia. The reason for this request was that Italy, having taken her stand on the principle of political solidarity for the Italian race, could not consistently be a party, even indirectly, to any settlement of the war whereby the political entity of the Serbs would be threatened.

Austria's View.

The Austrian view was that Italy's demands were excessive and unacceptable. She intimated that she considered it astonishing that Italy, having declared herself neutral when the war began, should interfere in any settlement between Austria and Serbia, in addition to claiming for herself extensive territories possessed by Austria.

The two points of view were so far apart that a rupture seemed inevitable, but Prince von Buelow succeeded in averting such a scene. Negotiations were taken up afresh. Signor Sonnino stated that the minimum of Italian demands included, in addition to the clause concerning Serbia, cession of Austria of the entire provinces of Trent and of Istria with Triest and Pola, and also a certain number of the Dalmatian islands.

Austria Counters.

Austria came forward with counter suggestions, limiting the territory to be ceded to part of the province of Trent and other territory, excluding Pola and Triest. The latter city, under this arm, was to be transformed into a free town under Austrian suzerainty.

Italy definitely refused these proposals. It is asserted that Prince von Buelow came to the end of his resources when he suggested that Triest be made a Hanseatic town under international control and that he expected both Vienna and Rome to refuse.

It is understood that little has been accomplished since these last named proposals failed, and accordingly there is a feeling that Italy will have recourse to arms.

PIMPLES ON FACE ITCHED AND BURNED

Also on Neck. Painful, Large and Very Red. Lost Many Nights' Sleep. Used Cuticura. Face and Neck Free From All Pimples.

317 Hughes St., Dayton, Ohio.—"My wife had pimples on her face and neck ever since she was a little girl. Her face would get so sore at times that she could hardly wash it. It was a very painful sensation which caused the loss of many nights' sleep. The pimples were large in size and very red. They would itch and burn so she would scratch and pick at them until they would bleed. The breaking out was so thick that I couldn't put my finger on her face without touching at least two of the pimples.

"I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which she applied and they gave instant relief. I immediately purchased two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. When this supply was used up her face and neck were clear and free from all pimples." (Signed) Orin L. Brown, Oct. 5, 1914.

safe and strong upon the peaceful shores of prosperity and influence."

Three times, the secretary said, the country had evinced its faith in the Democratic party by returning a Democratic house of representatives. The foes of Democracy, he said, could find small comfort in the reduced majority of the Democrats in the next congress.

Party Kept Its Faith.

"Our party has kept its faith," he continued. "It has not been given orders by the people to revise the tariff downward only to answer by revising it upward. One thing at least no one dares say about the tariff law, namely that it was prepared by anybody in his own interest. Never was there a measure of the kind more free from personal taint, more purely intended for public as distinguished from private purposes." The secretary declared that the tariff was not a factor in "depressing business conditions" and that under the Underwood bill "we have gained something of industrial self respect."

The Federal reserve law, he said, has relapsed into the channels of trade vast sums formerly unnecessarily held back as reserves, and has taken away the basis of fear that produces panic.

"Look and see," he continued, "how many of our partisan opponents venture to rise in public and denounce the Federal reserve law. It is admitted on all hands, if not in words, at least in silence, by our adversaries that this thing has been well done. On it with confidence rest the operations of some of the very men who cry loudest in criticism of our policies.

Make Plain the Way.

"Aye, but business legislation. Well let us face the question of business legislation boldly, for concerning it there is naught we have to fear. We have made plainer the way of the honest business man; our opponents themselves being witnesses, the Clayton law and the Federal trade commission law are good. They put no obstacle in the way of any honorable man. They make his road more plain. They give him a forum in which he may be heard. They give him a point on which with more confidence he may lean.

"Let it be that criticism shall come," he concluded. "We shall be the better for it; but let it be that the criticism shall be fair and truthful and candid. If it is not so, the criticism will fall of its own folly. If it is so the criticism will do us good. And when we shall approach in the coming year the decision for the future, let it be approached not with a scowl or a whine, not with the partial statement of half truths, but let the facts be known in all their roundness to the American people, and then, in God's name, let the best man win."

FIGHTING IN FLANDERS

has reached an agreement with Great Britain and France that if she enters the war it will be contemporaneously with a concerted movement against Germany and Austria by all their opponents. The agreement is said to provide also for a new and permanent alliance between Italy and the powers of the Triple Entente.

French Statement.

Paris, April 29, 2:33 p. m.—The French war office today gave out a report on the progress of hostilities reading as follows:

"In Belgium we have continued to progress, in conjunction with Belgian troops, in a northerly direction. On the right bank of the Yser canal we took 150 prisoners as well as two machine guns.

"There is nothing new on the heights of the Meuse nor in the Vosges.

"The enemy has bombarded by means of flying machines and incendiary shells the open town of Epernay, occupied exclusively at that time by hospital detachments.

"Definite information which has come to hand sets forth that the Zeppelin airship which eight days ago threw bombs on Dunkirk was seriously damaged by our artillery. Finding it impossible to navigate further, the machine was wrecked in the trees between Bruges and Ghent."

German Statement.

Berlin, April 29, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—At army headquarters today the following statement was issued:

"All attacks against the German positions on the west bank of the canal north of Ypres failed.

"The number of cannon of the enemy captured by the Germans was increased to 63.

"Southeast of Verdun the German positions were advanced by more than 100 yards.

"Captured French soldiers confess that they were in great fear, having been told by their officers that the Germans shot all prisoners.

"South of Kalwarya, Russian Poland, the Germans occupied the village of Kovale and the height a short distance south of Dachovo. South of Sochaczew the Germans conquered a Russian point of support."

Russians Occupy Loubnia.

Petrograd, April 29, via London.—The Russian occupation of Loubnia, a small village to the northwest of Uzsok pass, was a decided achievement in the Carpathian campaign for the reason that it seriously endangers the important railroad line between the town of Uzsok and Berezna.

This railroad has enabled the Austrians to transfer troops almost instantly to any point on this part of the Carpathian front, a section which received the main force of the Russian plunge toward Hungary. But the seizure of Loubnia gives the Russian artillery an opportunity of commanding a part of the line and virtually disqualifies it from further service.

will continue to use poisonous gases, the women of England are working valiantly to supply simple respirators for the men in the field, and thousands soon will be sent to the front.

Turkish Claims.

Constantinople, Tuesday, April 27, via Amsterdam, April 29 and via London, April 29.—There has been given out here an official announcement bearing on the fighting at the Dardanelles, which reads:

"Sighi Dere, to the west of Seddul Bahr, has been cleared of the enemy.

"The enemy, who landed near Kaba Tepeh, endeavored to maintain their positions under cover of their ships, but early in the morning our troops stormed these positions and forced the enemy back along the whole front inflicting severe losses on them. Part of the enemy fled in the direction of the sea and taking to their boats disappeared. Those unable to escape raised the white flag and surrendered in masses.

"A transport of the enemy was sunk off Ariburn.

"Later reports declare that hostile forces estimated at four brigades have been driven into sea on the coast at Kaba Tepeh.

Allies Successful.

London, April 29.—In a dispatch from Athens the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says that fierce fighting throughout Wednesday on the shores of Suvla bay, on the western side of the Gallipoli peninsula, eighteen miles north of the southern extremity, resulted in the success of the allies.

The losses of the Turks were serious. One entire battalion was captured by the allies.

The British force landed on the European coast of the Dardanelles has been entrusted solely with the mission of occupying the Gallipoli peninsula which is defended by 60,000 Turks.

The French force has been landed entirely on the Asiatic coast with the object of advancing along the littoral to keep pace with the progress made by the British on the opposite coast.

The bombardment of the straits was resumed Tuesday and lasted twelve hours. It was directed particularly at the Kilid Bahr forts.

The British war office issued the following announcement last night on the Dardanelles operations:

"In the face of continual opposition, the allied troops have now established themselves across the end of the Gallipoli peninsula, from a point northeast of Eski Hissarlik to the mouth of a stream on the opposite side.

"They have also beaten off all attacks at Sari Bair and are steadily advancing."

"The Turks have made considerable preparation to hamper any landings. Wire entanglements under the sea, as well as on land, and deep pits with spikes at the bottom, were among the obstacles overcome by the troops."

ROOSEVELT EXCUSED FROM STAND AFTER LONG EXAMINATION

communication on that subject?"

"Yes."

"Did you accept after receiving the message?"

Another objection was sustained.

Later Col. Roosevelt said, "I accepted so as to gratify President McKinley."

"Do you remember hearing that any of the men named by Mr. Ivins contributed to your campaign fund in 1904?"

"Until after I left the presidency I never heard the names of those men as having been contributors. I heard most of them the first time when they were read here.

"I knew some people had contributed, but I didn't know how much. I knew of Henry Frick, George W. Perkins, Gifford Pinchot, the widow of Senator Hanna, and George Von L. Meyer. I also remember a widow who contributed a dollar."

"What did you do in regard to the New Haven railroad and the Harvester company?"

Harvester All Right.

"Action was taken against the New Haven. An investigation was made of the Harvester company and it was reported to me that it was all right."

The colonel then said he remembered an investigation had been made of the du Pont Powder company.

"Now, about the Northern Pacific railroad?"

An objection was sustained.

"Was action during your administration brought against the Standard Oil company?"

The court upheld another objection.

"Was any other action taken against any corporation in which Mr. Morgan or other gentlemen whose names appeared as contributors were interested, during your administration?"

An objection was sustained.

"Now, for the Tennessee Coal & Iron and the United States Steel corporation," said Mr. Bowers.

"When the merger took place," said the colonel, "I understood the Tennessee was so weak that the Steel corporation didn't consider it a dangerous competitor. The corporation controlled about 60 per cent of the output. The Tennessee had 1 9-10 per cent of total output. Subsequently the output of the Steel corporation shrunk to 54 per cent. The action occurred during the height of the panic of 1907. The prime interests of every citizen was that some measure should be taken to stop the panic and restore confidence. In New York the situation was trembling on a hair as to whether every business would have to be shut up. One night I received notice that next day Mr. Frick and Mr. Gary of the Steel corporation would come to see me. I had received thousands of appeals to do something.

In reply to questions, the colonel then said:

Consulted Platt.

"I always consulted Mr. Platt about appointing judges. I disregarded his advice on judges, however, more than I did on anything else. Some of the judges I appointed I knew personally. On others I had the recommendation of men I knew or bar associations. In appointments to higher courts, I always knew the man or knew all about him."

"While you were governor or president was there any invisible government on your part?"

"There was not one particle," replied the colonel, with great emphasis.

"Do you remember reading at the time of the New York insurance investigation the testimony given by Senator Platt?"

"Yes."

The court would not allow the witness to answer a question on what the testimony was.

Start Argument.

The Roosevelt attorneys then started to argue against the court's ruling. Counsel for both principals leaned over the judge's bench and conferred with Justice Andrews, who said he didn't understand just what the object of the question was. The court held to its decision.

"Did the article," Mr. Bowers went on, "contain statements you believed to be true?"

The same objection was made and the same ruling was made. Mr. Bowers took an exception and the colonel made a few notes on a piece of paper.

Mr. Bowers then went on to ask the colonel about a speech he made in which he said the interests of "Mr. B." and "Mr. Mr." Barnes and Charles Murphy, were identical and that the former controlled Albany as the latter did New York.

"I object," said Mr. Ivins; "if we start that we'll have to investigate New York and Albany."

"You don't know how much you frighten me," replied Mr. Bowers.

Mr. Bowers then continued to question the witness by asking:

"Did you, in making this speech here, rely upon portions of the Bayne committee report, which have not been received in evidence?"

Objection Upheld.

The court upheld an objection by Mr. Ivins.

"You were asked on cross-examination questions about your residence when you were nominated for governor. Did Mr. Root make a speech upon the subject at the convention?"

"Yes," replied the colonel.

"And you were nominated?"

"Yes, unanimously."

"Were you advised by Mr. Root at the time you conferred with him that you were eligible?"

An objection was sustained.

"Did the attitude you took in your speeches after 1911 differ from the attitude concerning Mr. Barnes you took in 1910?"

An objection was sustained.

"What facts came to your knowledge that led you to change your mind about Mr. Barnes?"

There was another objection.

The court said:

"Why he has gone over that, I believe."

After a lengthy discussion Justice Andrews allowed the witness to proceed.

Mr. Bowers produced a letter.

"Did you see this in the spring of 1914?"

"Yes."

"How did you happen to see it?"

Duell Gave It to Him.

"Charles H. Duell gave it to me upon my return from South America May, 1914."

The letter was offered in evidence.

Justice Andrews read the letter, which was written by Charles S. Whitman, now governor of New York, who was then district attorney of New York county.

Mr. Ivins objected on the ground that Mr. Whitman was not a party to this action and that the letter did not mention Mr. Barnes specifically. The court ruled that if the colonel said he relied upon the letter and believed what Mr. Whitman wrote, a part of it would be received in evidence. The colonel said he did so believe and the letter was read. It was written on the stationery of the district attorney's office. The part read was as follows:

"In line with our last talk I agree with you that the time is ripe for an alliance of the Progressive Republicans and members of the national Progressive party as well as of all good citizens sharing their opinions to rid the state of the kind of party control which is mainly responsible for corrupt conditions which have been clearly shown in the various examinations and investigations which have been held during the past year. These conditions are not localized and the men and the policies responsible for them are not confined to any one party."

Referred to Plaintiff.

"Did you understand that letter referred to the plaintiff here?"

"I did."

"Did you know, as the letter says, that investigations had been made of the government?"

An objection was sustained.

A letter written by Harvey D. Hinman during the 1914 campaign was also produced. In it he said he thought the time had come when the organization leaders should step down. That ended the re-direct examination of the witness. Counsel for Mr. Barnes immediately began the re-cross examination.

On re-cross-examination, Col. Roosevelt was asked:

"Was the Mr. Root who presided at the Chicago convention the same one who in 1908 made a speech about your tax affidavit?"

An objection was sustained.

Then Col. Roosevelt was asked:

"Was that Elihu Root?"

"It was," replied the colonel.

After a few more questions the colonel was excused from the stand.

Phillip V. I. Schuyler of New York, an employe in the law department of the Mutual Life Insurance company was called.

He said he had brought papers with him in answer to subpoena. The papers were on a lawyer's brief case, and contents were marked as an exhibit.

A recess was then taken.

WALKING TO ARIZONA.

Calumet Couple Hiking to Southwest for Man's Health.

Calumet, Mich., April 29.—Clyde and Selva Dulaney of Calumet who are walking all the way to Arizona, passed through Waukesha, Wis., early in the week, according to word received here. The trip is being made gradually and likely will consume the greater part of a year.

A few months ago the husband became ill here, and an examination by a physician revealed the fact he was in the early stages of tuberculosis. Believing a change of climate would be beneficial, this was suggested by the doctor, but the couple had no funds with which to make the trip. Undaunted, however, they set out on foot at the first sign of the breakup and have made remarkable headway so far.

At Waukesha, the couple had the misfortune to undergo arrest on the vagrancy charge, but once their story was told in court, the sympathetic judge dismissed the case without further questioning.

DESTRUCTION OF WARSHIP

Details of Loss of French Cruiser Finally Drift Through.

Blown Up on Moonlight Night When No Danger Was Suspected.

Brindisi, Italy, April 27, via Paris, April 28, (delayed in transmission.)—The French cruiser Leon Gambetta has been torpedoed by the Austrian submarine U-6 in the Strait of Otranto, the waterway leading to the Adriatic sea.

The first report of the destruction of the cruiser comes from the semaphore station of Santa Maria Leuca. Vessels were sent out to the aid of the Leon Gambetta from Brindisi, Taranto, Otranto and Bari. The men at the station also went out in their own boats and were the first to reach the scene.

It has not yet been ascertained whether the attack occurred within the territorial waters of Italy.

The Austrian submarine U-6 is the same craft that a few days ago boarded the Italian steamer Johanda.

Since the beginning of the Anglo-French operations against the Dardanelles the French warships in the Adriatic have limited their activities to watching the Strait of Otranto with the idea of preventing any Austrian submarine escaping from the Adriatic and reaching the coast of Turkey. This patrol duty was particularly to protect the vessels of the allies operating against the Dardanelles.

Story of Disaster.

From information gathered from various survivors, it is possible to construct the story of the disaster, as follows:

The Leon Gambetta parted company with the French cruiser Jules Ferry to cross the strait of Otranto with a view to co-operating with other French ships in an attempt to block the Austrian fleet if it should seek to leave the Adriatic. This was not an unusual maneuver, as the Leon Gambetta, for months had been going up and down the coast from Cape Santa Maria Leuca to Brindisi, Bari or across to Corfu and Valona.

The sea was perfectly calm and the moon shone brightly. Although the Leon Gambetta showed no lights and adopted the other customary precautions, there was no suspicion of danger.

At midnight the warship was about twenty miles from Cape Santa Maria Leuca. The lookout could see distinctly the lights on the Italian coast. At sea, nothing appeared on the horizon.

Fearful Explosion.

Suddenly there was a fearful explosion which shook the cruiser fore and aft, officers and men rushed on deck, and, the survivors say, their first thought was not for their own safety, but rather to detect and attack their assailant. They scanned the sea for a periscope, but in vain.

As the cruiser was listing rapidly, the commander gave orders that signals for help be sent, and that the boats be lowered. It proved to be most difficult to lower the boats, owing to the position of the ship in the water. Some of the men leaned overboard in the bare hope of saving themselves. Others were washed off the deck. The commander, although urged to abandon his ship, refused to do so.

None of the survivors was able to say how long it was before assistance arrived. It is probable that several hours elapsed before these men were rescued.

PIMPLES ON FACE ITCHED AND BURNED

Also on Neck. Painful. Large and Very Red. Lost Many Nights' Sleep. Used Cuticura. Face and Neck Free From All Pimples.

317 Hughes St., Dayton, Ohio.—"My wife had pimples on her face and neck ever since she was a little girl. Her face would get so sore at times that she could hardly wash it. It was a very painful sensation which caused the loss of many nights' sleep. The pimples were large in size and very red. They would itch and burn so she would scratch and pick at them until they would bleed.

The breaking out was so thick that I couldn't put my finger on her face without touching at least two of the pimples.

"I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which she applied and they gave instant relief. I immediately purchased two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. When this supply was used up her face and neck were clear and free from all pimples." (Signed) Orin L. Brown, Oct. 5, 1914.

firmly declined to consider joining the allies without first having reached a definite agreement with them concerning the nature and time of her co-operation, boundary and adjustments after the war and permanent assistance from the allies. Italy is said to have received powerful assistance from French diplomacy in reaching the desired understanding on these points.

Secret Developments.

On the Italian front, April 29, via Paris.—There has been received here from a source in Rome that is thoroughly trustworthy a presentation of secret political developments. It has to do with several important points in the negotiations between Italy and the Central empires. This disclosure, it is said, may now be made without detriment to the interests affected, as the situation has reached such a point that no actions can affect the policy settled upon by Italy. The information thus received is as follows:

When Prince von Buelow was accredited to Rome as German ambassador, he was charged with the definite task of bending every effort toward preventing Italy from entering the war, it being believed by that time that if Italy took up arms it would be on the side of the allies.

Time Needed.

At first the ambassador received encouragment that his mission might result in success. He was too astute a diplomat, however, not to perceive that back of this complaisant attitude of Italy lay the pressing necessity of gaining time, for Italy was unprepared for war and needed an interval for preparations. The ambassador accordingly sought to tie Italy's hands by presenting concrete offers, which, even if satisfying her only in part, would cause a large section of the public to urge the government to accept them and thus avoid the hardships of war.

It was under these circumstances that the German ambassador first proposed a settlement whereby Italy should receive the Austrian territory inhabited principally by Italians. This suggestion originally was vague and was not accompanied by evidence that Austria had acquiesced in it. Several weeks were required to give shape to this proposal, which eventually was reduced to a plan for rectification of the Italian frontier in such a way as to make it less open to invasion.

Somino Firmer.

In the meantime Italy's military preparations were approaching completion. This enabled Foreign Minister Somino to assume a firmer attitude. He said clearly that the government could not possibly come to any understanding which was contrary to the unanimous wishes of the people and parliament, stating that there was a complete unification of sentiment. Furthermore, he said the cabinet was unwilling to continue negotiations initiated by Germany unless they should be participated in by Austria, with which any agreement necessarily must be concluded.

Austria at first declared that Emperor Francis Joseph would never consent to the alienation of one inch of territory. Thus facing an impossible situation, Prince von Buelow threatened to abandon his post. Rather than have a rupture, Austria entered the negotiations and asked Italy to state her demands. It was in the middle of March when Italy made a response revealing to Austria virtually what she had already said about territorial aggrandizement to Prince von Buelow. To this she added that she wished Austria to pledge herself that, whatever the result of the war, she would respect the territorial integrity of Serbia. The reason for this request was that Italy, having taken her stand on the principle of political solidarity for the Italian race, could not consistently be a party, even indirectly, to any settlement of the war whereby the political entity of the Serbs would be threatened.

Austria's View.

The Austrian view was that Italy's demands were excessive and unacceptable. She intimated that she considered it astonishing that Italy, having declared herself neutral when the war began, should interfere in any settlement between Austria and Serbia, in addition to claiming for herself extensive territories possessed by Austria.

The two points of view were so far apart that a rupture seemed inevitable, but Prince von Buelow succeeded in averting such a scene. Negotiations were taken up afresh. Signor Sonnino stated that the minimum of Italian demands included, in addition to the clause concerning Serbia, cession of Austria of the entire provinces of Trent and of Istria with Triest and Pola, and also a certain number of the Dalmatian islands.

Austria Counters.

Austria came forward with counter suggestions, limiting the territory to be ceded to part of the province of Trent and certain other territory, excluding Pola and Triest. The latter city, under this arm, was to be transformed into a free town under Austrian suzerainty.

Italy definitely refused these proposals. It is asserted that Prince von Buelow came to the end of his resources when he suggested that Triest be made a Hanseatic town under international control and that he expected both Vienna and Rome to refuse.

It is understood that little has been accomplished since these last named proposals failed, and accordingly there is a feeling that Italy will have recourse to arms.

safe and strong upon the peaceful shores of prosperity and influence."

Three times, the secretary said, the country had evinced its faith in the democratic party by returning a Democratic congress of representatives. The foes of Democracy, he said, could find small comfort in the reduced majority of the Democrats in the next congress.

Party Kept Its Faith.

"Our party has kept its faith," he continued. "It has not been given orders by the people to revise the tariff downward only to answer by revising it upward. One thing at least no one dares say about the tariff law, namely that it was prepared by anybody in his own interest. Never was there a measure of the kind more free from personal taint, more purely intended for public as distinguished from private purposes." The secretary declared that the tariff was not a factor in "depressing business conditions" and that under the Underwood bill "we have gained something of industrial self respect."

The Federal reserve law, he said, has relapsed into the channels of trade vast sums formerly unnecessarily held back as reserves, and has taken away the basis of fear that produces panic.

"Look and see," he continued, "how many of our partisan opponents venture to rise in public and denounce the Federal reserve law. It is admitted on all hands, if not in words, at least in silence, by our adversaries that this thing has been well done. On it with confidence rest the operations of some of the very men who cry loudest in criticism of our policies.

Make Plain the Way.

"Aye, but business legislation. Well let us face the question of business legislation boldly, for concerning it there is naught we have to fear. We have made plainer the way of the honest business man; our opponents themselves being witnesses, the Clayton law and the Federal trade commission law are good. They put no obstacle in the way of any honorable man. They make his road more plain. They give him a forum in which he may be heard. They give him a point on which with more confidence he may lean.

"Let it be that criticism shall come," he concluded. "We shall be the better for it; but let it be that the criticism shall be fair and truthful and candid if it is not so, the criticism will fall of its own folly. If it is so the criticism will do us good. And when we shall approach in the coming year the decision for the future, let it be approached not with a scowl or a whine, not with the partial statement of half truths, but let the facts be known in all their frankness to the American people, and then, in God's name, let the best man win."

has reached an agreement with Great Britain and France that if she enters the war it will be contemporaneously with a concerted movement against Germany and Austria by all their opponents. The agreement is said to provide also for a new and permanent alliance between Italy and the powers of the Triple Entente.

French Statement.

Paris, April 29, 2:33 p. m.—The French war office today gave out a report on the progress of hostilities reading as follows:

"In Belgium we have continued to progress, in conjunction with Belgian troops, in a northerly direction. On the right bank of the Yser canal we took 150 prisoners as well as two machine guns.

"There is nothing new on the heights of the Meuse nor in the Vosges.

"The enemy has bombarded by means of flying machines and incendiary shells the open town of Epernay, occupied exclusively at that time by hospital detachments.

"Definite information which has come to hand sets forth that the Zeppelin airship which eight days ago threw bombs on Dunkirk was seriously damaged by our artillery. Finding it impossible to navigate further, the machine was wrecked in the trees between Bruges and Ghent."

German Statement.

Berlin, April 29, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—At army headquarters today the following statement was issued:

"All attacks against the German positions on the west bank of the canal north of Ypres failed.

"The number of cannon of the enemy captured by the Germans was increased to 83.

"Southeast of Verdun the German positions were advanced by more than 100 yards.

"Captured French soldiers confess that they were in great fear, having been told by their officers that the Germans shot all prisoners.

"South of Kalwarya, Russian Poland the Germans occupied the village of Kovale and the height a short distance south of Dachovo. South of Sochaczew the Germans conquered a Russian point of support."

Russians Occupy Loubnia.

Petrograd, April 29, via London.—The Russian occupation of Loubnia, a small village to the northwest of Uzsol pass, was a decided achievement in the Carpathian campaign in that it seriously endangers the important railroad line between the town of Uzsok and Berezna.

This railroad has enabled the Austrians to transfer troops almost instantly to any point on this part of the Carpathian front, a section which received the main force of the Russian drive toward Hungary. But the capture of Loubnia gives the Russian artillery an opportunity of commanding a part of the line and virtually dismantles it from further service.

will continue to use poisonous gases, the women of England are working valiantly to supply simple respirators for the men in the field, and thousands soon will be sent to the front.

Turkish Claims.

Constantinople, Tuesday, April 27, via Amsterdam, April 29 and via London, April 29.—There has been given out here an official announcement bearing on the fighting at the Dardanelles, which reads:

"Sighi Dere, to the west of Seddul Bahr, has been cleared of the enemy.

"The enemy, who landed near Kaba Tepeh, endeavored to maintain their positions under cover of their ships, but early in the morning our troops stormed these positions and forced the enemy back along the whole front inflicting severe losses on them. Part of the enemy fled in the direction of the sea and taking to their boats disappeared. Those unable to escape raised the white flag and surrendered in masses.

"A transport of the enemy was sunk off Ariburn.

"Later reports declare that hostile forces estimated at four brigades have been driven into sea on the coast at Kaba Tepeh.

Allies Successful.

London, April 29.—In a dispatch from Athens the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says that fierce fighting throughout Wednesday on the shores of Suvla bay, on the western side of the Gallipoli peninsula, eighteen miles north of the southern extremity, resulted in the success of the allies.

The losses of the Turks were serious. One entire battalion was captured by the allies.

The British force landed on the European coast of the Dardanelles has been entrusted solely with the mission of occupying the Gallipoli peninsula which is defended by 60,000 Turks.

The French force has been landed entirely on the Asiatic coast with the object of advancing along the littoral to keep pace with the progress made by the British on the opposite coast.

The bombardment of the straits was resumed Tuesday and lasted twelve hours. It was directed particularly at the Kilid Bahr forts.

The British war office issued the following announcement last night on the Dardanelles operations:

"In the face of continual opposition, the allied troops have now established themselves across the end of the Gallipoli peninsula, from a point northeast of Eski Hissrlik to the mouth of a stream on the opposite side.

"They have also beaten off all attacks at Sarl Earl and are steadily advancing."

"The Turks have made considerable preparation to hamper any landings. Wire entanglements under the sea, as well as on land, and deep pits with spikes at the bottom, were among the obstacles overcome by the troops."

ROOSEVELT EXCUSED FROM STAND AFTER LONG EXAMINATION

communication on that subject?"

"Yes."

"Did you accept after receiving the message?"

Another objection was sustained.

Later Col. Roosevelt said, "I accepted so as to gratify President McKinley."

"Do you remember hearing that any of the men named by Mr. Ivins contributed to your campaign fund in 1904?"

"Until after I left the presidency I never heard the names of those men as having been contributors. I heard most of them the first time when they were read here.

"I knew some people had contributed, but I didn't know how much. I knew of Henry Frick, George W. Perkins, Gifford Pinchot, the widow of Senator Hanna, and George Von L. Meyer. I also remember a widow who contributed a dollar."

"What did you do in regard to the New Haven railroad and the Harvester company?"

Harvester All Right.

"Action was taken against the New Haven. An investigation was made of the Harvester company and it was reported to me that it was all right."

The colonel then said he remembered an investigation had been made of the du Pont Powder company.

"Now, about the Northern Pacific railroad?"

An objection was sustained.

"Was action during your administration brought against the Standard Oil company?"

The court upheld another objection.

"Was any other action taken against any corporation in which Mr. Morgan or other gentlemen whose names appeared as contributors were interested, during your administration?"

An objection was sustained.

"Now, for the Tennessee Coal & Iron and the United States Steel corporation," said Mr. Bowers.

"When the merger took place," said the colonel, "I understood the Tennessee was so weak that the Steel corporation didn't consider it a dangerous competitor. The corporation controlled about 60 per cent of the output. The Tennessee had 1 9-10 per cent of total output. Subsequently the output of the Steel corporation shrunk to 54 per cent. The action occurred during the height of the panic of 1907. The prime interests of every citizen was that some measure should be taken to stop the panic and restore confidence. In New York the situation was trembling on a hair as to whether every business would have to be shut up. One night I received notice that next day Mr. Frick and Mr. Gary of the Steel corporation would come to see me. I had received thousands of appeals to do something.

In reply to questions, the colonel then said:

Consulted Platt.

"I always consulted Mr. Platt about appointing judges. I disregarded his advice on judges, however more than I did on anything else. Some of the judges I appointed I knew personally, by others I had the recommendation of men I knew or bar associations. In connection to higher courts, I always knew the man or knew all about him."

"While you were governor or president was there any invisible government over your part?"

"There was not one particle," replied the colonel, with great emphasis.

"Do you remember replying, at the close of the New York insurance investigation the testimony given by Senator Platt?"

"Yes."

The court would not allow the witness to answer a question on what the testimony was.

Start Argument.

The Roosevelt attorneys then started to argue against the court's ruling. Counsel for both principals leaned over the judge's bench and conferred with Justice Andrews, who said he didn't understand just what the object of the question was. The court held to its decision.

"Did the article," Mr. Bowers went on, "contain statements you believed to be true?"

The same objection was made and the same ruling was made. Mr. Bowers took an exception and the colonel made a few notes on a piece of paper.

Mr. Bowers then went on to ask the colonel about a speech he made in which he said the interests of "Mr. B" and "Mr. Mr." Barnes and Charles Murphy, were identical and that the former controlled Albany as the latter did New York.

"I object," said Mr. Ivins; "if we start that we'll have to investigate New York and Albany."

"You don't know how much you frighten me," replied Mr. Bowers.

Mr. Bowers then continued to question the witness by asking:

"Did you, in making this speech here, rely upon portions of the Bayne committee report, which have not been received in evidence?"

Objection Upheld.

The court upheld an objection by Mr. Ivins.

"You were asked on cross-examination questions about your residence when you were nominated for governor. Did Mr. Root make a speech upon the subject at the convention?"

"Yes," replied the colonel.

"And you were nominated?"

"Yes, unanimously."

"Were you advised by Mr. Root at the time you conferred with him that you were eligible?"

An objection was sustained.

"Did the attitude you took in your speeches after 1911 differ from the attitude concerning Mr. Barnes you took in 1910?"

An objection was sustained.

"What facts came to your knowledge that led you to change your mind about Mr. Barnes?"

There was another objection.

The court said:

"Why he has gone over that, I believe."

After a lengthy discussion Justice Andrews allowed the witness to proceed.

Mr. Bowers produced a letter.

"Did you see this in the spring of 1911?"

"Yes."

"How did you happen to see it?"

Duell Gave It to Him.

"Charles H. Duell gave it to me upon my return from South America May, 1911."

The letter was offered in evidence.

Justice Andrews read the letter, which was written by Charles S. Whitman, now governor of New York, who was then district attorney of New York county.

Mr. Ivins objected on the ground that Mr. Whitman was not a party to this action and that the letter did not mention Mr. Barnes specifically. The court ruled that if the colonel said he relied upon the letter and believed what Mr. Whitman wrote, a part of it would be received in evidence. The colonel said he did so believe and the letter was read. It was written on the stationery of the district attorney's office. The part read was as follows:

"In line with our last talk I agree with you that the time is ripe for an alliance of the Progressive Republicans and members of the national Progressive party as well as of all good citizens sharing their opinions to rid the state of the kind of party control which is mainly responsible for corrupt conditions which have been clearly shown in the various examinations and investigations which have been held during the past year. These conditions are not localized and the men and the policies responsible for them are not confined to any one party."

Referred to Plaintiff.

"Did you understand that letter referred to the plaintiff here?"

"I did."

"Did you know, as the letter says, that investigations had been made of the government?"

An objection was sustained.

A letter written by Harvey D. Hinman during the 1914 campaign was also produced. In it he said he thought the time had come when the organization leaders should step down. That ended the redirect examination of the witness. Counsel for Mr. Barnes immediately began the re-cross examination.

On re-cross-examination, Col. Roosevelt was asked:

"Was the Mr. Root who presided at the Chicago convention the same one who in 1908 made a speech about your tax affidavit?"

An objection was sustained.

Then Col. Roosevelt was asked:

"Was that Elihu Root?"

"It was," replied the colonel.

After a few more questions the colonel was excused from the stand.

Philip V. I. Schuyler of New York, an employe in the law department of the Mutual Life Insurance company was called.

He said he had brought papers with him in answer to subpoena. The papers were on a lawyer's brief case, and contents were marked as an exhibit.

A recess was then taken.

Possible Successor of Late Mrs. Clara Darrow

ALICE NELSON PAGE.

Fargo, N. D., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Alice Nelson Page of Grand Forks, among the numerous women suggested as successors to Mrs. Clara L. Darrow of Fargo, the late head of the woman suffrage movement in this state, seems to be the favorite.

There are a number of prominent workers over the state mentioned as the new head of the movement but there seems to be a disposition to let Mrs. Darrow's mantle fall upon the shoulders of Mrs. Page if the latter will accept. She is splendidly equipped for the work and extremely enthusiastic.

Invitations for the affair were sent out last week. About eighty couples are expected to attend. Miller's orchestra will play a program of sixteen dances. The committee in charge of the affair consists of J. H. Trux, B. W. Maxeiner, W. A. Putman and Stanley L. Mack.

Many Papers Collected By St. Anthony's Guild

The institute will buy at least one work that will be selected from the exhibition by a popular voting contest. The work will be added to the permanent collection of the institute.

Society Hears Talk on Suffrage.

In the suffrage talk made yesterday by Mrs. W. W. Lawrence at the meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Presbyterian church that was held at the home of Mrs. G. M. Larson, 1607 West Superior street, she mentioned that it has been said civilization rests upon four pillars—the church, the home, the school and the ballot. Mrs. Lawrence pointed out that women have a large part in the church, home and school, and that the world suffers when her influence is not felt in the ballot. She spoke of the civic and moral improvements that have been made in states where woman suffrage exists. Mrs. James McInnis, president of the society, presided and introduced the speaker.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

Avoid Family Rows.

In a talk with a lawyer as to what was the chief cause of most of the domestic quarrels that ultimately ended in the divorce courts, this man of legal mind would not agree with me that differences of opinion were responsible for most breaches.

In fact, the lawyer surprised me by stating, "Nothing so adds to the happiness of a household as a good, healthy difference of opinion on as many varying subjects as possible between a man and his wife."

In my opinion, and from my observation of and close friendship with any number of married people, I should say that something far removed from happiness usually results from what this lawyer terms "a good, healthy difference of opinion between a man and his wife."

Men and women are rarely so equally mated that their common intelligence will permit to hold good, healthy differences of opinion without precipitating a good, healthy row, if you will pardon my use of the expression in the slang sense. You will usually find that the happiest abide by one opinion, and if an individual member dares to have one of his own he airs it only when the arbiter of their lives is absent.

In the larger number of households it is still the husband and the father who decides matters of importance, and any difference of opinion, if persisted in, ends in unpleasantness if nothing worse, and after all this has been gone through, the only way to secure peace is to capitulate to the chief's way of thinking or doing. So there is neither use nor satisfaction in entering into a discussion founded upon difference of opinion when you well know beforehand who will have his way. You might better hold your tongue and in this way preserve peace and dignity.

There are, of course, married people who are tolerant of each other's views and who have tact enough to avoid the disagreeable elements which a difference of opinion brings forcibly to the fore. Such people sometimes respect each other's ideas, and, though they cannot make them their own, are not averse to having them followed by those who do believe them.

Most people are intolerant of each other's views and are constantly trying to convince one another that their way of thinking and acting is the only way. They quarrel and become enemies because neither can be argued out of his opinion. I would not presume to advise you concerning the difference of opinion between friends, but as between husband and wife, the fewer the merrier.

Duluth's New Leading Woman Is From Blue Grass Region

MISS ANNE BRONAUGH.

Miss Anne Bronaugh, new leading woman of the Baldwin Players, arrived in Duluth yesterday and has begun rehearsals for her debut with the company Sunday afternoon.

Miss Bronaugh has just completed an engagement of eighty-four weeks with the Winnipeg Stock company. Including brief vacations, she has spent virtually two years in Winnipeg.

"Winnipeg has given its stock company wonderful support, despite the war," said Miss Bronaugh last evening. "They play to capacity at every performance."

Miss Bronaugh is a Kentuckian, having been born in the heart of the Blue Grass country, at Lexington. She is of French ancestry and does not belie her ancestry, having many of the characteristics of the French, black eyes and hair and vivacious smile. It is her ambition not to be recognized as "an actress" on the streets.

"I don't carry a dog," she said last evening, "and I don't lead one by a string. If I can escape being spotted a block away as a 'member of the profession' I am happy. There is no reason why women in our profession should not dress and comport themselves like human beings, and no reason why we should dress differently on the street from a stenographer or any other business woman. I try to save all my clothes money for stage gowns."

In addition to her stock work at Winnipeg and previous to that at Des Moines and the Princess theater, Chicago, Miss Bronaugh has appeared as leading woman with James K. Hackett and Sidney Drew.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Baldwin Players in "Charley's Aunt."
ORPHEUM—International vaudeville.
NEW GRAND—Vaudeville and motion pictures.
REX—"When We Were Twenty-one," photoplay.

Only four more performances of "Charley's Aunt" will be given at the Lyceum, and patrons THEIR FARE-WELL WEEK. of the Baldwin company will have but four more opportunities of seeing Homer Barton and Miss Doris Olsen before the leave Duluth.

Both of these favorites with Baldwin patrons will leave the company Saturday night, when the last performance of "Charley's Aunt" will be given.

A. Romaine Callender is making a decided hit this week in the role of the bogus aunt. It is his first week with the company and he is providing a large share of the comedy for Lyceum patrons this week.

It cannot be said that the Orpheum theater is not offering the best there is in the way of NEXT WEEK'S ORPHEUM BILL. vaudeville talent, as a glance over the coming week's bill gives indication of it being almost an all-feature program. Besides the well known comedian, Nat. M. Wills, the highest of all high potentates of laughter, there will also be featured on the bill Mme. Jeanne Jomelli, of the Metropolitan Opera company. Mme. Jomelli is among the most noted singers of the day and in concert and opera alike has gained an international reputation. Her beautiful and carefully trained voice will be heard in selections from the various operas with which her name has been identified.

Other features of the bill will be Fisher & Green in a one-act comedy skit entitled "Partners," which is a sort of condensed version of Potash & Perlmutter, Mr. Hymack, "The Chameleon Comedian," adds another comedy feature to the bill. Fritz & Lucy Brach, cello and violin virtuosi, Krenka Brothers, eccentric comedy acrobats, and the Pantzer Duo in a comedy contortion novelty number complete the bill.

Comedy predominates in the new bill opening at the popular New Grand this afternoon, but there is COMEDY AT THE GRAND. it a thoroughly enjoyable one.

DULUTH WINS AGAIN.

Duluth has won again, and the whole Northwest ought to rejoice at the fact. The interstate commerce commission has decided once more in favor of the 21-cent differential in the rates to the Twin Cities and to Duluth, and by that decision another effort on the part of Minneapolis to take away Duluth's natural advantages of position, is frustrated. What is more, the 21-cent spread in rates is definitely established for two years, and that in itself is a decided gain.

What this decision by the commission means to Duluth is hardly greater than what it means to the whole Northwest, or can mean if the commercial interests of this section will but take advantage of it. Water competition with railroads is one of the greatest benefits the shippers of any country can have, but these benefits have been denied for years to the great Northwest through the manipulation of rates and the domination of lake traffic by the railroad systems.

By the lake-and-rail rate case decision the shippers gained a point toward a square deal in rates. This new decision makes that gain secure for at least two years, and does not stand in the way of a still greater gain at the end of that time through the possible increase of the differential.

In other words, what this decision means to the Northwest is just this: That instead of paying top notch freight rates on all shipments of goods from or to the East, as they have been compelled to do in the past, shippers and buyers can now specify lake or lake-and-rail routings and get the benefit of the 21 cents difference in rates by having shipments come via Duluth instead of via the Twin Cities. Thus thousands of dollars can be saved in a single year by the shippers by adopting the routing via Duluth.

Claims of victory by the Twin Cities probably will follow the rate decision, in view of the failure of the interstate commerce commission to approve the railroads' proposal to establish a 28-cent differential as between the Twins and Duluth; and to a certain extent that claim will be justified. But it is not a victory over Duluth, for Duluth did not propose the 28-cent differential.

On the other hand the Twin Cities did propose, and sought to obtain, a reduction of the present differential to 15 cents, but that proposal was so manifestly unjust to the rest of the Northwest that the interstate commerce commission discarded it entirely.

So the decision is in fact a victory for Duluth and the Northwest, through the rejection of the Twin Cities' efforts to force the payment of exorbitant rates in spite of the natural advantages due to the possibility of lake traffic, just for the sake of diverting traffic through the Twins.

The decision, on the face of reports thus far received, is an indisputable and valuable victory for Duluth and the Northwest, and a just rebuke to that selfishness that would force injustice on an entire section of the country for the purpose of local benefits.

Maybe we're going to get those spring rains in the summer.

A WAKING UP.

Down in Faribault there has been a decided and notable waking up among the liquor dealers. Instead of following the traditional custom of hunting out ways to avoid obeying the law, they have clubbed together and hired a private detective to keep minors and habitual drunkards out of saloons; to check up and bring to time any liquor men who disobey the law; and to help run down unlicensed places. In addition to this they have asked the city to make more drastic provisions for the control of the liquor traffic, so as to correct some abuses that have not been amenable to the law in the past.

It was an election that scared these men into wakefulness, and now that they are awake they are doing what sane men in the same kind of business would long ago have seen was necessary.

Probably the Faribault lesson will not be taken everywhere. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," it is said, and surely nothing ever indicated more senseless insanity than the policy of law evasion that has been followed by liquor interests ever since there was any restrictive law to evade.

The liquor interests are having a tough time these days, but they have none to blame but themselves. Their madness of the past is leading to its logical and inevitable result.

Evidently some paving inspectors need to be taught that they are hired to inspect, not just to retrospect.

THOSE WASTE PAPER BOXES.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the city commission can find some way of getting rid of the waste paper boxes that have been stood in prominent places in the business section. The old council very evidently failed to appreciate the significance of the action when the proposal for placing these boxes was being considered, and the result has been the giving away to outsiders of valuable rights that are denied to our own citizens.

Commissioner Farrell has announced that he will ask the city attorney to study the contract made with the advertising concern with a view to seeing what can be done towards abrogating the agreement. If any means can be found to accomplish that action, it should be put into effect at once.

We have grown very strict as regards the use of the sidewalks and even their own store fronts by our local merchants, men who help to support local interests and who pay considerable sums annually into the city treasury in the form of taxes. It is manifestly unjust to allow to outside interests privileges on our streets that are denied to those more nearly entitled to them.

Members of the city council have said they did not understand that the boxes were to be placed as they are, where they are not only an eyesore, but a nuisance. If they can be removed to other less obtrusive localities, that would be a gain. But if possible they should be got rid of altogether, at least as they are being used at present.

Part of the Sixth street paving is said to be "too light in the base" and "too thin in the surface." Presumably there is nothing else the matter with it.

PRESIDENT COTTON.

There is every reason to congratulate the Commercial club on its acquisition of the services of Joseph B. Cotton as president. Mr. Cotton is one of the most efficient professional men of the city, and with his experience among men and his executive ability he will be able to keep the club's aims and activities on an exceedingly high plane.

Mr. Cotton will bring initiative energy and enthusiasm to the work of carrying out objects that are worth the effort, and his qualities will be given exceptional opportunities in this position. He will find that he is getting the earnest and effective support of the men associated with him in the club, and there can be no doubt that he will carry on to still greater purpose the work so ably directed by David Williams, the retiring president.

The Duluth Commercial club has been most exceptionally fortunate in its selection of presidents, and with the election of Mr. Cotton to that position an honorable list is given a notable addition.

Now come reports of insects damaging the wheat in the Far West. We can at least hope that these are some of those insects that are born in and never leave the wheat pits.

POPPY LOTS.

There seems to be no small value in the suggestion that vacant lots in the city be sown to poppies, and so made into veritable seas of color instead of being left to fill up with weeds of various and unsightly natures. There are a good many sites that would be distinctly improved by such a splash of color.

But there are one or two things that ought to be considered first, and one of these is the nature of the poppy. Is there anything about its growth or its effect on the soil, when allowed to grow in profusion, that would make it undesirable to plant it so generally? It would be well for the advocates of the plan to look into that question before urging it too strongly.

Another question that should be asked about each lot before any poppies are sown there is whether some family would not like to get the use of that space for a vegetable garden. If any such can be found, there should be no wasteful sowing of poppies, for the vegetable garden is infinitely more profitable, and the soil could better be used for that purpose than for the growing of uncultivated flowers.

The poppy lot plan is attractive, and has value. But we want to avoid any action that may result in the spread of an agricultural pest, and we don't want to use ground in this way that could better be put to practical purposes.

But we'll never reach the point where non-partisanship in baseball will seem desirable.

A Message From Lincoln

Editorial in the New York World.

During one of the darkest and most difficult periods of the Civil war a volunteer committee called at the White House to express its dissatisfaction with various actions and various omissions of the administration.

To the complaints of this committee President Lincoln replied:

Gentlemen, suppose all the property you were worth was in gold and you had put it in the hands of Blondin, to carry across the Niagara river on a rope. Would you shake the cable or keep shouting to him, "Blondin, stand up a little straighter—Blondin, stoop a little more—go a little faster—lean a little more to the south?" No; you would hold your breath as well as your tongue, and keep your hands off until he was safe over. The government is carrying an enormous weight. Untold treasures are in their hands; they are doing the best they can. Don't badger them. Keep silence, and we will get you safe across.

What Lincoln said then applies with equal force to the present situation. "The government is carrying an enormous weight"—the heaviest weight that any president or any administration has carried since the Civil war.

The issue of peace or war, so far as the United States is concerned, may depend upon the loyalty and patriotism with which the American people sustain their president and their government. "Don't badger them!"

It was fifty years ago today that Abraham Lincoln died; but the lips that are now dust still carry a message of supreme wisdom to the American people. Let them heed it. Let them abide by his counsel.

London Has Too Much Shade

London Chronicle: We are all agreed that trees improve the appearance of our streets and afford pleasant relief to an eye wearied by too much pavement and bricks and mortar. And we are all fairly well agreed that these streets, with nice, leafy trees on their sidewalks, should be the streets in which other people live. That has always been the difficulty since London local authorities turned their attention to tree planting in residential districts.

In their infancy the plane tree and Tree of Heaven, the two varieties that are usually chosen for the purpose, are pretty and inoffensive, but they are quick growers, with spreading branches, and the time comes when they develop into a nuisance, shutting out the sunlight and air in the months of foliage and filling the house with decayed vegetation in the autumn.

Prof. J. B. Farmer of the Imperial College of Science and Technology, who has prepared a special report on tree planting in London for the Kensington council, says that, as a general rule, the streets most suitable for trees are those which run north and south. Then the trees on both sides of the road receive their due share of sunlight, and the houses on neither side are unfairly deprived of their light.

They adds that in streets running east and west the trees are apt to become a nuisance to the people who live on the north-facing side of the road.

The improved condition of the London atmosphere, within recent years, according to the report, renders the experiment of varying the kinds of trees to be planted a hopeful one. Prof. Farmer suggests the lime, the single-leaved ash, Belle's poplar and the pink hybrid chestnut.

The Crippled Circus.

Indianapolis News: It is with deep regret that the circuses bow to the authority of the Federal government. If some one somewhere had not shipped into this country the fundamentals of the hoof and mouth disease, the circuses would not, this fine spring, be placed in an embarrassing position. The bureau of animal industry has ruled that menageries containing certain animals subject to infection shall not be transported from state to state. There are numbers of circuses now preparing to break winter quarters. The one in which Indiana is chiefly interested is the Hagenbeck-Wallace show, which has been in training at Peru. Other circuses notified by the government are quartered at Baraboo, Wis., Bridgeport, Conn., Cincinnati and Denver. The animals which may not be exhibited on its travels are: Zebus, camels, llamas, giraffes, antelopes, peccaries, deer, buffaloes and bison.

Already we can see a large part of the joy extracted from the coming summer. What is a menagerie without a zebu, or a llama, or a peccary? And more than all, what is there worth while in the animal tent when there is no giraffe? A zebu, what is a zebu? Not a zebra, no, that is a sort of a horse. But if a zebu in quarantine, why not a zebra? A peccary is a sort of hog. How many circus visitors know the difference between a North American bison and an African or a Philippine buffalo? Very few, probably.

There is much satisfaction to be derived from the fact that elephants and lions and tigers are safe. Thus we judge that they are immune to the ravages of the hoof and mouth disease.

Good for the Fish.

South Bend Tribune: It is said that the war in Europe is making it possible for the fish to multiply and restock the fishing grounds, which goes to show that there's no evil without its compensation. Plenty of fish will make cheap food for Europe after the war. After such a senseless conflict, no doubt a little brain food will be in great demand over there.

Thankful Kansans.

Emporia Gazette: There's always something to be thankful for. The mud in Kansas is deep, but we don't have to wade around in it shooting at people.

The Political Lodging-House

By Sawyard.

Washington, April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a standpat organ in this town it is gleefully asserted that recently Col. Roosevelt delivered himself of this: "I would prefar to go to bed again with Penrose and Barnes rather than to see the Wilson-Bryan combination successful again in 1916." The same narrative contains tidings, plainly asserted, that the colonel will be a "dark horse" in the Republican national convention next year. Why should he be a dark horse? It is proclaimed from the housetops, morn, noon and night, that the Progressives have returned to the G. O. P. If so, that gives them a pronounced majority. They can shape the platform and name the ticket, so why employ any skullduggery to fetch about the selection of the colonel who is the ideal of the majority? Why should he go to bed with Penrose and Barnes? Possibly there is some mistake in the roseate yarn that the party is again a unit. There must be unless one faction has abjectly surrendered to the other.

The Democrats are content, are rejoiced, when contemplating an opposition that has to go to bed with Penrose and with Barnes. And that is what it amounts to, for in 1916 the chief, only and paramount issue will be this, simply this, only this: Aldrichism against Wilsonism. Let the country choose between the two isms. There has been an irrepressible conflict between right and wrong, between honesty and knavery, in this wicked world we live in, ever since the murder of Abel. It is not yet fought to a finish, but there will be a big political battle between the two forces in our glorious Union next year.

What a grand sight it will be when Teddy takes the leadership, and Penrose and Barnes shall join in the triumphal strain, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," as the Armageddon for the Lord is renewed in 1916—Penrose and Barnes the Bluchers of the day! Of course, Plutocrat Archbold of the Standard Oil will be the Chadband of the occasion, with an oleaginous "Bless you, my children," when the battle is over, the victory won, and Aldrichism again installed. Will Jane Addams attend the inauguration ball and dance the tango with Uncle Joe Cannon? Will Beveridge go to bed with Fairbanks? No, no, we must draw the line there. It is too utterly awful. Cut that out. With whom shall we bed the Hon. Clapp? It matters not. He has an enormous mouth for biscuit. Curry and sherbet are all one to that palate, for the Hon. Clapp can talk more like a Progressive and act more like a standpatter than any one of the entire bunch.

I doubt if you can put Victor Murdock in the same bed with Lorimer, and I am sure that either Pinchot will object to recruiting into the ranks of Christian soldier magnates of Wall Street and Pittsburgh. But politics makes strange bedfollows. In 1881 the Republican party, while proclaiming that the national debt was a sacred obligation, went to bed with Mahone, the repudiator, and there might have been a multitude of Mahones if it had not been for Ben Hill.

Mr. Dixon, former senator from Montana and chairman of the Progressive national committee, in an interview advises the G. O. P. that 1916 is not going to be a "taller dog" year, and he opines that unless the Republicans nominate Mr. Cummins, or one of his ilk, the Democrats will win. He says no standpatter can succeed and that is quite likely. Cummins is one of the statesmen who advocated progressive principles, but voted for standpat candidates. Of such it is said that though they speak with the tongues of men and of angels they are become as sounding brass or tinkling cymbal. And again it is written, "Oh, ye of little faith!" The death of Mr. Cummins' former colleague, Mr. Dolliver, was a great misfortune, a sore loss to Iowa, to America, to mankind. He was on the road out of the wilderness, and he was big enough to lead out of it.

Mr. Cummins' present colleague, Mr. Kenyon, is another gentleman of great faith and no works, as are Norris and Borah. Not one of them but would prefer Penrose for president to Wilson. They believe that the worst Republican is fitter for political preferment than the best Democrat. It is a pity that these gentry are not of the caliber of the late Carl Schurz, who was like Martin Luther—when he started to Worms he went to Worms. Dolliver was another man of that stamina and he had started to Worms when stricken by the Grim Reaper.

Now, what is the matter with Wilson? Nobody can deny that he is a virile constructive statesman, and great constructive statesmen are rarer than great poets. He is a thoroughgoing man. He held congress to its duty for nearly two years, and that congress turned out more constructive statecraft than any other in our history. He is a man of powerful intellect, of iron will, of sternest integrity—qualities of an ideal president. He is a clean man in every relation of life, a statesman, a patriot, a Christian. His mind is as broad as it is acute and his love of country embraces every section, every state, every community. He is a just man and justice is the greatest attribute of God.

Give his policies a fair trial when tranquillity shall succeed the present turmoil in which the world is engulfed. The entire country cried out for change of men and measures in 1912. We have had a change of men and a change of measures.

A just people will give these new men and new measures a chance. Mr. Dixon is right. Next year is not a "yaller dog" year.

The Sleepy Song.

As soon as the fire burns red and low,
And the house upstairs is still,
She sings me a queer little sleepy song
Of sheep that go over the hill.

The good little sheep run quick and soft,
Their colors are gray and white;
They follow their leader nose to tail,
For they must be home by night.

And one slips over and one comes next,
And one runs after behind.
The gray one's nose at the white one's tail,
The top of the hill they find.

And when they get to the top of the hill
They quickly slip away.
But one runs over and one comes next,
Their colors are white and gray.

And over they go, and over they go,
And over the top of the hill
The good little sheep run quick and soft,
And the house upstairs is still.

And one slips over and one comes next,
The good little, gray little sheep!
I watch how the fire burns red and low,
And she says that I fall asleep.

Seeing America First

By Fred C. Kelly.

From Diary:

People dwelling in San Francisco, and in New York city have one trait in common. In both towns the residents have a tendency to lose sight of the fact that there is a considerable stretch of continent lying beyond their own immediate locality.

The point of view of the San Franciscan may be illustrated by a conversation I overheard the other morning between a resident and a tourist. San Francisco is located on a peninsula which parallels the mainland and the visitor did not have the lay of things quite correctly in his mind. So the San Francisco man explained it to him like this: "Take your left hand," says he, "palm upward. The thumb is San Francisco. The index finger clear on down to the wrist is the rest of California, the space between your thumb and finger being the bay. Over on your little finger somewhere is New York city. In between there and the index finger is the rest of the continent. Doesn't that make it plain?"

A map of the United States drawn according to that description would just about represent the Californian's idea of the relative size of the rest of the country.

The difference between the California and the New York point of view, however, is this:

The California man really knows that there is a sizable chunk of continent beyond him, and only his enthusiasm gives over-emphasis to his own state. But the average New Yorker really and truly believes that beyond Jersey City to the west lies nothing except peace.

Here is another incident that seems to illustrate the all-sufficiency of California to a Californian. A visitor from Kentucky was chatting with a man at San Francisco.

"I see you're from the South," observed the San Franciscan; "I'm a Southerner myself."

"Ah, is that so?" beamed the Kentuckian. "What part of the South?"

"Oh"—blandly and with perfect composure—"from Southern California."

As one Middle Westerner expressed it:

"Each and every Californian talks as if there were not to exceed two towns in the whole world and he owned one of them."

One of the delights of San Francisco is the calm, self-contained manner in which the natives will boast of their climate even in the midst of a raw, drizzling rain. And if there is any detail of the weather there that is really a liability, that is the very feature they like to pick up and feature as an asset. For example, before reaching San Francisco, I heard much of fogs.

"If it wasn't for the fogs, the climate there would be extremely healthful and invigorating," a Southern Californian told me."

The first man I talked to about weather in San Francisco was a waiter. He seemed to have intuitively sensed the fact that I had heard in advance of the fogs. In fact it was foggy and chilly even as I gave him my breakfast order.

"Nice fog this morning," he remarked without cracking a smile.

"Do they have these fogs all the time?" I inquired.

"Oh, no, not all the time—just enough to make everything nice," he replied, cheerfully. "You know they are very good for one's health, sir. We have scarcely any sickness here. I think it must be on account of the heavy fogs."

A Life Philosophy

St. Louis Republic: Some men who attain old age in good health and high spirits like to offer advice to the young. "Go thou and do likewise," they say in effect, "by doing as I have done." "As I have done" may mean total abstention from intoxicating beverages or a regular, though moderate, indulgence therein; giving the life-long adamantine stare to the soothing, if seductive, Goddess Nicotine; or flirting unashamed with the weed-born deity; sleeping eight hours a day, eating regularly, working steadily.

John Burroughs, best beloved of living American writers, had a birthday last week, his 78th. Burroughs lives up in the Rip Van Winkle country, but he has been awake all his 78 years and has lived every day of his life with eyes wide open and face to the front. Though for many years past he has lived "much to himself," as the phrase goes, he has not lived altogether for himself. What he has lived in his ever-youthful heart and seen with his unaging eyes he has put in books which have carried his kindly life and high vision into the lives of others.

Somebody asked John Burroughs for a bit of birthday advice. There must have been a merry twinkle in his eyes when he replied:

"Keep cheerful and mind your own business."

Those few simple words cover the life-philosophy of a man who has kept himself young almost four-score years. The philosophy of John Burroughs of "Slabsides" may not be Bergsonian, nor Nietszchian, nor even William Jamesiensian, but it is recommended to any man or woman who is seeking a saving creed of conduct, both as to spirit and to deed. Is anything more conducive to long life and happiness than just keeping cheerful and minding your own business?

Justice Stumbles Over Laws.

Judge William N. Gemmill of Chicago in the March Case and Comment: The last fifty years have more than doubled the "thou shalt nots" that have been written into our criminal laws.

It is not to be wondered at that crime is increasing, when we have forty-eight legislatures and a congress engaged almost unceasingly in making new laws, every one of which will be broken many times. Nature seems to have entered into a conspiracy to help the man who helps himself, and to handicap the man who either can't or won't help himself, so the man and woman who possess good health, good training and good morals seem to be helped along by every wind that blows, but he who has not these endowments finds the storm of life always increasing.

One whose nose is always upon the grindstone is not much of a moral uplifter; in fact, he is much nearer a criminal than the one who has a sufficient amount of leisure to enjoy some of the fruits of life. The vast majority of our delinquents have broken under the long continued strain of unrelieved work and poverty. Never before have we recognized as fully as now that this great body of men and women do not belong to a criminal class, but are simply those who have, for one reason or another, arrived at the foot of the same class to which we all belong, either because they did not have the opportunities and advantages of the rest of us, or because they have failed to take advantage of such opportunities as came to them.

First Non-Partisan State Legislature

Suggestions and Comments From the State Press.

Prepared for the Worst.

Olivia Times: When the history of the present legislature is written we will then see just how bad it is.

Not Extreme Either Way.

Virginia Enterprise: The legislative assembly of the state of Minnesota has not been one of any considerable accomplishment. However, it has been far from a failure, for it is unfair and only results in disappointment to expect too much from any legislature. The present has given us the county option law, relegated the economy and efficiency plan and has kept from cumbering the statute books of the state with a lot of useless and needless legislation. In the house there has been an apparent lack of leadership. The result has been to delay consideration of many important matters and to take more time than should be necessary in disposing of others that were relatively unimportant. However, the non-partisan legislature as a whole has been a distinct success. It has not been a legislature easily handled. There is only one way to improve it and that is to elect men to it who are bigger and better qualified than those now serving. This district has been especially fortunate in its representation at St. Paul this winter, but it is apparent there are still sections of the state where the importance of electing strong men is not yet sufficiently impressed upon the people.

A Partisan View.

Winona Leader: Clique rule in the legislature supplanted party power and the devil is to pay.

A Stand-Off.

Cambridge North Star: This session of the legislature developed few big men and squelched few small ones.

Drastic Desire Voiced.

Slayton Herald: The legislature failed to bring up one bill which, if put to the vote of the people, would carry overwhelmingly. We refer to a bill which would bring about a ten-year adjournment of that august body. The only things of note that the legislatures of the last ten years have done is the spending of the people's money, and they, the fellows who comprise the legislature, should bring about the halt. Minnesota has sufficient laws to carry her for the next century, still a neat sum is spent yearly in making new ones.

Too Many Fingers.

Aurora News: A small legislative body would work out much to the good in Minnesota. With too many fingers in the pie—and some of them real long ones—it is difficult to get anywhere. Fewer men who would get right down to business could accomplish something worth while. The difference in the present senate and house in the conduct of state business is convincing.

Probably Earned It.

Litchfield Independent: Why not give members of the legislature the title of L. L. D., doctors of laws.

Surprisingly Good.

Elk River Star-News: The legislature is at the end of its string, leaving many things undone and having done some things that might as well have been left undone. However, the legislature has not been so bad as it might have been—in fact there is some surprise that it came out as well as it did. In the matter of economy it has done well, the appropriations having been cut down quite materially and the ground broken for important legislation two years hence.

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Quinlivan, the Sunshine Man.

Mr. McCheyne says: "I was once permitted to unite in celebrating the Lord's Supper in an upper room in Jerusalem. There were fourteen present, and most of whom I had good reason to believe knew and loved the Lord Jesus Christ. Several were godly Episcopalians, two were converted Jews—one a Christian converted at Nazareth. The bread and wine were dispensed in the Episcopal manner. We felt it to be sweet fellowship with Christ and with the brethren, and we left the upper room and looked out upon the Mount of Olives, we remembered with calm joy the prayer of our Lord: 'That they may all be one.'"

Cradle an infant on the softest bed,
Soothe it with songs of lullaby to rest;
More gently will it lay its little head,
More sweetly slumber on its mother's breast,
Where the first draught of life and health it found;
There will its sleep be sweet, its slumber sound.
Return, my soul, to God, thine only rest;
There, and there only, art thou truly blest.

Show Mercy.

Micah gives us the divine program for human life almost in a sentence. He includes every essential of life, but specifies three duties, equity and mercy, which are toward man, and to walk humbly with God, which implies prayer and obedience. But here is the program of life as prescribed by the prophet: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" That is not only the program of life for the children of men, but it is the path of the just; that shineth more and more unto the perfect day, in the wake of which the world grows happier and happier. The element of mercy makes way for joy on earth and in heaven. Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy. The reflex influence of mercy on the one who exercises himself therein is mighty.

Dayton, Ohio.

The Cross on St. Sophia.

Harper's Weekly: To the Slavic mind, the fall of Constantinople will be the greatest military event in centuries, perhaps since Charles Martel averted the last probability that Asia would overflow Europe. Forcing the Dardanelles gives to the Russian imagination something to take hold of. It gives to the peasant something brilliantly real to him. His mind pictures the cross after all these centuries shining at last bright on St. Sophia. If he identifies the holy conquest of Constantinople with the feats of England and France, and realizes their willingness to help his country carry out the dream of centuries, there is no danger of his losing the readiness to sacrifice.

Ambiguous Terms.

Baltimore American: "I read out to my wife a headline this morning about the Ottoman massacre."

"Wasn't she horrified?"

"Not she. Thought it was a cut-rate bargain sale in a furniture store."

One View of Social Reform.

Louisville Post: A former controller of the city of New York makes the following profound remarks relative to the widespread agitation for "social reform":

Our student will marvel at the correspondence between morphological changes in gullibility and gulling. He will smile to see a generation pluming itself upon its evolutionary advance because its superstitions no longer support broom-riding witches and pop-eyed hobgoblins, but have become the sustaining media of sociological flibberty-gibbets.

These are the words of a true-blue reactionary in fine frenzy rolling. They, no doubt, express in about as coherent a form as the aforesaid reactionaries can get together the views of that class in regard to many of the staggering proposals we now have before us for "social reform." Many of us who are not reactionaries are a little dazed by the goings-on of the sociologists.

POEMS ASKED FOR.

The Herald acknowledges with thanks the receipt of the following poems:

"The Tramp's Dream," from Mrs. Carl Thiel of Hibbing.

"Sweet Adeline," from Miss H. Nelson of Duluth.

"The Tramp's Dream."

Trudging along, shunned by the throng,
There trudged a wretched old tramp;
Hungry and worn, clothes to shreds torn,
Yet still with the morning dew damp.
Now in the square he watches there
The children who play with their toys.
Soon his eyes close, sleep downs his woes,
He dreams of the past and its joys.

II.

He's dreaming of the friends of his childhood,
Of the glad days he roamed through the wild wood,
Of his boyhood sweetheart and their little doggerit
And the flowers that grew by the stream.
Of the crime that made him a drunkard,
Of the two forsaken graves in the churchyard,
Of his mother's last kiss and the joys he had missed,
Were all pictured in the poor old tramp's dream.

III.

Startled he wakes, truth on him breaks,
Alas it is only a dream;
Pleasures ne'er last, past remains past,
And dreams are his whole joys supreme.
Still he'll live on, till life is gone,
'Tis too late to mend his bad ways.
Still through regret he'll ne'er forget
The dream of his once happy days.

"Sweet Adeline."

In the evening when I sit alone adreaming
Of days gone by, love, to me so dear,
There's a picture that in fancy oft appearing Brings back the time, love, when you were near.
It is then I wonder where you are, my darling,
And if your love for me is still the same,
For the sighing wind and nightingale asinging
Are breathing only your own sweet name.

Chorus:

Sweet Adeline, my Adeline,
At night, dear heart, for you I pine.
In all my dreams, your fair face beams,
You're the idol of my heart, sweet Adeline.

II.

I can see your smiling face as when we wandered
Down by the brookside just you and I
And it seems so real at times till I awaken
To find all vanished a dream gone by.
If we meet perhaps in after years my darling,
I trust that I will find your love still mine.
Though the days are sad and clouds above are hovering,
The sun again love, for me would shine.

Have Wenger store your furs. Melrose 1201; Grand 2343-Y.

TIME FOR HEARING FRANK CASE NOT SET

Atlanta, Ga., April 29.—No time for hearing Leo M. Frank's application for commutation to life imprisonment of his death sentence after conviction of the murder of Mary Phagan, will be set until after the supreme court of the United States has issued its mandate, which probably will be on May 19. The court denied his application for hearing on habeas corpus.

At the governor's office, it was said that more than 15,000 letters bearing on Frank's application had been received.

With few exceptions, the writers urged that the sentence be commuted. Governor-elect Harris also is receiving large numbers of letters.

Benson Made Chief.

Washington, April 29.—Secretary Daniels has announced the appointment of Capt. William S. Benson to the newly created post of chief of operations of the navy. Capt. Benson now is commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard.

C. A. PARKER SUMMONED

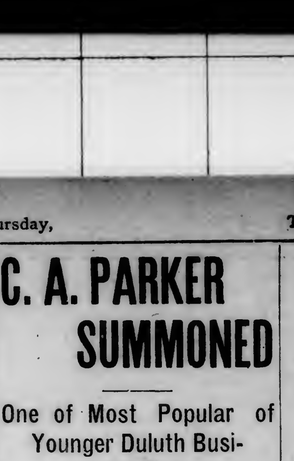

One of Most Popular of Younger Duluth Business Men.

For Twenty-Five Years Identified With Wholesale Trade.

Charles A. Parker, treasurer of the Rust-Parker company, wholesale grocers, and for the last twenty-five years one of the best known men in Duluth's wholesale district, died at St. Joseph's hospital, St. Paul, last night at 5:45 o'clock. He was 41 years old.

Ten days ago Mr. Parker returned from Pass Christian, Miss., where he had been since early in February for his health. He went from Duluth to St. Paul, where he was operated upon for gall stones. Three days ago physicians gave up hopes of his recovery, but in the interval he rallied, until last night, when he suddenly took a turn for the worse.

Mr. Parker, known throughout the city as "Charlie" Parker, has been with the Rust-Parker company since 1910, when it was organized as the Rust-Parker-Martin company. During this time he has held the position of treasurer and purchasing agent.

In 1891 Mr. Parker began work with the Wells-Stone Mercantile company, and remained with them until 1896, when the firm consolidated with the Stone-Ordean company. He was buyer for the Stone-Ordean-Wells company for several years, remaining in the firm until 1910, when the Rust-Parker-Martin company was formed.

Mr. Parker married Miss Mildred Cooper of this city, who survives him. In addition to the widow he is survived by two children, Charles and Ann; a sister, Mrs. Mary Kramer of Duluth, and two brothers, Frank E. and Joseph, P., also of this city.

Mrs. Parker and Frank E. Parker, who were in St. Paul with Mr. Parker, will return to Duluth tonight with the body. A delegation from the Elks' lodge, of which Mr. Parker was a member, will meet the train and escort the body to the Parker home, 1906 East Third street.

In addition to his membership in the Elks' club, Mr. Parker held a membership in the Commercial club and in a Duluth chapter, U. C. T. He was a sportsman of some note, being an ardent hunter and fishman, and spent a great deal of his spare time in the woods.

Funeral services have not been arranged, pending the arrival from St. Paul of Mrs. Parker.

CROP REVIEW OF NORTH COUNTRY

Pennington, Polk, Koochiching and Other Counties Make Reports.

St. Paul, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Commissioner of Immigration Sherman today gave out another installment of county crop reports furnished by his reporters in the counties indicated, those of Northern Minnesota showing conditions especially fine, as follows:

Pennington—Seeding began about April 12, and the grain is beginning to peep through. The ground is in excellent condition with just the right amount of moisture. No farm hands needed at present. Many new families coming in—in one case twenty-nine carloads of settlers' effects were unloaded in three weeks in March along the twenty miles of new electric road east of Thief River Falls.

Koochiching—The spring opened up fully twenty days earlier here this year and the season has been the best in years. Seeding began April 15 and is about one-fourth done. The ground is in good condition with plenty of moisture. Looking for a large increase of settlers.

Norman—Seeding began April 9. Wheat seeding about finished; oats 60 per cent done. The ground is in the best of condition with the right amount of moisture for spring work. Winter rye is looking fine with not a spot winter killed. A large number of settlers coming in.

Martin—Seeding began April 9 and is three-fourths done. Ground is in splendid condition with just enough moisture. No farm hands needed at present. Probably 100 farmers came in here this spring.

Wadena—Some farmers are all through seeding, and probably 75 per cent or 80 per cent of seeding is done. Ground is in good shape. We have had rains and plenty of moisture. Quite a number of new farmers coming in here this spring.

Mille Lacs—Wheat all in and some oats. Ground in very good condition with plenty of moisture up to date. Quite a few farmers coming in.

Two-Thirds Seeded.

Polk—Seeding began April 5 and is about two-thirds done. Ground is in fine condition with about the right amount of moisture. Rain will be needed about May 1. Quite a number of farmers coming in. No farm hands needed at present.

Rice—Farmers started seeding April 15 and are about finished. Ground in very good condition, but need a little moisture. Not much real estate changing hands.

Marshall—Wheat and oats seeding practically done. Ground is in first-class condition, but grass needs rain. I never saw the land work up better than this season. If the present temperature continues we will be planting corn the first week in May. Quite a number of new farmers coming in, and most of them seem to be the right kind.

WILL CELEBRATE INTERNATIONAL DAY

Socialists Plan Program for May 2; Morris Kaplan Will Be Speaker.

Arrangements were completed last night at the meeting of the city central committee of the Socialist party for the annual celebration of International day on Sunday afternoon, May 2.

May 1 has been a day of observance with the Socialists throughout the United States for the past number of years. Each year has seen an increasing number in attendance at the meetings, and the Socialists of Duluth expect a record attendance.

Morris Kaplan, former resident of Duluth, and the party's candidate for the office of mayor at several elections, will be the speaker of the day. Music will be furnished by the Finnish Socialist band and the Zenith City band. Songs and declamations will complete the program.

While the Scandinavian, Finnish, Jewish, Polish and English branches of the party will all take a part, the entire program, contrary to the usual custom, will be in the English language.

A parade, starting at 1:30 from the corner of Fifth avenue west and First street, will proceed through the main streets to the Auditorium, where the meeting will be held.

At the meeting of the city central committee held last night, final arrangements were made to bring Eugene V. Debs to Duluth for a lecture, which will be given on Saturday evening, June 19.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any cases of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Young Woman:" "For several years I have doctored for distressing stomach symptoms, such as sour stomach, belching, accumulations of gas, heart-burn, drowsiness after eating, sleeplessness, coated tongue, bad breath, inertia, and I am getting thin and weak, my complexion is poor, and so far have not been improved by the medicines I have taken."

Answer: Your need is medicine to aid digestion, overcome dyspepsia and tone up the stomach, liver and bowels. I advise you to take "double-four stomach and bowel medicine," sold in sealed packets, by druggists, with complete directions.

Miss Adele writes: "My hair is combing out, my scalp itches and dandruff is very annoying, and I want something to cure these conditions.

Answer: For hair and scalp troubles I have never found anything to equal the beneficial results of a thorough treatment of plain yellow mlnyol. It is cooling, cleansing and invigorating, and thousands now use it regularly as a hair and scalp tonic.

Henry J. C. writes: "Something seems to be wrong with my system and I don't know what it is. I have huge puffs under my eyes, my eyes are bloodshot in morning and my feet and ankles are swollen. Sometimes I have chills and feel weak and tired most of the time."

Answer. Your eliminating organs, such as liver and kidneys, are in need of treatment. Begin taking balmwort tablets at once. Get them in sealed tubes with full directions of any well-stocked druggist.

C. M. C. asks: "Please relieve me of a coated tongue, foul breath, headache, constipation and general ill health."

Answer: If habitually constipated, you should take three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) and arouse the organs which eliminate waste material from your body. These tablets purify the blood and improve the health by acting on the liver, kidneys and bowels. Obtain in sealed tubes with full directions.

"Sarah" says: "Can anything be done for one who is bothered with rheumatism. If so, please reply."

Answer: You can be relieved of your rheumatism if you take the following: Mix by shaking well and take a teaspoonful at meal times and at bed time and you will soon be relieved. Comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs.; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; iodide of potassium, 2 drams.

Miss Bertie L. asks: "What remedy can you recommend to reduce obesity safely? I want to reduce about thirty pounds."

Answer: I rely on five-grain arbolone tablets as being the most effective and convenient treatment to reduce abnormal fat. Druggists supply this in sealed tubes with complete directions. After the first few days a pound a day is not too much reduction.

Mrs. M. D. D. asks: "Do you think it is possible for me to increase my weight from 97 pounds to about 125 pounds?"

Answer: Yes, I believe that the regular use of a special tonic tablet will do this for you as it has for thousands of others. Ask your druggist for three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets in sealed package with full directions. Take them for several months to get the full benefit.

"Ray" writes: "Can a sufferer from bronchial troubles be relieved? Doctors do not seem to help me, what would you suggest?

Answer: To relieve chronic cold, sore throat bronchitis, I would advise the use of concentrated essence mentho-laxene. Purchase this at any drug store in 2½ oz. packages and mix according to directions given on bottle and you will very shortly be relieved of all bronchial trouble. This will not only relieve, but will correct, and is very pleasant to take.

M. G. W. asks: "What can one do for a bad catarrhal condition? I have suffered a long time and am unable to find relief. In addition to catarrh in throat and nostrils, I am also affected with pelvic catarrh (or leucorrhea).

Answer: A good tonic and builder such as three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets should build up your vitality, while using antiseptic Vilane powder for local treatment. Get either a two or eight-ounce package of the powder and complete directions with package will tell you how to use.

John C. L. writes: "I find my natural strength and nervous system failing me. I do not recuperate as of yore. My food and rest seem not to benefit as they should. Am weak, despondent and unable to perform the duties which were assumed earlier in life, while my ambition for work and pleasure is slowly going."

Answer: I think a powerful, harmless tonic and nervine medicine will rejuvenate and restore the functions of digestion, assimilation and elimination by invigorating the nervous system. Obtain three-grain cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes, and take as per directions accompanying.—Advertisement.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

Written for The Herald By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MAY 2.

1 Sam. xix: Saul Tries to Kill David.

CONNECTION.

After David slew Goliath, things happened pretty fast. Although Saul already knew something about David, he made particular inquiry of Abner, his captain, then of David himself, about his parentage. The way David replied won the admiration and friendship of the king's son, Jonathan, and the two became fast friends. David was taken to the court and, to fit him for the life there, Jonathan put on him his own royal cloak and gave him suitable weapons. David was made a leader and at the close of the series of fights with the Philistines, which must have lasted quite a while and extended over much territory, Saul's jealousy was kindled, because the women came out to meet him on his return from the long war and sang a foolish, sentimental song about his killing tens of thousands, while Saul had only killed his thousands. David paid no attention to it but Saul was instantly maddened by it. He tried several ways to injure David. First he tried to kill him in his room with his spear. Next he offered his daughter Merab to him and at the last moment gave her to another man. Then he urged David to take his daughter, Michal, who had fallen in love with the brilliant young man, and made the condition that he should slay a hundred Philistines, with the hope that they might kill him, but David killed 200. Saul hated him more and more as the latter's popularity grew. Our lesson tells of another effort to kill him.

THE LESSON.

I.

Saul's Purpose Thwarted By Jonathan. 1-7.

"And Saul spake to Jonathan, his son, and to all his servants, that they should slay David. But Jonathan, Saul's son, delighted much in David. And Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father, seeketh to slay thee; now, therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself in the morning, and abide in a secret place, and hide thyself; and I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art, and I will commune with my father of thee: and if I see aught, I will tell thee. And Jonathan spake good of David unto Saul, his father, and said unto him, Let not the king sin against his servant, against David; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works have been to thee-ward very good; for he put his life in his hand, and smote the Philistine, and Jehovah wrought a great victory for all Israel; thou sawest it, and didst rejoice; wherefore then wilt thou sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause? And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan; and Saul sware, as Jehovah liveth, he shall not be put to death. And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan showed him all those things. And Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence, as beforetime."

1. MADNESS.—Saul's hatred of David grew. He had lost his hold on the people; had lost God; had lost his kingdom, for he knew Samuel told him the truth that he had forfeited the right to reign; had come to suspect that David was the man to supplant him; had lost his poise and at times his reason; was the victim of terrible spells of dementia, for the spirit of God was "evil toward him," in other words God had given him up and Satan had him his own way. Are we not justified in believing that, as David was the one out of whose loins the Redeemer should come, Satan was anxious to have Saul make way with him? He had tried to kill him rather privately with his spear as David served him; then had tried to have him killed by the Philistines; now is bold enough to give instructions to his son and the soldiers to do the deed. As usual Saul blundered. He had blundered in sending him into battle, for that gave him a chance to win added popularity and fine experience for his future emergencies; had blundered in lowering his rank and giving him a smaller army, for he was able to attach the soldiers all the more closely to him and his victories were all the more to his credit. Now Saul blunders again.

2. PLACATED.—Saul is pursued by Jonathan to take David back into his personal service and we find the young man "in his presence as at other times." But how did Jonathan do it? It was a great deed. It was first of all that Jonathan was just and right in what he said and did. He told his father what David had done in slaying the Philistines and in having good will toward him, the king; what God had done through David and the sin that Saul had already committed against David in trying to kill him. Jonathan's success was due also to the fact that he was very courageous in telling his father frankly as he did. If he had said the same thing in a cringing, timorous way, it might have had the opposite effect on his father. Besides, in spite of his frequent bad treatment of Jonathan, Saul might have always been fond of him and somewhat under his influence except when the "spells" were worst. It is also possible that Jonathan got hold of his disorganized mind just at the moment of reaction. He was subject to violent alterations of feeling. It is also possible that it was a shrewd move on Saul's part, to get David back near him, after seeing that no one would kill David at his command.

II.

Saul's Purpose Thwarted By Michal. 8-12.

"And there was war again; and David went out and fought with the Philistines, and slew them with a great slaughter; and they fled before him. And an evil spirit from Jehovah was upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his spear in his hand; and David was playing with his hand. And Saul sought to smite David even to the wall with the spear; but he slipped away out of Saul's presence, and he smote the spear into the wall; and David fled, and escaped that night. And Saul sent messengers unto David's house, to watch him, to slay him in the morning; and Michal, David's wife, told him, saying, If thou save not thy life tonight, tomorrow thou wilt be slain. So Michal let David down through the window; and he went, and fled, and escaped."

1. MAD AGAIN.—In spite of his limitations, David won more pronounced victories over the invading Philistines. Of course, that stirred Saul still more deeply. He must have seen still weightier evidence that God was with the young man and that he was to supplant him. He once was Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, but now he is permanently Mr. Hyde, and everything arouses the demon within him. The evil spirit from Jehovah was another way of saying God's spirit was evil toward Saul, evil in the sense that he had been given up to his preferred and habitual ways.

The impulse that lurks deepest in the nature, the purpose that is farthest down in the soul, will be asserted unconsciously when conditions appeal to them. Saul didn't have to stop and decide that he would hurl his spear at David when the latter was in his presence. His hand acted automatically. The deepest thing in his nature was his jealousy, as a part of his diseased soul, diseased in every attribute and power. The very skill of David in escaping death must have been another evidence to Saul that the youth was his coming supplanter.

2. PROTECTED.—A new sense of his danger came to David. His wife, Michal, Saul's daughter, gave him the warning that her father's men had surrounded his house to kill him, and urged him to flee. She was something like her father, and was able to get up a good alibi for David with the household idol. David's outlaw life has begun.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

The history of Oriental court life is one of absolute authority and personal caprice. To be a favorite was to have wealth and power; to incur the royal dislike meant dismissal or death. Such tyrannical impulse on the part of the ruler was encouraged by the servility of the attendants who intrigued against each other. Their readiness to carry out the king's order found its apology in the proverb: "He who eats the sultan's bread must strike with the sultan's sword." This forms the difficulty of adjustment when a country like Turkey receives a Constitution and tries to form a public opinion for the welfare of the empire.—Mackie.

On the one hand, there is a steady growth in all good, godly and happy qualities and experiences, and on the other a tragical increase of darkness and gloom, godliness and despair. And yet Saul had begun so well. And Saul might have been what David was —accompanied by God, prosperous and the idol of his people. Two souls stand side by side for a moment on the same platform, with the same divine goodness and love encircling them, and the one steadily sinks. How awful are the endless possibilities of progress in either direction that lie open for every soul of man.—McLaren.

Hod Carriers Sign Agreement.

Chicago, April 29.—Fifteen thousand hod carriers yesterday bound themselves to industrial peace for three years by a new contract with the Masons and Builders' association. The men received an increase of about 5 cents an hour. By signing the agreement, the men averted a lockout voted by the Building Trades Employers against all unions which allowed their wage agreements to expire.

GOVERNOR W. S. HAMMOND IS GREETED WITH FLAGS AND CHEERS BY SCHOOL CHILDREN OF WEST DULUTH

THE GOVERNOR AND HIS PARTY.

Prominent in the Center of the Picture Are: Mayor W. I. Prince, Governor Hammond, Assistant County Attorney M. M. Forbes, County Commissioner Charles Kauppi, W. A. Pond and W. B. Getchell. Others in the Photo Are: Emil J. Zauft, County Auditor Odin Halden, John Dwan of Two Harbors, Major H. V. Eva, I. G. Wollin, L. A. Barnes, T. F. Olsen, P. H. Martin, Andrew Myles and Peter McCormack.

Waving flags and singing national airs, more than 2,000 school children of the western end of the city greeted Governor Winfield Scott Hammond this morning. The governor was being piloted about West Duluth and the suburbs today by a committee from the West Duluth Commercial club, at whose banquet he will be the principal speaker this evening at the Great Eastern hall, 210 North Central avenue.

The governor arrived in Duluth on an early morning train from St. Paul. He was unable, for business reasons, to get here last evening to attend the annual banquet of the Irish Fellowship club held at the Spalding last night. He was greeted at the station by the reception committee of the West Duluth Commercial club.

The governor was the guest of the club at the Duluth Commercial club at 7:30 o'clock. At the breakfast table with the governor were Mayor W. I. Prince, W. A. Pond, president of the West Duluth club, Col. H. V. Eva, L. A. Barnes, chairman of the committee, John Dwan of Two Harbors, M. M. Forbes, W. B. Getchell, County Auditor Odin Halden, Emil J. Zauft, P. H. Martin, Peter McCormick and Andrew Myles.

The party started on its tour at 9 o'clock. Before going to the western end of the city the party paid a visit to the site of the new armory at Fourteenth avenue east and London road. From there they went to the schools.

Mayor Prince introduced the governor at the various institutions. At the Merritt school the 450 children greeted the party, each child carrying a small flag. The children sang "Minnesota" and "America."

No "Cut and Dried" Talk.

In speaking to the children at the different schools, the governor surprised members of the party by his ability to put local color into his talks and discuss different subjects of particular interest to each school. At the Merritt school he gave a short history of the flag of the country, giving its significance and what it represented.

The largest gathering of children was at the R. E. Denfeld high school. Here the combined attendance of the Ely school and the high school was gathered in the large auditorium. Governor Hammond said that the name of the school had more than an ordinary significance to him. He claimed relationship to the students in that the present superintendent of schools, R. E. Denfeld, had been principal of the high school where he had received his education.

The governor spoke on the foresight of the pioneers of this state in providing for the future of the schools of this state by setting aside two sections of land in each township for school purposes. This sum now, he said, amounted to about $25,000,000, the interest of which was going to the support of schools of the state.

He told the students to have some aim in view. It was not enough to have the schools and the equipment but there must, on the part of the students, be a yearning for learning. Those who have visions of the future are the ones who, placing their aim high, become the successes in life. He told them that the state's future depended on the children of today.

Short talks were also given by Mayor W. I. Prince, John Dwan, L. A. Barnes, S. A. Foster, M. M. Forbes and P. H. Martin. On the entrance of the party and its leaving the students gave an ovation in the form of school yells.

At the Longfellow school the governor started his talk by referring to the nation's library at Washington. He wound up by saying that this subject was called to his mind by noticing the bust of Longfellow as he entered the hall of the school. He admonished the children to become acquainted with the history of this great poet. At the Irving school the governor gave a splendid talk on the lines formed by the children, using this as an object lesson for the children to stand firm, be straightforward and upright in all dealings and not to flinch when it came to receiving punishment for any wrong that they might do, but take their medicine in a manly and womanly manner.

At Furnace Plant.

At noon the party arrived at the Zenith furnace plant. Supt. Fred C. Harris took charge of the party. They visited the coke ovens and saw coke in the making and then returned to watch the pouring of the molten iron into the forms of the foundry. This spectacle was watched with keen interest by the governor, who said that it was the first time in his life that he had ever had an opportunity of watching the iron in the raw being extracted from the ore.

The governor was warm in his praise of the weather. The weather was ideal for the state's chief executive's visit. "I have been here four or five times," he said, "and this is the first opportunity I have had of seeing Duluth under the best conditions."

At 1 o'clock the party lunched at the Cody hotel. From there they left at 1:45 o'clock for the Fairmont school from where they will go to the Minnesota Steel plant and the Universal Portland Cement plant. Permission for taking the party through these large institutions was granted by its officers.

Eight automobiles were in the party containing forty men. They are expected to return to the city about 4:30 o'clock. The guests to the banquet are expected to begin to gather at the hall at 6:30 o'clock and the banquet will be served at 7 o'clock sharp. The women of the Asbury Methodist church will serve the supper.

One of the features of the trip to the various points of interest was a motion picture machine man. Chris Oliver, owner of a shop on Central avenue, followed the party and took various views. One of the incidents was that of taking Assistant County Attorney Forbes in a characteristic pose of throwing a stone while he was demonstrating to others in the party what an accurate hurler he was and how "Darby" would pick him up quickly if he was near to watch his ability. The motion picture man got the governor in various ways in going in and out of the school buildings as well as entering his auto with the party.

NEW CITY HALL IS HIS AIM

Silberstein Would Build Structure to Cost $300,000 to $500,000.

Improvements in Business Expected to Justify Expenditure.

Better business conditions in the next two years may result in negotiations for the construction of a new city hall on the courthouse square at a cost of from $300,000 to $500,000.

Bernard Silberstein, commissioner of public safety, made the above prophecy in an interview with The Herald this morning, declaring that Duluthians will without a doubt see plans in motion for the construction of a new city hall before his four-year term is up in 1919.

"If there is anything I hope to achieve," said Commissioner Silberstein this morning, "it is the building of a new city hall for Duluth and I am going to do everything within my power to accomplish this during the next four years.

"Of course, conditions at present do not warrant any such move, but I believe that business is improving and with a good realty market within the next two years, we may be able to get a good price for the present site of the city hall. This is one of the most important corners in the city and will bring a good figure when sold at the proper time.

"Duluth needs a city hall more than anything else. Our present structure is an eyesore, especially when tourists make an inspection of our public buildings. There are thousands of these who visit this city each summer, and the fact that we have an old building for a city hall, one that might do credit for a city of 3,000 persons, is known all over the country. The present structure was built more than thirty years ago, when Duluth had a population of but several thousand. Is it any wonder that the building is now too small for Duluth with a population of over 90,000 people."

According to the civic grouping plan decided on several years ago, the new city hall will be erected on the square next to the Federal building, while the government will construct a new structure on the vacant corner at Fifth avenue west and First street.

DEFEAT HAD ITS REWARD

Walker Not Downcast at Failure of Michigan Three-Cent Fare Bill.

No Further Anti-Railroad Legislation Passed; Will Continue Fight.

W. W. Walker, vice president and general manager of the Duluth South Shore & Atlantic railroad, is back today after a sojourn of several months at Lansing, Mich., where he and other railroad officials waged an educational campaign in the interests of favorable railroad legislation. Though the Michigan senate passed a bill raising the present 2-cent passenger rate to 3 cents, the house refused to concur in this action, the railroads losing out by a narrow margin.

Mr. Walker had some interesting information to give. This was the statement that the combined railroads doing business in the state of Michigan have determined upon continuing a bureau of publicity in the Wolverine state. This bureau will be established with the purpose in view of bringing the people of the state and the railroads closer together.

"Although we were beaten in the recent campaign to secure a higher passenger rate in Michigan, the campaign accomplished a lot of good," said Mr. Walker. "There was no adverse railroad legislation passed at the recent session of the Michigan legislature, and lack of anti-railroad legislation can, I believe, be attributed to the fact that the educational campaign of the railroads has brought the people and also the legislators to a better and more thorough understanding of some of the facts in the case.

"In fact, so successful has the campaign been, in face of the fact that we were beaten, that we are busy at the present time in organizing a publicity bureau that will endeavor to present some railroad facts directly to the people of the state.

"It is our aim to go into every district of Michigan and present facts to the people.

Understand Case.

"The voters of Michigan understand the side of the railroads much more clearly as a result of the campaign waged by the combined railroads doing business in that state. We believe, as our recent experience has shown us, that if the railroads can present facts—indisputable facts—to the people, there will be little demand for anti-railroad legislation. The campaign that is soon to be started will probably extend through until the next legislative session."

With Paul H. King, receiver of the Pere Marquette railroad, Mr. Walker was a member of the railroad legislative committee that did most of the work for the railroads. "I never worked so hard in all my life," was the comment of Mr. Walker.

The campaign was not wholly without excitement. Politicians raised the cry that the railroads had a $300,000 slush fund and that legislators were being offered bribes. Dirt was flung freely, according to the statement of Mr. Walker, who also declared that the lie in regard to the slush fund was nailed.

However, the fact that graft and bribery rumors were bruited about the statehouse at Lansing, hurt the cause of the railroads, said the South Shore official.

AUTOS MUST SLOW DOWN

Speed Limit Will Be Reduced to Ten Miles an Hour.

City Ordinance Will Be Drafted to Fit the State Law.

The rate of speed for automobiles in the city of Duluth will be reduced from fifteen miles to ten miles an hour, with the passage of an ordinance to be introduced by Commissioner Silberstein, head of the public safety division, at the regular council meeting next Monday evening.

Investigation of the ordinances and statutes has revealed the fact that the legislature passed a law two years ago placing ten miles an hour as the speed limit for cities, while an ordinance passed by the council in 1903 places the limit at fifteen miles an hour. As a result the ne wordinance to comply with the state law has been ordered by Commissioner Silberstein and City Attorney Greene will have it ready within a day or two.

The new ordinance will permit ten miles an hour in the center of the city, fifteen miles an hour in outlying districts and twenty-five miles an hour along the country roads within the city limits and on London road, between Twenty-sixth and Fortieth avenues east.

This morning Commissioner Silberstein held a conference with the city attorney and officials of the Duluth Auto club, for the purpose of deciding on the exact features to be embodied in the new ordinance. It was finally agreed that all the rulings in the statute should be included in the ordinance, in addition to the proviso permitting twenty-five miles an hour along London road. This is also included in the ordinance now in effect.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

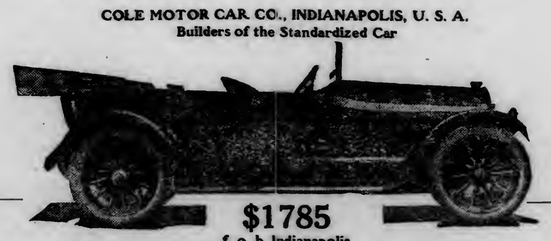

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSIONS

CHAPTER V.

In the preceding chapters it was stated that the company desired the people of the Twin Ports to be as well satisfied with its policy regarding extensions as they appear to be with its service. The policy of the company regarding extensions was stated and some facts were given bearing upon the matter.

Twenty years ago electric railway transportation was a new thing. Electric railway operation was also then thought to be much cheaper than it has since proved to be. Franchises in all cities had many years to run. Promoters of electric railway schemes were optimistic and it was comparatively easy to get capital. If a proposed extension into an unsettled area was too unpromising for the city company to undertake, the owners of the land would build the line. The result was a most reckless extension policy on the part of electric railways all over the country and as those were "boom days" in Duluth and Superior the recklessness in that respect was perhaps carried farther here than in most places. The idea which was developed in the minds of our citizens at that time as to what might be considered a "liberal extension policy," seems to still be entertained by some notwithstanding the great changes that have taken place since that time.

The promoters of street railway lines built in the early days of electric railways then expected to be permitted to make up during the latter part of their long time franchises the losses sustained in pioneering. This seemed a natural and reasonable expectation in those days but then came the days of "regulation."

With state commissions and the courts all over the country holding that the earnings of a public utility must be limited to a "fair return" on a little more than the physical valuation placed on its property by such commissions, without regard to the losses incurred through many years of unprofitable service to the public, is it any wonder that there should have been a cessation in the building of new street railways and the extension of those already built?

The United States census reports show that in the twelve years from 1890 to 1902 there was an increase of 77.9% in street railway track in the United States and an increase of 52.4% in the five years from 1902 to 1907, while in the five years from 1907 to 1912 there was an increase in trackage of only 19.3%. If census figures were available for the past three years they would undoubtedly show that the building of street railway tracks had almost come to a standstill throughout the entire country.

happy little skit gives ample opportunity to display their talent.

The Three Harvey Girls are singers and harmonists of exceptional ability. All are endowed with excellent voices and the wide variety of their song numbers adds to the enjoyment.

George Fredo, better known as "The Baron of Milwaukee," is the "Monarch of Laughter." This gentleman seems to be an entertainer of rare ability.

Smiletta Brothers and Mora offer a novelty in gymnastics and comedy bar trick acrobatics. Their work is original and daring with a comedy vein running throughout that is appreciated.

The Hearst-Selig News, as usual, projects many interesting views and events from all over the world, including some thrilling war pictures.

The photoplay feature, "Elsa's Brother," a two-reel subject, tells a beautiful story in a charming manner. The Helen Holmes railroad story, "The Girl Engineer," and a comedy, "Two Hearts That Beat as Ten," complete the entertainment.

William Elliott, the latest stage star to be converted to the screen, through the Famous Players Film company's presentation of "When We Were Twenty-One," the great dramatic success by H. V. Esmond, is the current attraction at the Rex.

"WHEN WE WERE TWENTY-ONE."

The story is a simple one. It turns on the determination of an old bachelor to save the son of his dead friend from the follies of youth—the youth of today. He takes the boy's sins on his own shoulders and the sacrifice which he successfully makes results eventually in his own happiness.

Over every episode of the drama there is an atmosphere of life and naturalness that possibly does more than any other agency to make it a notable contrast to the customary photoplay of the present day.

THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY BUYS $200 MORTGAGE

LESTER FORGY.

Because he acquired the saving habit and banked his pennies instead of spending them, Lester Forgy, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Forgy of 618 West Seventh street, has accumulated $200 in three years' time.

The other day, Lester's $200 was invested in a first mortgage on a 160-acre tract of land. The mortgage bears 8 per cent interest.

The youngster has earned money by delivering papers before and after school. Instead of spending it as he went along, Lester preferred to put it into a savings bank and from a small beginning it evolved into a neat sum.

LABOR SKIES LOOK CLEAR

May Expected to Bring Little Change in Conditions.

No Strikes Looked for—Wage Schedules to Remain Intact.

May 1, the beginning of the year for labor unions and contractors, will bring no changes of consequence in the labor world of Duluth this spring. The unions are virtually free of strikes, and all indications now point toward a peaceable agreement between the contractors and unions for the coming year.

Neither contractors nor labor unions are "looking for trouble," according to statements from both parties. Conditions during the last year have not been too good at best, and with the improving of conditions now, both employers and employes hope to see all differences amicably settled, and work to go on without interruption throughout the year.

No Time for Strikes.

Conditions are not yet brisk enough to warrant any demands for higher wages, according to union men, and it is probable that the unions will continue at the same schedule that has prevailed during the last year. Strikes would be considered very inadvisable at this time.

Despite business depression during the last year, there have been no cuts in the wage scale of union men except in the open shops, according to unionists, and the same schedules are expected to remain intact for the present. Only one strike is now on—that declared against the Rex and Lyric theaters. This has been in progress for months, and indications point to a finish fight.

Conditions Quiet Last Year.

During the last year both employers and employes have been at peace generally. The strike of the painters and interior decorators about a year ago was the only big strike of the year. The unions maintained that their requests had been granted when they returned to work, while some of the contractors maintained just as strenuously that the union men had failed. The status was "fifty-fifty," and one could choose for himself between the statements of the two sides. As far as the public was concerned, the matter was amicably settled and work was resumed without great delay.

Union men have fared much better during the last year than have non-union men, both in securing work and maintaining a wage scale. Non-union men have worked at very heavy reductions in wages, and large numbers have been unemployed. The unions look upon this condition as indicative of the benefits to be derived from co-operation.

Prospects Brighter.

The coming year is being looked forward to with optimism by contractors and unions. The building movement is expected to be extensive and to entail large expenditures of capital. Many small houses and other buildings are in planning, and the carpenters, painters, decorators, brick and stone masons and kindred trades will all reap the benefits of this activity.

If any labor troubles are in the wind, it is probable that the unions will wait for a more favorable time to make demands, according to statements of union men.

NEFF URGES BUYING HOME-MADE GOODS

Duluth Man Gives Chief Address at Fargo Merchants' Banquet.

Bentley P. Neff, secretary of F. A. Patrick & Co., represented the Duluth Commercial club at the annual banquet given by the manufacturers of Fargo to the retail merchants of that city and Moorhead Tuesday evening at the Hotel Gardner. More than 200 merchants were present.

The Fargo Forum says: "Buy home-made goods and insure the growth of the city, was the big thought brought out by Bentley P. Neff, secretary and sales manager of F. A. Patric & Co., who was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Fargo Manufacturers' association to the retail men of the city and Moorhead.

"Mr. Neff's general topic was 'Fundamentals of Business,' but particular stress was laid on the buying of home-made products. In opening his address, Mr. Neff said that Duluth was very friendly to Fargo and Moorhead and that the best possible co-operation existed between the sister cities of the West and the great Zenith City.

"The speaker then branched out on his assigned topic, which was excellently handled. There is probably not a better informed man in the Northwest on the relationship between the manufacturer and the retailer than Mr. Neff. He has had a lot of experience along this line, especially that which comes from the manufacturer and the retailer being in the same city.

"The fundamentals of business, as outlined by Mr. Neff, were honesty, organization, co-operation, faith, harmony and concentration. He likened the retail merchants who sends away for his goods when he can buy home-made products to the consumer who sends away for what he wants instead of buying from the local retailer.

"The speaker emphasized the tremendous importance of local permanent payrolls. The speaker also called attention to present conditions throughout the Northwest and commented on the optimism and faith that is being shown just at this time when there is so much need of confidence. He said that the business people in this part of the country had a vast amount to be thankful for, as the great Northwest, on account of its agricultural facilities, had suffered less in the general business depression than any other part of the country.

"Mr. Neff was also emphatic in his belief that there was a general business revival in store for the United States and that during the last three months considerable renewed activity had been in evidence.

"His talk was not only one that was idealistic, but was practical and full of points that are not for the future, but for right now. It was greatly appreciated by all present who, from time to time, interrupted the speaker when he made some telling remark."

Other speakers of the evening were H. F. Emery, president of the Fargo city commission, and Attorney S. Frane of Fargo. J. P. Hardy, secretary of the Fargo Commercial club, was toastmaster.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve-building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtlessly the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

VILLAGE DEBTS ARE AGAIN BIG THEME

Question of Handling Floating Chisholm Orders Again Discussed.

Chisholm, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chisholm's floating debt in the shape of unpaid warrants was again the chief theme of discussion at the meeting of the village council yesterday afternoon but no conclusion was reached, the whole matter going over until the next meeting.

Trustee Graham wanted to know what the mining companies proposed to do about paying outstanding warrants. He said he heard only about $75,000 in warrants were to be taken care of.

Trustee Graham insisted that the companies should inform the council what they intended to do, as he contends the council had a right to know.

Trustee Ulrich said that he did not know what the companies intended to do.

Trustee Mahne advocated a special tax assessment to raise funds to be used while the companies were making up their minds what to do. Attorney Syme said that the council could levy a special assessment but it must be for special purposes such as urgent sewer work or a water supply.

President Fugere suggested that the council wait another week and that the mining companies representatives be asked to attend the meeting.

Graham for Bond Election.

Trustee Graham said he was in favor of authorizing a bond election at once.

Trustee Mahne said he also was in favor of a speedy bond election. The promise to lift the warrants was made long ago and the companies, if they were going to do anything, should have done so before this.

President Fugere remarked that the bond issue might be beaten again.

Trustee Mahne said he did not think so, but he was in favor of giving the people another chance to express themselves.

Trustee Graham said that he thought a bond issue of say $300,000 would go through easily enough. This ended the discussion.

Health Officer Dr. A. W. Graham suggested that the council appoint a board of health to consist of three members. C. A. Munro and R. J. Chase were nominated with Dr. Graham as chairman. The health officer also brought to the notice of the council that according to state law the cows of the village should be given a tuberculosis test. This was ordered. Dr. Graham also suggested that water should be allowed to run into Longyear lake to prevent the possibility of stench arising from the lake through low water and the danger of an epidemic.

Would Insure Village Employes.

A. H. Kleffman urged insuring of village workmen to protect the village from possible loss. The matter will be inquired into.

Henry Fieldman was given permission to erect a sheet iron peanut stand on vacant lots on Lake street.

The workings, expense and general information concerning a rock crusher were explained by a Marble contractor, who was willing to lease or work on a percentage basis for the village, one of his three crushers.

The incinerator superintendent complained of the kind of rubbish he was receiving, particularly iron bedsteads, bottles, and other non-burning matter, also of the want of light at the plant. A light was ordered put in and the garbage man instructed to sort his rubbish before dumping it into the furnace.

Residents of the Park addition asked for a fire alarm and three alarms will be advertised for.

An application from Paul Tramontin for the position of relief fireman was referred. Harry Eagan asked for a position with the council.

Renewal of liquor licenses were granted to Lovrance Paskvan, Michael Baich and Toney Faggretti. The application of Pashva & Medved was held up to allow the applicants time to rectify an error in their bond.

On motion of Recorder Culver, seconded by Trustee Ulrich, the village attorney was instructed to take steps to recover the sum of $2,600, alleged by Culver to have been over charged for printing.

The bid of the Range Lumber company was accepted for sewer pipe.

Ten bidders were willing to do the village scavenger work for from $80 to $119.75 per month. John Enrico was awarded the contract at $80 per month.

Matt Kochevar applied for the position of dog-catcher.

It was decided to build a bear pit at a cost of $200.

The claim of Mrs. Brooks for $500 damage for a broken arm, sustained when she slipped on a plate glass fanlight in front of Sapero & Sons' store, was again taken up and the village attorney instructed to ascertain if Sapero & Sons were not liable as well as the village.

HOOP MAKING IS LARGE INDUSTRY

Farmers Around Cohasset Thriving Over Their Manufacture.

Grand Rapids, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—An Itasca county industry which has received little publicity, and which at the same time is quite important is the hoop industry, which seems to have centralized itself at Cohasset, where the enterprising merchants have bought the hoops made by the farmers at all times, and shipped them when a car load had been accumulated.

The hoop industry—an independent industry around Cohasset, means the employment of from fifty to seventy-five men during the dull months of the year, while farmers spend much of their spare time in making them, farmers from as far away as Balsam township being engaged in the work, and hauling their hoops right Grand Rapids to the market afforded at Cohasset, and the hoops being shipped right back through Grand Rapids to the markets.

The hoops are made of black ash. The butter tub hoops, which are made here almost exclusively, are five and one-half feet long. The hoops are split with a plane, up to within a few inches of the end, the unsplit portion holding the hoops, in bunches of a dozen or so, together for easier handling.

What Hoops Bring.

The hoops sell for $4.50 to $4.75 per thousand, and the hoop makers working for contractors or jobbers, get $2.75 per thousand for making, the balance being for the timber, handling, etc. One thousand hoops per day is an easy day's work for one accustomed to the work, and it is not uncommon for a good hoop maker to turn out 1,800 to 2,500 hoops a day. Jos Proul of Cohasset, who is acknowledged to be the champion hoop maker of this section, easily makes better than this.

Among the contractors and jobbers are John Hermans, William Garrison, J. D. Patterson and others. These men say that the supply of timber around Cohasset is becoming exhausted, and they are looking around farther away for hoop timber. Some hoop camps are being established by the Cohasset jobbers at points on the Minneapolis & Rainy River line north of Deer River. The Cohasset stores handle all the hoops which are brought in, and many farmers find a ready market for all the hoops they can make. The hoops are shipped to dealers in Chicago. The larger operators in hoops ship their hoops direct.

STILL SEEK BODIES OF MISSING HUNTERS

Efforts Renewed to Solve Long Lake and Burntside River Tragedies.

Ely, Minn., April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Efforts have been renewed with the coming of warm weather to find the bodies of the three hunters believed to have been drowned in Long Lake or Burntside river, a tributary, last fall while hunting. The men supposed to have been lost were John Kilponen, Peter Peterson and Fred Anderson, were returning from a hunting trip in a canoe, and were lost, presumably the canoe upset.

The canoe was found capsized in Burntside river last fall. Their pack sack and compass were also found on shore. John Kilponen, one of the men supposed to have been drowned, was an excellent swimmer, having attended a swimming school in Finland, and both of the others could swim.

Find Deer's Carcass.

The searchers found the carcass of the deer in Burntside river last Sunday. The opinion of the searchers is divided. Some believe that all went to the bottom as it was so dark and stormy; others, that John Kilponen made shore and became lost or exhausted in the woods.

Yesterday, in addition to a crew of men dragging the river, a crowd was searching the woods in the belief that at least Kilponen made the shore, but became lost or exhausted. For several weeks after the men were supposed to have drowned, a party was kept busy dragging the river from daylight until dark. They finally had to give up the search on account of the cold weather until this week.

Those of the belief that Kilponen or maybe all made shore report a peculiar odor in the vicinity of the portage to Burntside lake from the river. However this may be a carcass of some animal. As yet nothing has been found to confirm their belief.

SEE POLITICS IN RECALL REPORTS

Rumors in Virginia That Harvey and Matheson Will Not Be Attacked.

Virginia, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The regular weekly report of the recall of one or more of the local city elective officers bobbed up late yesterday when it was reported that certain people were going after the scalps of Aldermen Harvey and Matheson, but up to noon today nothing of a tangible form has developed and it is hardly expected concrete action will be taken. There is said to be politics back of the story. It is said that if there is an effort to recall made it will take in every one from Mayor Boylan down.

Virginia will soon vote, it is expected, upon adopting a commission form of government and if the proposed charter is adopted commissioners will be chosen, so it is expected those anxious to recall can bide their time and get action then.

GIVEN VERDICT FOR $250 AGAINST EDDY

Virginia, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The damage suit of Stella A. Thomas, administratrix of Louis D. Paddon, vs. the Eddy Livery company, William Eddy and Otto Huhtala, a chauffeur, for $3,000 for the death of Paddon as a result of injuries he sustained in a collision between an Eddy auto and a Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific logging train on the Mountain Iron road, near here, Oct. 14, 1913, resulted in a verdict for $250 against William Eddy, the case being dismissed as to the others. The jury returned a verdict about 8 o'clock last night.

Today Judge Hughes and a jury are trying the case of the Virginia Realty company vs. J. W. Murphy, involving commission on a sale of lots.

WHO STRUCK LAFONDE?

Petit Court Jury at Chisholm Unable to Answer Query.

Chisholm, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The alleged assault by Ray Phelps on Mose Lafonde was aired in municipal court Tuesday afternoon, the jury returning in three minutes a verdict of not guilty. The case grew out of an election night quarrel, in which Lafonde was struck on the point of the jaw. Phelps was suspected, but the evidence went to show that a man named "Kid" Shay had boasted before he left town that he was the man who struck the blow. It was also suggested that a loose brick from the tall building under which Lafonde was walking when struck had dropped upon him. Attorney Syme appeared for the state and Joseph Austin for Phelps.

VIRGINIA ELKS' STUNT.

Banquet, Cabaret Show and Distribution of Gifts.

Virginia, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local Elks held high jinks in their hall last night when there was a banquet served a la cabaret and various stunts. A. G. Flournoy was toastmaster and kept things moving.

Armed with a cowbell he rang a warning whenever any speaker exceeded the three-minute limit for speeches agreed on. Even Dr. Lenont, who is credited with being a prudent man had the bell rung on him. Senator Griggs, W. J. Archer, Dr. P. P. Coltrogrove and others also spoke and more than one had the bell sounded against him.

There was a distribution of gifts that elicited much merriment. T. H. Rogers got an aeroplane, A. D. Heritage an ark, Ed Johnson a shovel and T. F. Britts, a bank, while others were similarly remembered.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

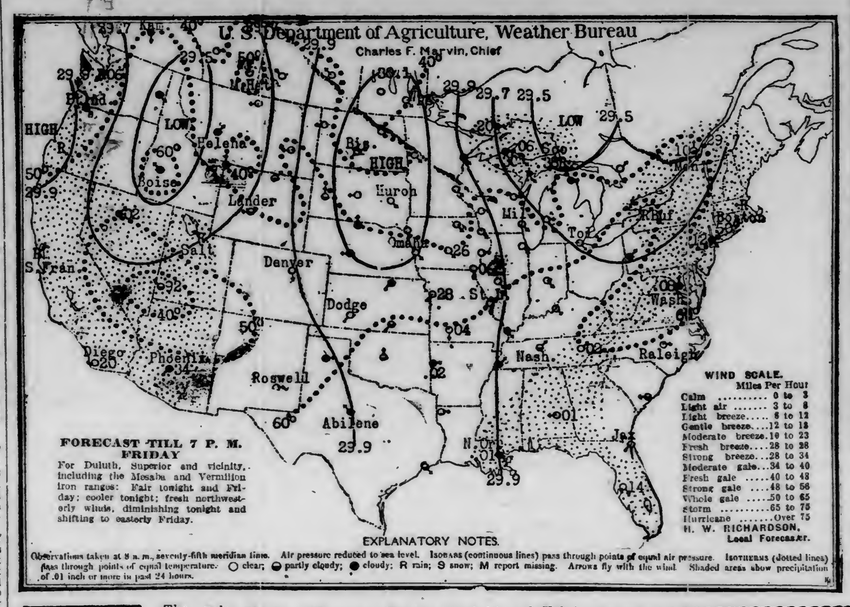

Says Backache Is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

GOPHER POISONING PROVING SUCCESS

North Dakota Poison Squad Getting Results in War on Pests.

Garrison, N. D., April 29.—(Special to the Herald.)—The two experts, representing the poison squad of the North Dakota Experiment station, working in co-operation with the federal biological survey, have convinced the most skeptical that there is relief in sight from the ravages of the gophers and ground squirrels.

The work is being done on the formula worked out by Dr. W. B. Bell of the North Dakota Experiment station, and thoroughly tested out last year by S. E. Piper of the United States Biological survey, and by Dr. Bell in this state.

The basic poison is strychnine alkaloid, not strychnine sulphate. So much depends upon the proper preparation of the formula that there has not been a great deal of success where farmers made the preparation alone, but it is easily prepared when object lessons are given by experts thoroughly familiar with the process. A paste containing the poison is mixed with oats and these oats inserted in the gopher holes.

The campaign which was inaugurated here will eventually cover the entire state. A dozen or more counties may be included this year. The experts will remain in the locality until the farmers are thoroughly instructed in the preparation and the best method of using the poison.

The purpose of the movement is to exterminate the gophers in a systematic manner over a wide area, at the lowest minimum expense. This is estimated at 4 cents per acre for the material.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidius disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ½ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the eustachian tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.

Among the more important things accomplished was the improvement of village streets and the principal county highways in Floodwood district, as well as the construction of about ten miles of new roads, and which it has been able to bring about through the hearty co-operation with the village council and County Commissioner Kauppi.

The club secured a free traveling library which is quite well patronized; spent considerable money in advertising local resources in different papers; sent a representative to attend the hearing before the state railroad commission at uluth in regard to train service; sent two representatives to St. Paul to fight the county division bill; protested to the interior department and the commissioner on Indian affairs against enforcement of the old Indian treaty in localities taken off from any Indian reservation; recommended that the village council provide hitching posts for teams of farmers; favored a deep well; favored better fire protection and to make such needed improvements on the cemetery.

What Is Wanted.

Among the recommendations made by the president for the coming year is to obtain a speaker who can talk the Finnish language whenever the farmers' institutes are held here in the future, as fully 65 per cent of the settlers in this district are Finns, and many do not understand English well enough to be able to get any benefit of these instructions. It is also proposed that a market day be established once a month; also to make an active campaign to increase the membership and to encourage a closer co-operation between the citizens and the farmers.

The club adopted a resolution commending County Commissioner Kauppi for the fair treatment he has accorded this district during the past year, and his always-ready co-operation with its people, and it expressed a hope that he will show the same fair spirit during the present year.

This Is Why I Can Nurse My Baby

I give her one bottle of Nestlé's Food every day.

The Doctor who welcomed her into the world showed me how.

"So many women get so nervous and fagged that their milk fails and they have to wean their babies too soon—all because they don't get enough pleasure and freedom.

"Now, it isn't going to be like that with you—you're going to keep well and happy and nurse your baby nine months. You are to sleep all you can—walk in the fresh air, and go out with your husband.

"How? Once every twenty-four hours—not always the same hour—give your baby, instead of your breast milk,

Nestlé's Food

"It is so like mother's milk that baby won't feel the difference. The tiniest baby can digest it and it builds bone and blood and muscle just as mother's milk does.

"You can prepare it yourself and leave it bottled hot, or trust your nurse to make it, for you only need to add water and boil one minute.

"You do not need to worry about it as if it were fresh milk. It does not sour, or harbor germs, or need ice. Go out every day, come back with a good appetite, and, between you and Nestlé's Food, baby will get as big and strong as she ought to be. And then when weaning time comes, it will be very easy to increase the feedings of Nestlé's till the baby is serenely and safely weaned on Nestlé's Food."

Nestlé's is made from clean, fresh milk, purified, with the baby needs added and calf needs modified.

Send the coupon. It will bring you, FREE, a box of Nestle's Food—enough for 12 feedings—and a book about babies by specialists.

Chicago, April 29.—The Chicago Americans defeated Cleveland 7 to 3 yesterday, winning their seventh straight game. The locals hit opportunely, with Fournier and Roth leading the attack, and this, coupled with their daring on the bases, gave them the game. Benz pitched in fine form, and was backed with fielding bordering on the sensational, two lightning double plays being a feature. Score:

Cleveland	100000020	3	8 2
Chicago	20004010x	7	9 1

Minneapolis, Minn., April 29.—Milwaukee bunched hits, errors and passes for five runs in the ninth inning, easily defeating Minneapolis in a loosely played game. A high wind made clean fielding impossible. Dougherty outpitched Williams by a wide margin, fanning eight of the home club. Score:

DULUTH COACH SEEKS NEW ROWING LAURELS

JIMMY TEN EYCK.

HANDBALL MEN TO HOLD BANQUET

There will be a banquet this evening at the Y. M. C. A. for the handball players of the association who have played in the tournaments this season. Dr. Clark, William Dreves, Whitehead and several other of the enthusiasts will give short talks.

The banquet will begin at 6:16 and it is especially desired that all of the players be present. Plans for next season will be discussed and several important matters will be taken up.

William Dreves, chairman of the handball committee, announced today that the season had been by far the most successful in the history of the association.

JAMES ESMOND COLLINS JOINS WHITE SOX BAND

Fleet Outfielder Dons Monkey Suit and Cavorts in Garden—Harper May Be Signed for Third Base—Some Pitchers Are Due to Get the Can.

James Esmond Collins reported to the Dooks yesterday. The daring base thief and fleet outfielder looks in good condition. Upon arriving in the city he donned a monkey suit and shagged flies in center field during a large part of the afternoon.

Collins' coming means that there may be a fight on for outfield berths. There is a rumor that one of the present candidates will be dropped. Collins is conceded to have a place in the garden cinched. Williams looks likely. Both Ford and Brammell are expected to compete for the other place. Only eleven men in addition to Darby will be carried, therefore some cutting down of the force will be necessary.

The infield problem remains unsettled as yet. Baker may join the team June 1, and in that event the former Winnipegger will be played at the far corner of the diamond. Harper is still flirting over the question of money. They are not paying much in the Northern this season and little Harper has so far demurred over the terms offered by the fleet second baseman.

If Harper comes to terms with the management he may stage an act at third.

Who Will Get the Can?

Some of the pitchers will draw the tinware ere long. Bryant, Jones, Murray, Cadreau, Boley, Barr, Hoffman and Leahy are at the present time slabbing around at the park. The announcement is wafted forth that but four heavers will be carried during the season. If Handsome Clarence should step into the picture, complications would set in. Some one, or several someones must walk the plank.

Bert Sweeley, the Paw Paw college youth, is going to make an attempt to fill the large-sized shoes of Jerzy Edmunds behind the plate. When going right this Sweeley one is a sweet little performer, but hardly the equal of the Edmunds one, who last year stood only a mite short of the smooth-working ability of Billy Meyers of Winona.

Not so much is known of the catching ability of Brammell. He has outfielded more in these parts. The former Virginia player bears the reputation of a hitter. Because of the hitting ability of the Brammell boy he may be used in the garden quite a portion of the season. This may depend upon the manner in which the veteran Dad Ford leaves the early spring barrier.

Quite a Year for Amateurs.

By the way, this is proving a great spring year for Duluth corner lotters. Young Mickey McGraw is cavorting around the outfield of the Superior Red Sox and Delburn and Method, local amateurs, are trying out for the pitching staff of the Fargo club. Quidding, another member of a Duluth team, is at the present writing holding the third base trenches of the Dooks.

BASEBALL IN LIMELIGHT

Captains Are Chosen and Large Crowds Witness Practice Games.

Indications at present point to the fact that baseball will be considerably more popular at Central high school this year than for several seasons. During the last few years the national pastime has not received as much attention as is generally accorded it in schools the size of Central. The school players, as a general rule, have been slow in getting started, with the result that not a great deal was accomplished.

In the season of 1910 baseball was revived after several years of relapse. That year the Central team finished second in the Twin Ports School league, being barely nosed out by the Nelson-Dewey aggregation. The following season was Central's most successful one. The team, led by Joe Boyle, entered the school league again and won the pennant, defeating all of the high schools of Duluth and Superior, the Superior normal, and several other strong teams. Since that time, however, the game has lapsed, and no especially strong school nines have been turned out. Class teams have been rather prominent, and these have occupied the attention of the students.

On Firm Footing.

With the selection of class captains and large turnouts for practice for the various aggregations, the game promises to be put on a firm foundation again this year. All of the class squads have been put through some preliminary work under the respective captains, and these series will be played off as soon as possible. The class captains have all been selected now. Joe Furni, a former Jefferson school star, was chosen by the freshmen to lead their baseball nine. The class has met with unusual success in all athletics this year, having defeated the sophomores in both football and baseball, and having held all of the other classes exceptionally close in contests with them. The sophomores made a wise selection when George Lewis, a school track and football star, was named to lead the baseball squad. The juniors will attempt to land the school championship with Ben Rasmussen at the head of their team, and a strong list of candidates trying for places. The seniors, after having won premier honors in football, basket ball and hockey, will attempt to land the high laurels in baseball also. Although Bob Gunderson was elected to the captaincy, he said that he would not be able to appear at all of the practices, and Lee Bartlett was named in his place. Gunderson, however, will be on the team. All of the class squads have been working hard for the last week, and the class series will undoubtedly prove close and exciting.

Athletic Director Glyer expresses his doubts regarding the possibility of the formation of a school representative nine. There is a possibility that the school league of the Duluth and Superior schools will again be formed. The Central team could probably make a good showing in this. It would have to be formed almost immediately to allow the schedule to be played out, and the class series would then have to be gotten out of the way very soon. There are a number of fast players in the school and a strong representative aggregation could undoubtedly be formed.

DULUTH CREWS MAY ROW AT THE CANADIAN HENLEY

Ten Eyck Receives Telegram Asking His Stand on Plan.

Local Club May Not Enter a Senior Eight in the National.

BY BRUCE.

A telegram was received yesterday by Jimmy Ten Eyck asking the Duluth Boat club coach if he was favorably disposed toward competing in the Canadian Henley. The Canadian rowing championship events will be competed at St. Catherines Aug. 7 and 8.

In the event the local crews compete in the Henley event, such a thing might transpire that Duluth boys would go from here to St. Catherines, row in the Canadian championships, then journey on to the national championship events at Springfield and then wend their way on to the Pacific coast.

What would you think, ye devout followers of the rowing game, were Jimmy Ten Eyck to announce that he was going to let his junior eight attempt to win both the intermediate and senior races at the National?

Surprised, eh? Well, that is just what Ten Eyck may do. There, now!

Think of the Scullers.

Here is the idea. Jimmy has Horak and Gus Grant for the intermediate singles. Then there are the Moore boys for the intermediate doubles. There are Kent and Hoover and possibly Osman for the senior scull events, and Kent and some other mate for the senior doubles. Then the senior four will compete in both the senior four and national championship event. Would it be worth while to possibly sacrifice the senior eight contest, admittedly the crowning event of the regatta, to take a chance on copping off nine other events?

That is the proposition Ten Eyck is working on right now. The junior eight may be called upon to carry the honors of the club in the eight events.

In a way Jimmy is kind of up against it in the matter of senior eight material. The senior four boys will have to compete in two hard events. Fours are being groomed down East with the express purpose of taking the honors away from the great Ten Eyck machine. Osman and Whiteside may not be back, and with the senior four men having their hands full, there is a paucity of real material among the older men of the club.

On the other hand some real scullers are being developed. Today Jimmy expressed the belief that his boys could come mighty close to winning those nine events. Even if the local club did in a way forfeit the eight event, there might be ample compensation.

Here are two bantam fours that are receiving attention and courteous treatment at the present time: Vincent, bow; Mapp, 2; Hasner, 3; Denton, stroke. Haley, bow; Williams, 2; Emmerson, 3; Rowland, stroke.

Here is the lineup of two junior eights: Webber, bow; C. Moore, 2; Ennos, 3; Elstad, 4; Porter, 5; C. Olson, 6; Burnett, 7; McQuad, stroke. R. Osman, bow; Burgess, 2; Blystone, 3; Paulson, 4; Harney, 5; McGraw, 6; Swanson, 7; Nelson, stroke.

In addition to these junior candidates, Hammerbeck, Arons, Campbell, Faleen, Arneson, Spencer and Maegher are being used.

In addition also to the two bantam fours that have been rowing together during the last few nights, the following bantam eight is on the water every evening: Erickson, bow; McDermott, 2; J. Hagberg, 3; Shepperdson, 4; A. Olson, 5; Hodenberg, 6; Bendixon, 7; Klein, stroke.

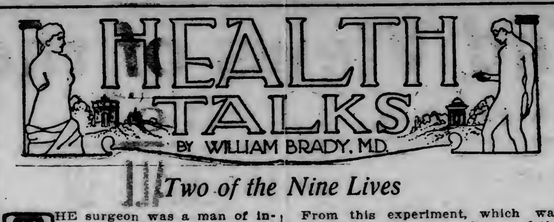

Troyer, Hall, Hagberg and Forsell have been sculling quite a bit of late, with the idea that these boys may be used in the quadruple event.

What Ten Eyck Says.

"It is this way," said Ten Eyck today: "While the senior eight event is the great prize of the national, just as it is the highest prized winning of any regatta, there is a question of whether it would not be better to go after nine events than to attempt to concentrate your energy on the big event of the regatta.

"I think some of our scullers will surprise the Eastern boys this season. Ken and Hoover look awfully good, and Dave Horak and Gus Grant in the intermediate, with the Moore boys in the doubles, should come mighty near to winning. We have already established considerable prestige. In a way, we could afford to let the senior eight event go, if we were pretty certain of making a real showing in the scull events as well as the two senior four events."

The policy of the club in this regard will not be shaped immediately. The showing of the men will have a definite influence on the ultimate decision. If the green junior eight should come to the front in the manner of the junior eight of 1913, then a heavy burden would be lifted from the shoulders of James.

Two of the Nine Lives

THE surgeon was a man of international renown. His work had won world-wide recognition—but he didn't have a great big practice. Thousands of doctors have tremendously big practices and are unknown outside of their own bailiwick.

He anesthetized his subject with ether, sterilized the skin, tied off the esophagus and severed it above the ligature. Then he cut the windpipe across in the neck and inserted a glass tube in it. Next he tied off the aorta and great vein and severed them low in the abdomen. All branches were tied and cut free. All nerves were cut across wherever encountered. The entire abdominal system of organs was wrapped in a silk towel.

The chest was then opened and the heart and lungs carefully freed and lifted out, along with the contents of the silk towel. The heart action was somewhat weak and the blood pressure low, but the surgeon worked on quite calmly. The whole system of vital organs was placed in a tray of salt solution. The heart action became so weak that a transfusion of blood from a charitable donor was done, and the heart at once responded. The system of detached organs was placed in a tin box filled with salt solution. A bellows was attached to the windpipe, and an air pump kept the lungs working. A funnel was attached to the esophagus, and food poured in at regular intervals.

The Subject Succumbs Somewhat.

By the way, the operation was halted momentarily about this time, owing to the death of the subject. But artificial respiration restored the breath of life, and the operation continued. The food was digested. The heart worked at the rate of 120 or more a minute in the little tin box. Yet there was no brain or spinal cord controlling the function of these organs. They kept working, apparently, just to please the surgeon. In fact they kept working for thirteen hours in the little tin box, then they died permanently.

From this experiment, which was performed by Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute upon a healthy cat, surgeons all over the world have learned secrets which have saved thousands of human lives. Carrel is at present serving in the surgical corps of the army of France.

Questions and Answers.

Those Dreadful Canker Sores: Will you kindly tell an unfortunate sufferer what will help canker sores in the mouth? I suffer tortures with them every few weeks.

REPLY.

As soon as you suspect the appearance of one, touch it with pure tincture of iodine on a wisp of cotton wound about a match. Repeat the treatment twice a day. After about three applications, it's good-by canker.

Lovely Hair Is Falling Fast: Until recently my brown hair has been the pride of my life. Now it is falling fast, and nothing seems to help it, though I try everything I see recommended. My health is perfect. I am 24. Can you help me?

REPLY.

Write quickly, Marie, enclosing your name, address (on a stamped envelope) and—well, never mind a lock of your hair. We'll write you a monograph on the hair.

Guilty, Shoot: P. W. writes: Some time ago I sent in some questions about my case. Nearly three weeks later you told me to send stamped addressed envelope and repeat the questions. That I did. Then you wrote, advising me to go to a doctor in my home town. What's the joke?

REPLY.

The joke is, P. W., that you do not seem to assimilate the instructions to correspondents. Your second lot of questions included a request for diagnosis and treatment, and that is something we do not pretend to do without a personal examination of the patient.

Dr. Brady will answer all questions pertaining to Health. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Dr. Brady will not prescribe for individual cases or make diagnoses. Address all letters to Dr. William Brady, care of The Herald. All questions will be answered, whether they come from people residing in Duluth or outside, provided they comply with the rules here stated.

FOR years men searched for the Real Tobacco Chew—and you bet they know when they've found it.

Ever since the Real Tobacco Chew first came out its fame has been spreading from one town to another.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

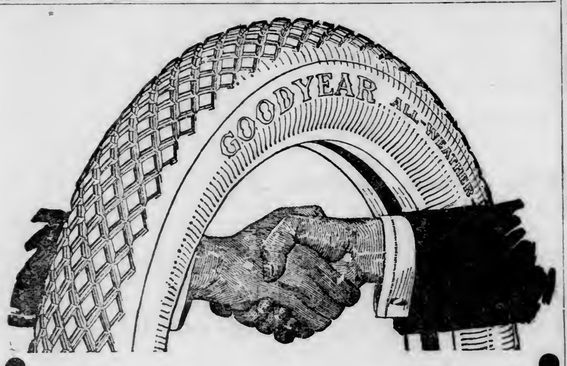

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

The Co-operative Tire

Goodyear has always built co-operative tires. Every saving has gone to the user. The more men bought the better we built them, and the lower we sold them.

That is why Goodyear has held top place, outselling any other tire.

3 Reductions

Note that in two years we made three big price reductions. The last—on February 1st—brought the total to 45 per cent.

Yet in costly ways these tires have been bettered. In not one iota were they ever skimped.

Our Fortified Tire is still "On-Air" cured to save blow-outs. Yet that one extra costs us $450,000 yearly.

It still has our No-Rim-Cut feature. It has in each base 126 braided piano wires to make the tire secure. It embodies hundreds of rubber rivets, formed to combat loose treads.

Our All-Weather tread is still double-thick. It still has the sharp, tough, resistless grips.

Those extras—all exclusive to Goodyear—are all retained, despite our price reductions. And we still spend $100,000 yearly to discover new ways to better them.

Your Ally

In all these ways, Goodyear is your ally. You do injustice to yourself when you fail to secure this advantage. Never in tire history was such value given as you get in Goodyear tires today.

No smaller makers can ever give so much.

Any dealer will supply you. [2327]

GRADE TEAMS SHOW CLASS

Real Baseball Is Played By the Embryo Hans Wagners.

Adams Continue Winning Streak; Little Ward Shows Good Form.

WESTERN DIVISION.
Adams, 19; Emersons, 2.. Lincolns, 6; Bryants, 2. Irvings, 16; Jacksons, 2.

EASTERN DIVISION.
Lakesides, 7; Endions, 2. Jeffersons, 11; Salters, 9.

By far the best baseball that has been played in the Duluth Grade School league as yet was displayed by ten teams that competed yesterday.

In the game between the Adams and Emersons the battery work of Willis and Swanson for the winning team was the feature of the contest. The work of the Adams kids is beginning to attract attention throughout the league. Willis is a real star and his battery mate, Swanson, is doing some nifty catching.

Lageski did some nifty twirling for the Lincolns and his delivery was ably handled by Johnson. The work of the Lincolns in all departments of the game was fine, the play in this contest being about the best of the season.

Little Ward did some stellar flinging for the Lakesides and held the Endion team safe all the way. The hurling of the diminutive Ward compared favorably to that of the great Willis. Young rooters of the grade school league are already hoping that the Lakesides and Adams meet, in order that a pitching duel may be staged between Willis and Ward.

Hoxie and Appleby formed the battery for the Endions. Cole and O'Neil, big league names, worked in the battery points for the Jeffersons and aided their team in vanquishing the Salters.

All of the teams are rounding into form and some fast baseball is the result. The race in both divisions of the league is growing interesting. The Adams have already established a strong following in the Western division of the league, while in the Eastern division the going has been very even to date.

WILL TRY TO RACE.

Prospects Favorable for Frequently Postponed Auto Sweepstakes.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 29.—After three postponements because of weather conditions, prospects were favorable early today for the running here of the 200-mile Southwest sweepstakes automobile race.

Ten drivers entered for the $5,000 purse, and bonuses for a new world's record on the 2.49 mile track were expected to bring out some brilliant speeding.

TRAP SHOOTERS' SPORT.

Plenty of Contests Are Scheduled in North Dakota.

Fargo, N. D., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prior to the big state meet of the trapshooters at Dickinson the latter part of June and the meetings at Beach, Belfield, Mandan and other western points preceding that, there will be four registered tournaments in this section in which the trap shooters can participate and probably some unregistered meets will be held on open dates between the registered events.

The fun will start at Perham June 4 and will be followed by a fishing trip. June 8 there will be a tournament at Lisbon and another at La Moure on June 9. Grand Forks holds a two-day shoot June 17-18, after which the scene shifts westward.

The Jack rabbit system of dividing the moneys will prevail at all meetings. At Perham there will be an added purse of $100, $150 at Lisbon, $75 at La Moure and $325 at Grand Forks in cash and prizes.

At Lisbon there will also be tower shooting. Practice shoots will precede all regular events.

MORE THAN 200 MASONS AT SMOKER

Varied Program Given and Business Session Is Held.

More than 200 Masons were present last evening at the entertainment and smoker given at the Masonic temple by Keystone Chapter No. 20, Royal Arch Masons. The program was open not only to Chapter Masons but also to members of the local "blue lodges." Several non-affiliated resident members of the order were also present as guests of Keystone chapter.

The entertainment was preceded by a short business meeting of the chapter, at which Dr. W. J. Works, high priest, presided.

A quartet consisting of William Hancock, Frank Fenstermacher, Dr. J. G. Annand and W. C. Robinson, and an orchestra each rendered several selections. Musical numbers were also furnished by Gustav Jackson and Arthur J. O'Donnell, who played violin solos and Clarence McDonald, who gave a piano selection.

Ike Black entertained with a number of short dialect stories and two readings were given by Sylvester Hansen. During the course of the evening, Rev. John W. Hoffman made an address appropriate to the occasion.

The committee in charge of the program consisted of the following chapter members: George L. Hargraves, A. M. Frazee and Gustav Flaaten.

McCleary at Galveston.

Galveston, Texas, April 29.—Among the fifty passengers on the steamship City of Tampico, which arrived today from Vera Cruz and Tampico, was Phil E. McCleary, the American newspaper man recently reported sentenced to death by Carranza. McCleary says he has had no trouble with the Carranza government and still is employed by the Constitutionalist news service.

GASES CAUSE ASPHYXIATION

British Expert Reports on Deadly Fumes Used By Germans.

Soldiers Died From Acute Bronchitis, Caused By Irritant Gas.

London, April 29.—Dr. John S. Haldane, who was sent to France to observe the effect of the gases used by the Germans in opening their attack near Ypres, reports that he examined several Canadians who had been incapacitated by the gases.

"These men," he said, "were lying struggling for breath and blue in the face. On examining their blood with a spectroscope and by other means, I found that the blueness was not due to the presence of any abnormal pigment. There was nothing to account for the blueness or their struggles for air, but one fact, and that was that they were suffering from acute bronchitis such as is caused by the inhalation of an irritant gas. Their statements were to the effect that when in the trenches they had been overwhelmed by an irritant gas, produced in front of the German trenches and carried toward them by a gentle breeze.

"One of the men died shortly after our arrival. A postmortem examination showed that death was due to acute bronchitis and its secondary effects. There was not any doubt that the bronchitis and accompanying slow asphyxiation were due to irritant gas.

White Smoke Arose.

"Capt. Bertram of the Eighth Canadians, who was suffering from the effects of gas, and from wounds, says that from a support trench about 600 yards from the German lines, he observed the gas. He saw first of all white smoke rising from the German trenches to a height of about three feet. Then, in front of the white smoke appeared a green cloud which drifted along the ground to our trenches, not rising more than seven feet from the ground.

"When it reached our first trenches, the men in these trenches were obliged to leave and a number of them were killed by the effects of the gas. We made a counter-attack about fifteen minutes after the gas came over, and saw twenty-four men lying dead from the effects of the gas on a small stretch of road leading from the advanced trenches to the supports. Capt. Bertram was much affected by the gas and felt as though he could not breathe.

For Purpose of Asphyxiation.

"These symptoms and other fatalities so far point to the use by German troops of chloride or bromide for the purpose of asphyxiation. There also are fatalities pointing to the use in German shells of other irritant substances. Still the last of these agents are not of the same brutality and barbarous character as was the gas used in the attack on the Canadians.

"The effects are not those of any of the ordinary products of combustion of explosives. On this point the symptoms described left not the slightest doubt in my mind."

Dr. John Scott Haldane is an authority on the physiology of respiration. He has served on several royal commissions and has carried out other special inquiries for government departments on public health questions.

WOULD PURIFY SEWAGE.

System Must Undergo Expensive Modification, Says Silberstein.

Purification of sewage before it is discharged into the lake is recommended by Commissioner Silberstein.

"One of the serious questions that will confront Duluth's city government in the near future is that of a proper sewage system," said Mr. Silberstein yesterday. "It is apparent that the present system will have to undergo expensive modification before long, owing to activity of the national government in preventing lake pollution. It is safe to say that discharge of waste into the lake must be abandoned before long, or the government will force us to make the change."

"A plant to purify sewage would be the necessary system, in case of change. These plants, which are in use in some cities, purify sewage before it is discharged into any body of water."

TO WITHHOLD PAYMENT.

Contractors Must Repair Pavement on East Sixth Street.

Final payment for the East Sixth street pavement completed a year ago, will be withheld by Commissioner Farrell, head of the public works division, because the highway is already in need of repairs.

A number of property owners have petitioned Commissioner Farrell not to pay the balance of $392 until the contractors repair a number of cracks. They also claim that the surfacing is beginning to peel.

The thoroughfare was paved from Eighteenth to Woodland avenues.

TO HEAR METCALF APPEAL.

Civil Service Commission Will Consider Inspectorship Case.

R. N. Metcalf's appeal will be heard by the civil service commission this afternoon.

Mr. Metcalf, who was a health inspector under Dr. H. E. Webster, was discharged by Health Director Fahey last week, and he immediately filed a complaint with the civil service commission, declaring that the latter had no right to put him out of office.

Dr. Fahey appointed M. J. Segal to succeed Mr. Metcalf, claiming that the former had been discharged without cause by the Hicken administration and that he merely reinstated Mr. Segal to his old position.

WILL ACCEPT OFFER TO SETTLE FOR FRYE

Washington, April 29.—A second note from the United States government to Germany concerning the sinking of the American ship William P. Frye by the commerce raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich was sent to Berlin yesterday. It is understood to accept the German proposition to compensate the owners of the Frye under the terms of the old Prussian-American treaties of 1799 and 1828 regardless of any prize court decision.

These treaties provide that contraband belonging to the subjects of either party shall not be confiscated by the other in any case, but may be detained or used only in consideration of payment of the full value.

While willing to agree to payment for the Frye as proposed, the United States stands by its original protest against the destruction of the ship as a violation of international law, and again denies that the cargo of wheat consigned to a British port was contraband. No claim for the cargo was made, because it was sold en route to British dealers.

WAVING THE BIG STICK

Owners of Dirty Backyards Will Be Exposed By Photographs.

The "Clean-Up" Committee Means Business; Kindly Until Trifled With.

Duluth's new "flying squadron" in a record fight against dirt, will have completed a canvas of every business house in the city, from Lakeside to New Duluth by tonight.

As the first step in preliminary preparations for clean-up and paint-up week from May 9 to May 15, a committee of business men, composed of Frank X. Gravel, Charles H. Kelly, R. D. Annis and Frank Nixon, has made the rounds and pledged every business man in the city to do his share in scrubbing Duluth.

"Boostingly yours," F. X. Gravel, chairman of the committee, announced today that his correspondence was being signed "Yours for cleanliness," and that the "boostingly yours," a byword among Duluth boosters for several years, was in danger of being discarded.

"Yours for cleanliness" has been adopted as the official motto of the clean-up squadron, who promises some surprises for Duluthians who set back and "let George do it" when it comes to cleaning up their back yards and raking their lawns.

Photographers have been secured in every ward in the city, and as the squadron makes its rounds, a record is made of all unsightly corners, alleys and unoccupied lots. The committee believes in being kindly and courteous as long as a spirit of co-operation is shown, but when every other means is exhausted the big stick will be used.

"After May 15 these photographers will be put to work," said Mr. Gravel, "and starting about May 20 we will stage a moving picture show, displaying the picture of the dirty spot, with the name of the owner, or the party responsible for its condition.

Chimney sweeps, characteristic because of their peaked hats and short trousers, will be replaced by roof sweepers, in the next few days, if plans of the committee are carried out.

"Office building roofs are dirty," declares Mr. Gravel, "and we want them swept, as long as every other nook and corners of the city is to be swept, scoured and polished.

Hardware firms are laying in a large supply of paint, whitewash and brushes, so that Friend Husband can wield the brush when he comes home at night, and put the finishing touches on the work done during the day by Friend Wife.

FROST MAY NIP, IS WARNING GIVEN

The weather forecaster, H. W. Richardson, does not want to scare anybody, but he says that tonight it will be well for those having shrubbery or foliage of any kind out to protect them, for the atmosphere will be cooler and in low places there may be frost.

Mr. Richardson was misquoted in the weather article yesterday concerning the last day of 32-deg. weather. It said that the average date was May 25 or 26. He should have been quoted as saying that those were about the average dates for putting in a garden.

SENATE PASSES BILL OVER VETO

Wisconsin Anti-Tipping Bill Is Again Put on Passage.

Madison, Wis., April 29.—The senate today voted to override the governor's veto of the Boshard anti-tipping bill, passing it for a second time by a vote of 20 to 10. It required a two-thirds vote of the members present. Many of the governor's most loyal supporters in the senate were compelled by their convictions on the subject to vote against the recommendations contained in the veto message. This was the first veto of the session.

The senate passed the Arnold home rule amended resolution by a vote of 22 to 8 and the bill obviating the necessity of political candidates filing the same expense accounts twice.

Amended, to allow the governor to disburse money for forest fire protection in the forest reserve whenever the necessity arises, the Tomkins bill, over which the senate has been at loggerheads for two weeks, passed today.

The legislature today invited Former President Taft to address it in joint session when he comes to Madison next week.

Cities may appoint policewomen by the terms of the Monk bill, which passed the senate by four majority. This was one of the anti-vice committee's proposals.

The senate bill regulating the practice of massage and the assembly bill prohibiting state employes from lobbying were recommended for death by senate committees.

Mr. Burg announced this morning that the committee of seven will meet with the city commissioners at a meeting to be held at the Commercial club next Tuesday evening. At that time tentative plans will be outlined for a permanent advisory council.

Manager Fox of the Grand Forks club last night wired Larson to report to the Grand Forkers, his release having been announced by Manager Kelley of the Saints.

Larson did great work in the Northern circuit last season, but has had a hard time getting in shape this spring.

ONE WHEAT GRADE NOT ON MARKET

Reported Trade of Brooklyn Outfielder to New York Denied.

New York, April 2.—Officers of the Brooklyn National League Baseball club denied today that Zack Wheat, the Superbas' heavy hitting outfielder, was to be traded or sold to the New York Nationals. President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club said: "I am at a loss to understand how the report that Wheat was to be traded to the Giants for Robertson, Perritt and Murray originated. Apparently everybody in Brooklyn knew about the deal except the officers of the club. I consider that Wheat is more than the property of the Brooklyn club—he is the property of the Brooklyn fans. The story that he is to be sold or traded is ridiculous and cannot be denied too strongly."

The members of the New York National league office force also denied all knowledge of any deal.

Lights and Shadows of Police Court

QUICK WORK.

Arrest Is Made One Minute After Complaint Is Signed.

POLICE records for fast work were smashed to smithereens this morning by Fred Johnson, assistant secretary to Chief C. H. Troyer, when he arrested a jitney driver within a minute after a complaint against him had been signed. It was the first arrest credited to the secretary this year.

Edward Schluter, 23, the driver in question, was charged with reckless driving by August Elo, 202 South First avenue east. Elo was slightly injured when a machine driven by Schluter knocked him down as he was trying to cross Superior street at First avenue east.

Schluter, ignorant of the charge against him, was in court on other business, and a second after Elo signed the complaint, Secretary Johnson walked across the room and tapped Schluter on the shoulder.

He pleaded not guilty and will be given a hearing in court this afternoon. Louis Johnson, police jailer, was subpoened as chief witness for the defense, reversing the usual order of things.

ASKS TRIAL WITH TRIMMINGS.

Alleged Wife-Beater Demands Lawyer and "Everything Else."

"I plead not guilty and I demand a lawyer, and a jury trial, and everything else," said John F. Keranen, 26, in police court this morning.

Keranen was arrested by Humane Officer Robert M. McKercher and Officers Conners and Kreager, charged with assaulting his wife. It was the second time in three days that he had faced the judge.

"Your 'demands' will be allowed," said Judge Cutting. "It is customary to give every man a hearing in this court, and that law is that a man is innocent until proven guilty."

He will be given a hearing this afternoon.

PREFERRED BEER TO WORK.

Clean-up Job Halted; Workman Sent to Work Farm.

Clean-up and paint-up week will be a good thing for Duluth, according to Joseph McDonald, 58, unless very many men have to work right beside a large case of cool beer.

McDonald has been employed by a family at 1415 East Superior street for several days and has been cleaning out the cellar. There was a case of beer in one corner of the basement, and when the head of the house noticed McDonald's wistful side glances at the case, he invited him to "have one."

McDonald hastened to comply, and it tasted so good that he went back for more, according to the story he told Municipal Judge F. H. Cutting this morning.

When the case was empty, McDonald went down town and, finished things off with some more refreshments, fell and bumped his nose, and was arrested by Officer Thompson.

He was sentenced to seven days at the work farm.

COMFORT FOR PROSECUTOR.

Richeson Secures Suitable Chair for Attorney Gonska.

In preparation for the advent of Walter Gonska, newly appointed assistant city attorney, who will take office May 1, Walter Richeson, police court clerk, went into conference with carpenters and architects this morning.

Although police court chairs are commodious enough to allow for burly patrolmen, Clerk Richeson is of the opinion that the new prosecutor should be provided for particularly, and has undertaken the task of getting a chair of the right size.

"It will be a good thing for the 'repeaters,'" said Mr. Richeson, "because the prosecuting attorney would not be in good humor if he were compelled to sit in an uncomfortable chair."

Attorney Gonska was in court today for the first time, going over the details of the work with William H. Gurnee, whom he succeeds.

ONE DRINK; TWO IN JAIL.

Man Who Treats Objects to Having Change Picked Up.

Despite attacks from William Jennings Bryan, Czar Nicholas of Russia, Lord Kitchener and other members of the "grape juice" brigade, the demon rum still is hale and hearty, as evidenced in municipal court this morning.

One drink proved enough to land two men in jail, one on a charge of intoxication, and the other for petty larceny.

William M. Gonyes, 28, bought a 50-cent round of drinks in a West Michigan street saloon last night and William C. Prince, 32, one of the drinkers, picked up the change from a $10 bill which Gonyen deposited on the bar. Both were arrested by Officer Callahan and both pleaded not guilty before Judge F. H. Cutting. They will be given a hearing this afternoon.

German Society Celebrates.
In celebration of the twenty-ninth anniversary of its organization, a dance will be given at Maccabee hall tomorrow evening by the Arbeiter und Unterstutzungs Verein. This, it is explained, should not be confused with the annual ball of the society, but is merely in observance of the society's natal day.

Munger Club to Meet.
The Munger Improvement club will meet on Friday evening at the Munger school, Twelfth avenue east and Eighth street to discuss the matter of the Ninth street paving, for the prevention of which, a second petition is being circulated. A report of the committee appointed some time ago to look after the matter of getting a bridge across Chester creek, is also expected, and Commissioner J. A. Farrell may be present. An interesting meeting is expected.

New Members of Elks.
A large class of candidates was initiated last evening by Duluth lodge No. 133, B. P. O. E., at the Elks club. During the evening, vaudeville numbers were presented by Hoey & Lee and Rives & Harrison, both of the Orpheum circuit. Henry Miller, a Superior Elk, gave some good imitations of Harry Lauder. The initiation ceremonies were followed by a lunch.

Will Aid Naval Militia.
Stance Sturminski of 720 Garfield avenue, who has been in the navy eight years, has been ordered to report to Commander Guy A. Eaton of the U. S. S. Gopher, for duty on board that vessel with the Minnesota state naval militia. Mr. Sturminski is a naval gunnery expert, and his knowledge will be of value to the local militia in instructing recruits. He is at present on thirty days' leave at his home in this city. He re-enlisted at the main office in Minneapolis a week ago.

Realty Firm Incorporates.
Articles of incorporation were filed today with Charles Calligan, register of deeds, by the Central Acres Land company. The concern is organized to engage in a general real estate and land business, with a capital stock of $50,000 divided into 500 shares at $100 each. The incorporators are: F. A. Cokefair, A. W. Taussig and H. W. Cheadle.

Sixteen persons were given their citizenship papers in the United States court here today as follows: Johan Paavo Myllyniemi, John James Farinan, Erick Bantola, John Henrich Maki, Martin Carlson, William Weton, Mayer Rose, George John Hallenbeck, John Hueckman, George David Shannon, Andrew Murphy, Ole Monson, John Oberg, Johannes Michaelson, Afsy Tannabursky, John Edmonds.

Thirteen Bankrupts Discharged.
Thirteen petitions in bankruptcy were gone over by Federal Judge Page Morris today, and the petitioners were discharged. Those dismissed follow: Benjamin Condi, George E. Hoiper, Charles A. Stanley, Nick J. Smith, P. J. Pusch company, William Greer, Albert Hagen, Morris Nathanson, H. A. Carmichael of Brainerd, Charles D. Hart, Engelbert Anderson, John R. Joyce and Victor Michalek.

Hotel Clerks Banquet.
The hotel clerks of Duluth will hold their annual banquet tonight at 11 o'clock at the St. Louis hotel. Special arrangements for an affair of unusually pleasing features have been made.

Reports from Washington this morning stated that Ole G. Larson, 1109 East Fifth street, had been granted a patent on a self-lubricating die stock.

Parker Funeral.
Funeral services for Charles A. Parker, treasurer of the Rust-Parker company, wholesale grocers, who died at a St. Paul hospital last night, will be held from the family residence, 1906 East Third street, at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Plans were completed early this afternoon on receipt of word from Mrs. Parker, who will return to Duluth from St. Paul with the body tonight.

Widow Decision Due.
A decision from the district court on the municipal judgeship election question is expected to be handed down some time this afternoon. The court has had the matter under advisement for several days and it is believed that the decision will be reached and filed this afternoon. If the decision is filed before 6 o'clock this evening, an account of what it contains will be published in a later edition of today's Herald.

WAR ORDERS INCREASING

Orders being placed in this country for war munitions and supplies by the European belligerents are reported to be on the increase. Contracts running up into tens of millions of dollars have been passed out during the last ten days.

Orders for more than 1,000 lathes, most of them to be used by American companies who have taken munition contracts, are reported. Among concerns that are figuring on large projectile contracts are the International Steam & Pump company and the Buffalo Foundry & Machine company, both of Buffalo. The Washington Steel & Ordnance company has booked another shrapnel contract. War orders of the Baldwin Locomotive company are estimated at $20,000,000 and those of the New York Air Brake company and the Westinghouse Air Brake company together at $30,000,000. The Lackawanna Steel company has closed orders for 50,000 tons of shrapnel steel at $45 a ton, making a total of $2,250,000. Other concerns that have sold shrapnel steel are the Cambria, Republic and Carnegie companies.

Orders for aeroplanes aggregating $1,000,000 are reported to have been placed in this country within a week. These include 400 machines to be furnished by the Curtis plant at Buffalo, and ten Burgess-Dunn biplanes costing $10,000 each.

Among miscellaneous business reported is an order from Russia for $1,000,000 worth of shrapnel boxes, placed with southern manufacturers, and requiring 4,000,000 feet of lumber. The Republic Rubber company, Youngstown, Pa., has an order for 10,000 automobile truck tires, the duplicate of an order placed a week earlier.

A representative of a European government is reported to have sought in vain for 500,000 rifles, 100,000 to be delivered in June and the rest at the rate of 100,000 a month. The total value of the order would be between $7,500,000 and $10,000,000, against which the purchaser offered to advance 25 per cent. American dealers were unable to make the required delivery.

Europe has spent about $80,000,000 for horses and mules in the United States since last September. England, France, Italy, Greece and Switzerland are still eager buyers. The French government recently closed a contract in New York with the representative of a Western horse dealing concern for 40,000 horses. It is said that Belgium is contracting for 10,000 horses to be used in agricultural work, and that France will buy the same number for similar purposes.

MARKET IS HELD STEADY

Wheat Recovers on Export Inquiry After Showing Weakness Early.

Flaxseed Bulges Sharply, With Good Buying By Crushers' Interests.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 29.—The market was steady up to the close. May wheat closed ⅛c off, July ¼c off, and September ¼c up. May durum closed unchanged, July unchanged, and September was quoted at $1.25. Oats closed ⅜c off at 53¼@53⅝c for on the track; rye unchanged at $1.15@1.16; barley unchanged at from 67c to 76c and corn ¼c off at 75¾c.

At Winnipeg, May oats closed ⅜c off at 63¾c, and July ½c off at 65c asked. Puts on Minneapolis July wheat closed at $1.51 bid, and calls at $1.55¾.

Trading in the wheat market was fairly active again today, but quotations did not cover as wide a range as yesterday. At the start the market showed weakness under the impetus of lower Liverpool cables and the reported unloading of a long line by a prominent Chicago operator.

Firmness developed later on the receipt of reports of dry weather conditions in some sections of Illinois and renewal of export inquiry. The working of a small lot of No. 2 northern for export and of some lower grade wheat to Eastern millers was advised locally.

For the second time in the history of the local board of trade, wheat has been shipped from the elevators here and gone forward to the seaboard in time to clear for export before the end of April. The clearing of a lot of spring wheat from here at New York was reported yesterday and was the subject of some comment by operators on the board this morning. It is regarded as attesting the expedition with which the shipments were handled by the transportation interests.

Shipping men have been busy this week in getting grain loaded out from the houses and it is predicted that supplies of coarse grains left here by tomorrow night will be down to the lowest notch in years. Spring wheat supplies are expected to be reduced very close to the 3,500,000-bu mark. "We have been doing hand-turns this week in moving boats around to the different elevators and taking out small jags left in the bins in some instances. There is not going to be much stuff left in Superior elevators at any rate," said a vessel man this morning.

Favorable news regarding the outlook over the Northwest is being received from practically all points. Spring wheat is now practically all in and in many districts the plant is said to be well above the ground and to be looking well.

May wheat opened ¼c off at $1.62⅜, advanced later on a burst of good buying to $1.63¾ and at the noon hour its figure stood at $1.62¾. July opened ⅝c off at $1.58, advanced ⅞c and then weakened to $1.58¼. September opened ½c off at $1.25¾ and gained ¼c.

Trading in durum was quiet. The May future opened unchanged at $1.70½ and weakened ½c. July opened ½c off at $1.67 and gained ½c.

Bulge in Flaxseed.

Flaxseed advanced through the session on good demand from crushers with increasing lightness in offerings. The improvement in the market for linseed oil over the country is said to be marked and is leading to activity on the part of crushers. On that score, the leading interests in the trade are coming into the market more freely for supplies.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.96¼, and closed 1½c up at $1.97¾ asked. July opened unchanged at $1.99, and closed 1¾c up at $2.00¾ asked. September opened unchanged at $2.02, and closed 1½c up at $2.03¼ asked.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed ⅝c up at $1.78⅝, and July ½c up at $1.82 bid.

At Buenos Aires, flax closed 1¾c up at $1.20¼, and at London, 1¾c up at $1.87⅝.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Approximately 2,330,000 bu of grain has been loaded out of the elevator at the Head of the Lakes during the last few days that has not yet been reported out of stocks. Of that, 833,000 bu is spring wheat; 46,821 bu bonded wheat; 632,300 bu oats, and 620,700 bu corn. This will reduce wheat stocks remaining in the houses to 5,300,000 bu.; oats to 1,200,000 bu., and corn to 484,000. The steamer Hubbard loaded 545,000 bu oats at the Globe elevator today.

At Minneapolis cash demand was firm with a good demand. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 4@6c over May, and velvet chaff at 2@3c over May.

Flour sales were moderate, but shipping directions were fair.

Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from $1.59 to $1.63, and No. 2 northern at from $1.55 to $1.60. Wheat stocks in Minneapolis elevators decreased 700,000 bu in five days.

Government reports that the rainfall in the eastern section of the country is the most deficient in forty years. It is taken to mean a short hay, and perhaps a short oats crop.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: The general market was dull, but the undertone firm as a result of the firmness in America and strength in Plate offers. Spot market was steady and practically unchanged with the exception of Manitobas which were normally lower. Cargo market firm, winters 4½d higher, with Plates and Indian offers unchanged. Expectations are for larger shipments from Argentina this week with a good amount to the United Kingdom, and millers demand shows some abatement. Corn is strong, with continued few Plate offers and strength in spot. Cargo market is 3d higher, with on passage being absorbed heavily. Argentine weather reports are conflicting. Our agent reports it generally more favorable, clear and cold in parts. The markets there are nervous and sentiment is mixed as a result of favorable weather now."

Van Dusen-Harrington company's weekly crop letter covering crop condition in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, says: "Wheat seeding is finished, and in much of the territory covered by this report wheat is three or four inches high. It shows a fine stand and good color, with an increased acreage. The seed germinated quicker than usual and by May 1 the wheat crop will be as far along as usual on that date, in spite of the late start. Seeding of oats is well along, and the farmers are busy preparing their corn ground. If rain does not interfere there will be some corn planted in the southern section the first week in May."

Foreign crop summary: India—Harvesting is finished in the Punjaub and quality excellent with the yield large. Australia—Further rain has fallen and the agricultural outlook is very favorable.

France—Weather is favorable. Foreign buying continues of wheat and oats.

Portugal—Heavy rain has fallen for some time, and the standing crops have suffered as warm weather is needed. The general outlook is unfavorable.

At Liverpool the corn situation continues strong with arrivals light. Cash corn is strong in Argentina, and holders of old crop are only selling at the extreme advance, and on passage, quantities are being competed for at very high prices. Freights continue strong.

Le Count wired this morning from Columbus, Ohio: "Wheat looks splendid here; coming into second joint and will make a fine crop with another good rain in about ten days. There is not much moisture here, but plenty to carry the crop safely for ten days. Oats look fine but are very late."

A New York wire received by Chas. E. Lewis & Co. said: "It is understood that the Holland government has bought about 150,000 sacks of flour of 110 pounds each this week. Quantity is lighter than expected. Reports received early as to the export demand for wheat are rather conflicting. There seems to be some inquiry for old wheat, but demand for new is small."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Rally Quickly Following Heaviness at the Start.

Chicago, April 29.—Wheat rallied quickly today from an early decline. Heaviness at the start appeared to be due somewhat to predictions of larger Argentine shipments and to favorable crop advices from India and Australia. Reports of improved flour business at Minneapolis, however, tended to bring about a reaction, and so also did fear of crop damages in the eastern part of the domestic winter belt. After opening unchanged to 1⅜c lower, prices mounted to well above last night's level all around.

Afterward a setback resulted from selling associated with lack of important export call. The close was unsettled, ⅝c off to ⅛c up, compared with last night.

Sales of corn to go to store here had a bearish effect on further deliveries. An upturn when wheat showed a rally proved brief. The opening which varied from a shade to ⅛c lower, was followed by a recovery, and then a fresh decline.

Favorable weather for planting counted at times against the bulls. The close, however, was steady at ¼@⅜c decline to a shade advance, compared with last night.

Holders of oats appeared inclined to realize profits. The sagging of the market, however, was checked to some extent by a fair cash demand.

Provisions advanced a little in line with the hog market. The selling was only of a scattered sort.

TRADE REPORTS MORE OPTIMISTIC

Authorities Now Concede That Confidence Has Been Restored.

Reports of trade conditions from all sections of the country are growing increasingly optimistic in their tone. It is conceded that confidence has been largely restored, and in the opinion of good authorities, the country is in for a period of better times.

Bache's Review of New York says that reports of business conditions it had been receiving from various points had not been encouraging until recently. "Last week, however, we began to hear of bursts of sudden amazing activity," it comments. "A concern in the Middle West, which up to three weeks ago was running on lowest capacity and doing comparatively nothing, today says: To our astonishment orders have come in to such an extent that we are working twenty-three hours out of the twenty-four. This is not on war orders. Here and there, through the country, we hear of such sparks kindling. It will not be so very long before activity will be the rule. If railroads follow suit of Pennsylvania, as they usually do, railroad buying will absorb the attention of the reviewer and start activity in every direction. It is said that railroad officials of other roads always lie low on equipment buying until it is seen what Pennsylvania will do and then follow suit. This is because they fear if they do not follow, other roads will and then they will have difficulty in getting completed orders in time for the fall rush. Inquiries are in already, it is reported, from Great Northern and Northern Pacific and also from Chicago Great-Western.

"The crop situation, as far as developed, is a favorable underlying factor at present."

ADVANCES IN SPECIALTIES

United States Steel Has Rise Which Is Largely Lost.

Belated Rise in Westinghouse and the Closing Is Irregular.

New York, April 29.—A broader tendency was manifested in today's early stock market, general gains embracing a variety of issues. War specialties were again prominent, however; Westinghouse, General Electric, American Locomotive, New York Air Brake and Pressed Steel Car rising from 1 to over 3 points. Among the leaders, Amalgamated Copper was conspicuous for an initial gain of 1¼. Railway investment shares showed a firm undertone and local tractions added to yesterday's gains. A few declines recorded were mainly among unimportant stocks.

Steel was the only leading stock today to retain its early activity and strength, advancing to within a substantial fraction of its recent high quotations. Reading, Union Pacific and Amalgamated reflected distinct pressure on moderate offerings and war stocks moved uncertainly. Westinghouse and Air Brake yielding their gains. Dealings in Westinghouse, Interborough and American Can were far in excess of the trading in more representative issues. There were many gains throughout the list, however. Wabash securities advancing materially on publication of the reorganization plan. The preferred stock and refunding bonds rose four to five points. Bonds were strong.

A further rise in Steel to 60⅝ imparted greater strength to the entire list, which recorded gains of 2 to 3 points. The 1½ point rise in Consolidated Gas was explained by the increased dividend.

United States Steel and war specialties were the features of today's market, after gaining 2 to 6 points.

A belated rise in Westinghouse to 98 and the loss of the greater part of Steel's gain marked the late trading. The closing was irregular.

DUNKIRK, FRANCE, IS BOMBARDED BY GERMANS

WITNESS SAYS BARNES TOLD HIM LIMELIGHT COULD RUIN ANY MAN

Gave That as His Reasons for Opposing Direct Primaries.

Declared It Would Give Too Much Publicity to Candidates.

Witnesses for Roosevelt Occupy Stand in Libel Suit.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 30.—That William Barnes in giving his reasons for opposing direct primaries legislation had said he believed such elections would give too much publicity to candidates for office, as they would be forced to go through two campaigns, was the sworn testimony given in the supreme court here today by L. W. France, chairman of a committee of the Young Republican club of Brooklyn.

Mr. France said under oath that Mr. Barnes had told him the reputation of any man could be ruined by turning the limelight upon him and that he could vote the riffraff of the Democrats in Albany in the Republican primaries and so disgust the people that they would demand a repeal of the bill.

Counsel for the colonel unsuccessfully endeavored during the day to get from H. H. Vreeland, former president of the Metropolitan Securities company, the holding company for the New York Street Railway's company, testimony that he had contributed to both the Democratic and Republican organizations in 1903, when Mr. Barnes was chairman of the executive committee of the Republican state committee.

Hinman a Witness.

The first witness was Harvey D. Hinman. He said he remembered what went on in the senate in 1911 when a United States senator to succeed Chauncey M. Depew was chosen.

Counsel for Col. Roosevelt then read what purported to be a record of the votes candidates received. All the candidates were Democrats except Mr. Depew, Mr. Hinman said.

Early votes read showed that William F. Sheehan and Mr. Depew were the closest contestants. In a later vote the name of James A. O'Gorman appeared. Justice O'Gorman was victorious.

Mr. Hinman then testified to introducing in 1910 the Hinman-Green direct primaries bill in the state sen-

DIRECTED TO INVESTIGATE

President Orders Attorney General to Look Into Pearson Suit.

Doubtful If Any Federal Statute Is Being Violated.

Washington, April 30. — President Wilson today directed Attorney General Gregory to make an investigation so that the government may be informed of the complaint filed yesterday in Milwaukee to determine whether the Allis-Chalmers company has entered a conspiracy with the Bethlehem Steel company or others to ship shrapnel shells to Europe. The action, brought under the "discovery" statute of Wisconsin, is a state affair, but as it contends that certain Federal statutes are being violated, the attorney general was directed to investigate that phase especially. Officials know of no law to prevent shipments of ammunition as articles of commerce and they assume it is contended the neutrality laws are being violated in some other way. State department officials said they could see no way in which the Federal government could be involved in the suit unless it concerned something more than the right of ammunition manufacturers to sell munitions to the belligerents.

Hero of Boer War.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 30.—Gen. Samuel Pearson, who last night, through his attorneys, filed a complaint and summons under the so-called "discovery" statute of Wisconsin to secure information to determine whether the Allis-Chalmers company, corporation, Otto Folk, its president, and others, have entered into a conspiracy with the Bethlehem Steel company and others not yet known to manufacture and ship shrapnel shells to European belligerents, is said to be a hero of the Boer war and the action dates back to a suit begun by him during the Boer war in 1899.

At that time Gen. Pearson, then a citizen of the Boer republic, sued out a temporary writ of injunction before the United States circuit court in Louisiana, restraining Great Britain from shipping mules and horses to be used in actual conflict. The temporary restraining order was issued, but a permanent order was denied on non-jurisdictional grounds.

ARBITRATORS NEAR AWARD

Decision in Railroad Wage Case Expected Shortly.

Ninety-Eight Railroads and 64,000 Men Involved in Matter.

Chicago, April 30.—Members of the board of arbitration in the Western railroad wage case, after a curtailed night's sleep, today resumed their efforts to agree on an award, the time limit for announcement of which expires at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The members of the board are Judge Peter C. Pritchard, presiding judge of the United States court of appeals for the Fourth circuit, who is chairman; Charles Nagel, former secretary of commerce and labor; W. L. Park, vice president of the Illinois Central; H. E. Byram, vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Frederick A. Burgess, assistant grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and Timothy Shea, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

All showed the effects of the recent strain of long sessions and lack of sleep last night, when they were in session until after midnight. While it would be possible to extend still further the time to deliver the award, it was understood that a desperate attempt would be made to get together on points still under dispute by 4 o'clock.

Requests of Men.

Essentials of the requests of the men follow:

1.—One hundred miles or less, five hours or less, to constitute a day's work in passenger service. Overtime pro rata. One hundred miles or less, ten hours or less, to constitute a day's work in all service except passenger and switching, with time and a half for overtime.

2.—Varying advances in rate of pay, according to the weight of the engine driven, with a bonus of 10 per cent additional on grades of eight-tenths per cent or more. A 5 per cent increase over present rates on narrow gauge roads. Engineers and firemen to have rights to positions as motormen and helpers when steam power is displaced by electricity, without loss of seniority rights.

3.—Enginemen on way freights to receive 10 per cent more than on

HEAVY CASUALTY LIST OF CANADIANS

Last One Issued Contains Names of 136 Killed, Wounded or Missing.

Ottawa, Ont., April 30.—Casualty lists issued by the military department today contain the names of 136 members of the Canadian expeditionary forces killed, wounded or missing and are the heaviest given out since the Canadians have been in action. It is understood, however, that these lists are only a beginning, particularly with reference to the killed, whose names, residences and next of kin it takes a long time to trace.

The only officers among the killed in today's lists are Lieut. W. Fitzpatrick of Ashburton, Eng., and the Hon. Capt. John Herrick McGregor of Oak Bay, Victoria, B. C., both formerly reported wounded. Lieut. Fitzpatrick belonged to the Fifth battalion and Capt. McGregor to the Sixteenth.

Officers wounded include: Second Infantry brigade headquarters: Lieut.-Col. Hubert Kemmis Betty, Ottawa, Ont.; Third battalion, Capt. Douglas Herbert Campbell Mason (slightly), Toronto, Ont.; Fifth battalion, Capt. Edward Hilliam (seriously), London, Ont.; Eighth battalion, Capt. Gerald Francis de Courcy O'Grady, Winnipeg, Man.; Fourteenth battalion, Lieut. Henry Aubrey Thompson, Mitchell, Ont.; Sixteenth battalion, Lieut. George S. Ager, Victoria, B. C.

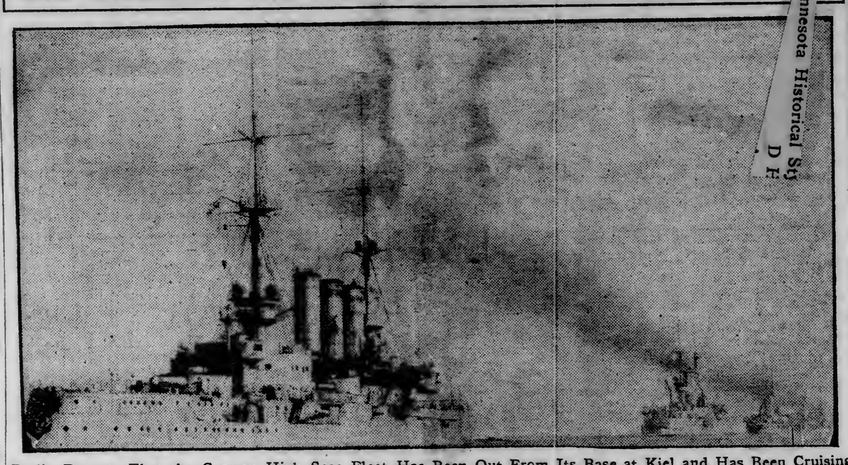

SUFFRAGETTES TO DESCEND ON WALL ST.

Committee to Ask Senator O'Gorman's Views on Woman Suffrage.

New York, April 30.—Five hundred women planned to take part in a demonstration in Wall street this afternoon and to send a delegation to the office of United States Senator O'Gorman to learn his views on the proposed suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution. This was the first of a series of visits to be made by deputations of members of the congressional union for woman suffrage upon the 435 members of congress throughout the country for a similar purpose. Senator O'Gorman had consented to receive the delegates at the request of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

Six women headed by Mrs. John Rogers were assigned to call at the senator's office while other suffrage leaders addressed a meeting to be held in the street in front of the sub-treasury building.

LINER MACEDONIA HAS BEEN RETAKEN

Interned Boat, Which Escaped, Is Being Taken to Gibraltar.

Paris, April 30.—A dispatch from Algeciras says that the Hamburg-American line steamer Macedonia, which escaped from Las Palmas, where she was interned on Nov. 13, has been recaptured and is being taken to Gibraltar with another captured German steamer.

There have been conflicting reports regarding the Macedonia, which was reported to have slipped out of Las Palmas harbor on March 10 laden with supplies believed to be intended for German warships. There have been other reports of her recapture.

BELGIANS REPULSE ATTACK BY GERMANS

London, April 30.—There has been given out at Belgian army headquarters an official report reading:

"During the night of April 28-29 our troops repulsed with success a German attack delivered from Steenstraate. On April 29 the enemy's artillery became active and bombarded at intervals various parts of our line. We occupied a farm to the south of Plauvoetbreg."

Paris, April 30, 4:20 p. m.—A dispatch from Athens to the Havas Agency says that the city of Gallipoli, on the European side of the Dardanelles near the entrance to the Sea of Marmora, has been captured by the allies.

It is also said that the Turkish fort at Nagara, on the Asiatic side of the straits, has been bombarded heavily.

BRITISH STEAMSHIP MOBILE TORPEDOED

Coal Carrier Sent Down By German Submarine; Crew Take to Boats.

London, April 30.—The British steamship which was reported last night to have been sunk by a German submarine off the Isle of Lewis, north of Scotland, was identified today as the British steamer Mobile carrying a cargo of coal.

The Mobile's crew of twenty-three men was landed today. The officers said that the sinking of the Mobile occurred on Wednesday. The crew was given ten minutes to take to the boats. They drifted about for nine hours before they reached land.

Trawler Sunk.

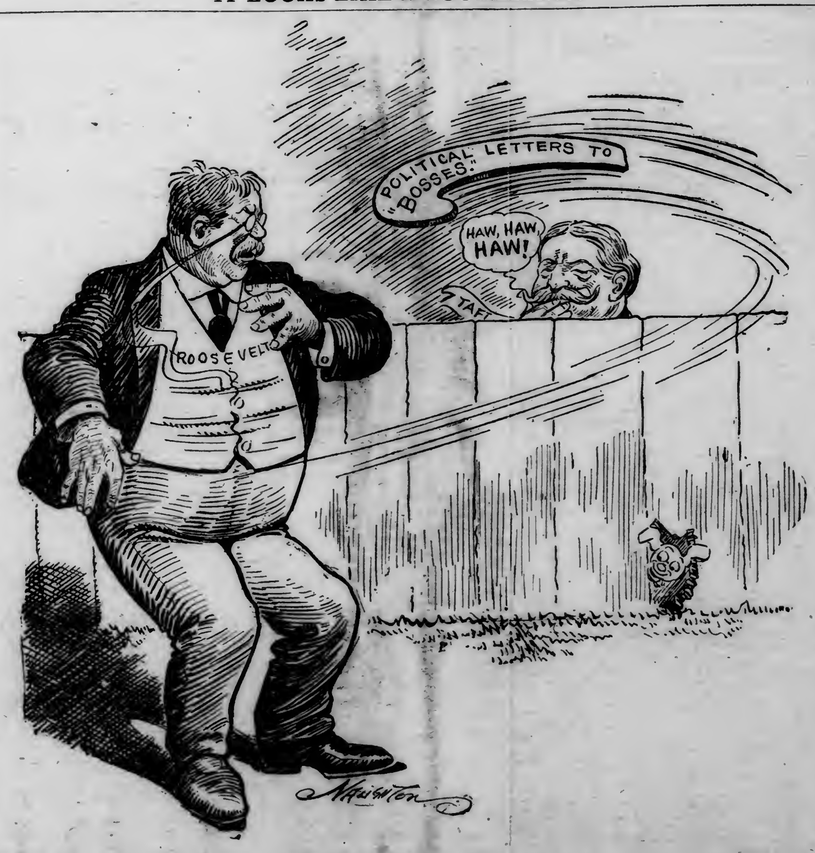

London, April 30.—The trawler Lily Dale has been sunk by a German submarine in the North sea, seventy-five miles off the mouth of the River Tyne.

A patrol boat picked up the crew of the trawler and then went in chase of the submarine. The submersible however, made its escape.

Peking, China, April 30.—The Chinese statesmen will meet the Japanese plenipotentiaries tomorrow when they will present China's reply to the last list of demands submitted by the Tokio government. There is reason to believe that the Chinese answer will contain only a limited number of further concessions.

IT LOOKS LIKE A BOOMERANG.

KAISER'S WARSHIPS APPEAR OFF COAST

Large Shells Fall on City, Killing Twenty Persons and Wounding Forty-Five; Several Houses Destroyed.

Presence of German Warships in North Sea Has Been Reported for Several Days From Several Sources.

Paris, April 30, via London, 2:10 p. m.—German warships have been seen off the Belgian coast, according to an official statement given out in Paris today. Large shells to the number of nineteen have fallen on Dunkirk. Twenty persons were killed and forty-five wounded. Some houses were destroyed.

SHELLED BY ARTILLERY.

Berlin, April 30, by Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—German army headquarters today gave out a report on the progress of hostilities reading:

"Aviators have been active on the coast, at Ostend houses were damaged.

"The fortress at Dunkirk was shelled yesterday by German artillery.

Warships at Large.

There have been several dispatches in the last week indicating that German warships were at large in the North sea, evidently having evaded the British men-of-war, which for many months have been doing patrol duty in front of the German naval bases on the eastern side of the North sea.

The latest report along this line was brought in by Capt Scott of a Swedish steamer, who declared that he had seen in the North sea a German fleet numbering no less than sixty-eight vessels of all classes, from battleships to torpedo boats. The Scott dispatch did not say where or when the ships had been sighted, but the inference was that the incident had occurred within a week.

Dunkirk is on the northern coast of France, within a few miles of the Belgian frontier. It is at the northern entrance of the English channel, and is to the west of Ostend.

Four Engagements.

There have been four engagements of importance in the North sea since the beginning of the war. The first was the battle of Helgoland the latter part of August, 1914, in which a British fleet sent four German warships to the bottom. In October four German destroyers were sunk in an engagement with British warships off the Dutch coast. Two months later, Dec. 16, a German cruiser squadron raided the east coast of England, bombarding Scarborough and the Hartlepools.

On Jan. 24 of the present year a British squadron intercepted a German squadron while it was crossing the North sea to make another raid on the English coast and sank the German cruiser Bluecher.

In addition to the foregoing engagements there has been considerable activity on the part of the German submarines, one of which succeeded in torpedoing the British cruisers Cressy, Hogue and Aboukir.

PLANS FOR WABASH REORGANIZATION OUT

New York, April 30.—Stockholders of the Wabash railroad company received today copies of a new re-organization plan announced by Winslow S. Pierce, chairman of the board of directors and of a joint re-organization committee. The plan provides for the organization of a new company with a capital stock of $205,118,000, a reduction of $17,201,377 from the stock of the existing company. It was announced that the plan was approved by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and that this firm has agreed to act as re-organization managers. A syndicate headed by that firm is being formed.

GERMANS ARE ON OFFENSIVE

General Movement Under Way Along Entire Prussian Border.

Advance This Time Evidently Aimed at the Baltic Provinces.

Petrograd, April 30, via London—A general German offensive movement once more is under way along the entire Prussian border from Tilsit to the Vistula river. The German advance this time evidently is aimed at the Baltic provinces which are rich in crops and other food supplies.

For months the military operations on the Prussian border had been limited to scouting parties, isolated artillery duels and aeroplane warfare.

From Polangen, a town in the Baltic province of Courland, it was reported today that an increased number of German cruisers were preparing to assist the contemplated advance of the land forces. Thus far the German offensive movement has consisted mainly of heavy artillery fire at intervals along the whole front and rapid cavalry advances without infantry support.

In Carpathians.

In the Carpathian front nothing has happened in the last two days to alter the curiously-balanced situation, namely the Russians directing an offensive against Uzsok and the Austrians attempting a movement in the direction of Stry. The Austrian forces temporarily are abandoning their attacks at other points and are being concentrated in an effort to bend back the Russian left wing, with Lwow (Lem-

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

The Turkish war office in direct conflict with advices from London and Paris officially says today that all the troops which landed on the Asiatic and European sides of the Dardanelles, with the exception of the forces at Gaba Tepe near the tip of Gallipoli peninsula, have been driven away and that several warships and transports of the allies have been damaged.

Advices from French and British sources say the landing forces are making marked progress. From these dispatches it would appear that the British have established two lines across the Gallipoli peninsula, which if maintained would cut off the Turkish forces from Constantinople. An unofficial report from Athens to Paris states that the allies have captured the town of Gallipoli on the straits at the entrance to the Sea of Marmora.

The German forces in the east have inaugurated another general offensive movement along the Prussian border. The movement is believed in Petrograd to be aimed at the Baltic provinces of Russia rich in crops and other supplies.

Two British steamers, a freighter and a trawler have been sunk by German submarines. In both instances the crews escaped.

An official statement from Paris says that German warships have appeared off the Belgian coast and have bombarded Dunkirk. Twenty persons were killed.

The presence of the German high sea fleet in the North sea has been reported several times recently and now the captain of a Swedish steamer says that on crossing the North sea a few days ago he encountered a large number of German warships.

Marked progress apparently has been made by the allies in their efforts to win the Dardanelles by land operations. Reports indicate that the British have succeeded in establishing two lines across the Gallipoli peninsula on the European side of the Dardanelles; one near the tip, the second at the other end, near the entrance to the Sea of Marmora. Significant in this connection is an official report from Berlin, based on advices received there from the Dardanelles. In this statement it is said severe fighting has occurred at the town of Gallipoli. This town lies on the straits, at the entrance to the Sea of Marmora. This statement tends to confirm the report of last night that the British had pushed their way across the peninsula at this point. Such a line, if held, would cut off the Turkish defenders of the peninsula from assistance in the way of supplies and reinforcements from Constantinople.

An official statement from the Belgian government says that a German attack from Steenstraate was repulsed. This may refer to an engagement described in unofficial advices as disastrous to the attacking party. It is said 4,000 Germans were almost annihilated by the Belgian artillery.

APRIL FOOL JOKE IS PLAYED ON THE ENEMY

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

British headquarters in France, April 10.—"All Fool's day was not allowed to pass without a practical joke being played on the enemy," writes the British eye-witness in his latest dispatch. "An aviator flying over the Lille aerodrome dropped a football. It fell slowly through the air and the Germans could be seen hurrying from all directions to take cover from what they evidently thought was a bomb. That it bounded to an enormous height from the ground without exploding was probably taken to be due to a 'delay action' fuse, for it was not till the ball finally came to rest that they emerged from their shelters to examine it. On it was written: 'April fool—Gott strafe England.'"

HYPNOTISM TRIED AS CURE FOR SOLDIERS.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, April 15.—Hypnotism is being tried with some good results in the treatment of soldiers who have broken down under the shock and strain of the battlefield.

The patient is seated in a chair and is brought under hypnosis in the ordinary way. He is told to clear his mind of all other thoughts and to concentrate on the single subject of his cure. If, as often happens, his vision is affected by "shell shock" he is told quietly and firmly that the defect has been cured and that he can once again see clearly. In some cases a single sitting is enough, in others, the treatment is repeated—many times.

MUCH PRODUCE, PRICES LOW

Offerings of Fruits and Vegetables Most Liberal of Season.

Strawberries From Louisiana; Green Stuff Plentiful, Good Quality.

Offering of fruits and vegetables on the local produce market today are the most liberal of the season so far. Furthermore prices are lower on the whole, and that is regarded by the trade as likely to bring about a material increase in consumption.

The first car of Louisiana strawberries has just been received. The quality of the fruit is good and sales liberal largely on account of the low prices at which it is being offered. From present indications, the next shipments of berries will not be so cheap owing to the recent cold snap that extended through the South.

Oranges are higher, owing to select navals being difficult to obtain as their season is approaching its end. The first shipments of Valencias are not expected before four or five weeks. Attributable to warmer weather and consequently increased consumption, the lemon market is firm and further advances are looked for. California rhubarb is coming to hand freely, and with its price down to $1.50 a box, its sale has increased.

Green Vegetables Cheap.

Green vegetables are on hand in splendid variety and prices are generally lower, according to the Fitzsimmons-Palmer company and Culbertson Brothers company. A car of Florida tomatoes has arrived and with receipts certain to be liberal from now on, lower prices in them will be made from time to time. Home-grown onions are being received, and spinach is expected next week. Other vegetables grown in this district will make their appearance gradually.

The market is firm in the heavy vegetable list, in line with the steady attrition of supplies. Fancy Minnesota potatoes have advanced to 57 cents a bushel, but there is said to be no life in their market. Farmers are hauling potatoes in more freely, and by all reports, supplies through the district are still heavy. It is now conceded that the yield last fall was larger than had been estimated.

Cheaper Eggs Soon.

While egg quotations are unchanged at 20@22 cents, their market tendency is reported easier. Receipts are now at about their flush and with a letting up in the demand from packers to be expected shortly lower quotations may materialize within about a week. The best quality of eggs is, however, thought likely to hold at about their present price basis due to the strong demand.

Butter quotations are also unaltered, creamery going at 30@32 cents a pound. With pasturage for cattle becoming available shortly and production showing a gradual increase, a reduction in butter figures is expected soon. As it is now, the butter market is between 4@5 cents a pound higher than a year ago.

Good Eastern Outlet.

Duluth dealers are looking forward to a better outlet in the East for butter and eggs this season, as the advantages of the refrigerator service established on the package freight steamers plying between here and Buffalo are becoming more generally appreciated by the trade.

Space upon the Rochester of the Western Transit company, which opened the season last Sunday, is said to have been almost completely reserved by Duluth shippers. "We shipped seven cars of eggs, comprising 3,000 cases," said H. Z. Clark, president of the Victor Produce company. "Judging by the inquiries we are receiving from Eastern dealers for both butter and eggs, we are feeling confident of considerably extending our trade down that way during the present season. This means an enlarged outlet for producers in the Northwest for those products."

Meat Prices Firm.

Receipts of live poultry on the market continue only nominal, and any material gain in their marketing is thought unlikely for some time yet. Farmers will not sacrifice their hens during the laying season. Quotations in both the live and frozen poultry list are the same as a week ago.

The only change to be noted in the meat list is a reduction of ½ cent a pound in pork. The market in beef, veal, lamb and mutton is described as firm.

CITY OF ETZINA IS DISCOVERED

Marco Polo's City Is Examined By Sir Aurel Stein.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, April 15.—Marco Polo's city of Etzina, where in ancient times travelers bound for the old Mongolian capital of Karakoram used to obtain food for the forty-day trip across the desert, has been discovered and examined by Sir Aurel Stein, whose account of explorations in Central Asia has just been received by the Royal Geographical society.

Sir Aurel began his trip in April of last year, and his report is dated Nov. 29 from Turfan at the eastern foot of the Tian Shan mountains. His party started from Tunhuang and followed for 250 miles an ancient wall, which he had previously discovered. The wall, with its watch towers, forts and military stations, was built across even what must have been in ancient times a sterile desert. Its construction was remarkably well adapted to the climate, being made of fascines of reeds or brushwood with layers of clay or gravel in between, the only material to withstand the slow grinding but relentless erosion of the winds. Here the Chinese soldiers kept guard during the first centuries before and after Christ. The works show a high degree of engineering skill. In ancient times, this country was irrigated, as the remains of ditches proved. Many household implements were found in the ruins of the forts.

Khara-Khoto, Marco Polo's city of Etzina, yielded a large quantity of relics such as Buddhist manuscripts, prints, stucco reliefs and frescos, coins and ornaments. The town is now largely in ruins.

LIGHT RECRUITING IN SOUTHERN IRELAND

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Dublin, April 15.—The total number of recruits from the three southern provinces of Ireland have up to the end of March amounted to only 20,000 men, and of these nearly half come from Dublin, Cork and the other large towns. Recruiting has scarcely touched the agricultural districts. The farmers admit frankly they are making large profits out of the war, and they and their sons do not enlist. In the cities the recruits are drawn mostly from the laboring class. It is said that a spurious notion of social prestige prevents the shop salesmen from going into the ranks.

ASSESSORS ARE READY

Will Begin Their Annual Tour of City Saturday Morning.

At 8 o'clock tomorrow morning twenty-seven personal property assessors will start out on their annual pilgrimage of Duluth.

The assessors will visit every home, office and business house in the city for the purpose of making an assessed valuation of the personal property in Duluth. Deputy Assessor Fowler, who is in charge of the work, has divided the city into districts and after receiving final instructions at a meeting to be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, the men will start out. The work, it is expected, will continue for about thirty days.

The assessed valuation of the personal property last year was $13,411,128, while in 1913 it was $13,192,654. Mr. Fowler is of the opinion that this year the figures will reach the $14,000,000 mark.

C. F. West, Jr., 216 North Fourteenth avenue east, has been appointed a special assessor of automobiles, while A. M. Hay and A. C. McLean will assess coal and lumber.

The other assessors follow:

A. H. Davenport, 5217 Colorado street; J. M. Bended, 2416 West First street; E. F. Chalk, 622 Eighth avenue east; Carl Taberman, 1612 East Sixth street; J. J. LIQUOR PROPOSALS MEET OPPOSITION Believed Taxes Suggested By Lloyd George Will Have to Be Modified.

London, April 30.—The proposals introduced in the house of commons yesterday afternoon by David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, to double the duty on spirits, quadruple the duties on wines and institute an increase by graduated tax on beer—to encourage the use of lighter beers—were strongly opposed, and it is generally believed that the new taxes will have to be moderated before parliament will accept them.

The O'Brienites, as a protest against an additional taxation on Irish whiskies and beers, brought about the first division in the house since the outbreak of the war, by taking the unusual course of voting against the provisional resolutions bringing the taxes into force at once to prevent withdrawals from bond while parliament is dealing with the matter. The resolution relating to spirits was passed by a vote of 89 to 5, the minority being composed of O'Brienites.

The Nationalists also protested against the measure, but did not vote. The Unionists, who, withheld criticism until all the facts could be placed before them, also abstained from voting.

Usually these provisional resolutions are carried without division, for, should parliament refuse to sanction the taxes, they are refunded to those who may have paid them.

Promise to Reply.

The Laborites promised to reply to the chancellor's charges that a minority of the workmen, lured away by drink, were not putting their best into the work of producing material which is so badly needed by the soldiers at the front.

The extra taxes will be included in the budget which Chancellor Lloyd George will introduce in the house of commons on Tuesday next, and the bill, which is an amendment of the defense of the realm act, will be proposed for the second reading at a later date, when the debate on it will take place. Before that time, the chancellor has promised to place in the hands of the members, a series of reports of independent investigators, on whose findings the government decided to take the action it has.

Besides the Irish opposition to the spirit duties many members oppose the new wine taxes on the ground that they strike at France, Australia and South Africa.

The proposed appointment of a board of control, and the proposal to take over for canteen purposes the saloons in the munitions of war areas and to compensate all interests, are generally approved by the members.

HEARD FROM IN CHICAGO

Belgian Actress Attacks King Albert in Windy City Address.

Mme. Philippine Artois, late of Brussels, who is on her way back to Belgium, where she plans to begin relief work for her people, and her devastated country, has been heard from in Chicago.

Chicago reports tell of a recent address made before the Press club when she "was raising funds to pay her way back to Belgium." In her address she criticized King Albert.

Several weeks ago Mme. Artois visited Duluth and while here gave a lecture at the Lyceum theater as a means of raising funds to allow her to return to Belgium, where she intended to work among her people, and colonize Northern Minnesota with them.

Shortly after leaving Duluth Mme. Philippine Artois, late of Belgium, gave an address at Omaha, Neb., with the idea of "raising funds to take her back to Belgium," where she expected to work among her people, according to newspaper accounts from the Nebraska city.

Attacks King Albert.

King Albert, almost a popular hero among even neutral Americans, was attacked by Mme. Artois in her Chicago address, and called the "tool of England and France."

"Why has King Albert been made the hero of this conflict?" asked the fair Belgian supporter. "Is it because he has, without hesitation, slaughtered his people? Is it because he is democratic, shy and reserved (as your American press admits he is)? Is it because he never committed any scandals?

"Personally I cannot see anything he did to gain that great title, except that he took the easiest way, to be the tool of England and France. He simply took for granted that the triple entente must win out in the end.

"The war is between Germany and England and England has everything to gain by crushing Germany, and England used us for all we were worth. What could we poor Belgians do? We were under the thumb of John Bull, the pretender, and the kaiser, the war lord."

"Why is it that the Belgian minister in Washington is slandering me all over this country?" Mme. Artois asked in conclusion. "Not because he thinks I will do much harm in America, but because it will get to the Belgians who are influential and because I am trying to colonize some in this country, and because I might start an uprising."

The Chicago accounts stated that Mme. Artois intended soon to return to Belgium.

WEST END

CHILDREN ARE WORKING HARD

Clean-up Campaign Well Organized With Lieutenant for Each Block.

The children of the five West End schools are willingly working to clean up this part of the city. Large bands of the boys and girls may be seen any afternoon after school with rakes and baskets gathering up the rubbish into piles and burning it.

It is expected that the entire district will have received its thorough cleaning long before the middle of next month. The school districts are being captained by boys and each block has its own lieutenant who leads the campaign in his particular block.

Within a few days plans will be made for the entertainment of the children taking part in this campaign. The entertainment will be furnished by the business men of this end of the city. A band concert and parade will be one of the features of the entertainment. At a meeting to be held early next week the plans for this entertainment will be made.

Funeral at Minneapolis of Survivor of Indian Uprising of 1862.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 30.—The funeral of Samuel B. Babcock for fifty-four years a resident of Minnesota, who died here Wednesday at his home, was held this afternoon from the home with interment in Lakewood.

Born in Camden, N. Y., in 1830, Mr. Babcock, with his wife, who was Martha Stedman, left New York city for Blue Earth county, Minn., settling near Medo. The great Indian uprising and massacre of 1862 occurred while they were still in the process of setting on their land, and the couple experienced all the adventures and hardships of pioneers in a new country, into which they had gone by ox team. For nine years Mr. Babcock remained on his original holding and came to have one of the finest farms in the state. Later he sold him farm and moved to Vernon Center, where he lived for thirty-five years. Five years ago he moved to Minneapolis for permanent residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Babcock celebrated the sixty-first anniversary of their wedding Dec. 19 last.

LINING UP THE CONVENTIONS

Commercial Club Preparing for Many Visitors During Summer.

June Favored Month, With Seven Big Gatherings Scheduled.

Already dates are being set for conventions and excursions to Duluth from various points of the country during the summer months, and the Duluth Commercial club is already beginning tentative plans for entertainment of the thousands of guests that the city will have at different times.

So far, June seems to be the most favored month, for already seven conventions or excursion parties have announced their intention of being here during that month. The week beginning June 20 will be the busiest, for in that week six days will be filled with entertaining.

The scheduled visits to Duluth and conventions to be held here so far slated are as follows:

TO SPEND SUMMER IN WASHINGTON

President Wilson Will Not Establish Office at Summer White House.

Washington, April 30.—President Wilson plans not to establish an office at the summer White House at Cornish, N. H., but to spend most of his time in Washington. He will make several brief trips to Cornish to visit his family and short cruises on the yacht Mayflower.

It was said at the White House today that those plans were not made because the president looks upon the European or Mexican situations as especially critical, but because he thinks it his duty to remain in Washington as much as possible to keep in close touch with the public questions.

MIGHT CELEBRATE PEACE CENTENARY

Proposal About Gathering of Gopher and Ontario Lawmakers Next June.

Baudette, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The visit to this section in June of a party of seventy-five members of the Minnesota legislature may be made doubly interesting owing to the fact that about the same time a similar party from the legislature of the province of Ontario expects to spend two days on the Lake of the Woods.

Kenora, Baudette and Rainy River are included in the tour of the Ontario legislators and the residents of these towns are endeavoring to make arrangements to have the two parties come on the same days. The citizens of the Canadian towns think the meeting might be made the occasion of the celebration of 100 years of peace between the United States and Canada.

SANDSTONE STORE HAS CLOSE CALL

Nearby Storehouse Burned But Firemen Save Store.

Sandstone, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire broke out Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock in a large storeroom of the Sandstone Co-operative company's store and the building was completely destroyed. The high wind fanned the blaze and for a time it looked as if the large store was also doomed, but the volunteer fire department kept the flames in check and also saved other adjoining frame buildings and sheds. Had the wind been as brisk as an hour previously the entire block would have been destroyed. The store roof is of tin, which saved the store. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

GRAN DIVORCE KNOCKED OUT

Wife of Duluth Attorney Will Have Second Chance to Defend Self.

High Court Holds Judge Cant Projected Own Views in Charging Jury.

Overturning the decision of District Judge Cant granting Victor H. Gran, local attorney, a divorce from his wife, Olga Gran, on the grounds of infidelity, the Minnesota supreme court today handed down a per curiam opinion, which reverses the judgment of the trial court and furnishes Mrs. Gran another opportunity to defend herself against the sensational charges made against her by her husband. The higher tribunal grants her a new trial.

In the opinion reversing the judgment of the trial court, the supreme court indicated that reversible error was committed by Judge Cant in a supplemental charge to the jury, which passed upon the questions of adultery that arose in the case.

Judge Projected Own Views.

It was held that Judge Cant in his talk to the jury indicated his own views in the matter and that the charge as given "was a very able and persuasive argument in favor of the plaintiff."

The Gran matrimonial tangle, the most sensational divorce case tried in the courts of the county for years, was heard before a jury in Judge Cant's division of the court about a year ago. After a trial which lasted fourteen days, the jury returned two verdicts, one finding that Mrs. Gran had committed adultery with John R. Heino, Gran's former business associate and friend, at Heino's office in the Sellwood building on Jan. 31, 1914, and the other exonerating Gran from counter-charges of adultery with unknown women preferred by Mrs. Gran in a cross bill.

Gran and several detectives testified during the course of the trial that on the afternoon of Jan. 31, 1914, they broke into Heino's office and found Mrs. Gran and Heino in a compromising situation. The two were arrested on a charge of adultery. The charges against them were not disposed of until after the divorce case had been tried. The jury in the divorce case found that Mrs. Gran and Heino had committed adultery on the day in question. Another jury, however, acquitted Heino when brought to trial on an indictment.

When the jury in the divorce action retired on the afternoon of April 3, 1914, to deliberate upon its verdict, it was given two questions to answer. The first was whether or not Mrs. Gran had committed adultery, and the second was whether or not Gran, the plaintiff, had committed adultery with unknown women.

The jury passed the night without reaching any agreement and at 10 o'clock the next morning filed into the court room. One of the jurymen stated to the court that a difference of opinion had arisen among the jurors as to whether or not Gran and the detectives who had broken into Heino's offices on the afternoon of Jan. 31, 1914, could have seen what they testified they saw through a window 23 by 30 inches in size. To this the court made the following answer:

Instructions of Court.

"You are expected to do the sensible thing. You are not expected to come here and any of you raise suggestions that are unfounded in good sense and if it is necessary to break a door and make an opening so as to show whether five men can see through an opening 23 by 30 inches, why we will do it. What do you say?

"You say you have not been able to determine what the defendant and Heino were doing in the room. Well, what is the trouble with you? You understand English. You are grown up men. You have heard the witnesses and it is a simple question.

"If these five men—who some of you think would have difficulty in seeing through an opening 23 by 30 inches—were all purchased perjurers—at least four of them—and if the defendant and her witnesses are telling the truth, you know what to do, and the answer to the first question should be 'no.' If not, you know what to do, and you will answer that first question 'yes.'

"You will understand that the court takes pains not to indicate any views and scarcely to entertain any views with reference to the questions of fact for your determination. You understand that the court is placing the matter before you, places it before you, as it were, on the level, as though the one might be likely as the other.

"The court scrupulously avoids giving any intimation to you of its views, but men of ordinary sense ought to be able to see in many cases whenever the matter is put up to them in an impartial way that there is only one sane view to take of the evidence.

"Sometimes," Judge Cant said among other things, "it is very difficult to determine what the truth is, and sometimes it is very easy, and the painful thing about jury trials sometimes is that the more easy cases seem to be the ones which tie up juries, and that does not reflect credit upon the system. Juries, however, do good work and are doing it from time to time, and it is a pleasure to the court to give them credit for the faithful and painstaking work which they do."

Court's Charge Only Objection.

The supreme court holds that but for the supplementary charge given by the trial court, the judgment and order appealed from would be sustained. The syllabus of the decision is as follows:

"This is an action for divorce on the ground of adultery. Defendant made counter-charges of adultery and cruelty. There was a trial to a jury, which found plaintiff's charges true and defendant's not true. The court made findings in favor of plaintiff, granting an absolute divorce, with the custody of the children, directing plaintiff to pay defendant's attorney, within three months, the sum of $150 as attorney's fees, and that he pay defendant a specified sum per week for her support during a stated period. A motion for a new trial was made and denied, and judgment entered in accordance with the decision. Thereafter and within the three months, plaintiff paid to defendant's attorney the attorney's fee named, and the latter satisfied this part of the judgment. Defendant appealed from the order denying a new trial and also from the judgment.

Would Not Dismiss Appeal.

"We deny the motion to dismiss the appeal, which is based on the acceptance by defendant's attorney of the attorney's fee awarded by the court, and the satisfaction by him of that part of the judgment. The case is not within the rule that a party may not accept a part of a judgment that is beneficial, and then attack by appeal the judgment through which he received the benefit.

"There would be no difficulty in sustaining the order and judgment appealed from, but for the 'supplemental charge' of the trial court. After a trial of some fourteen days, the jury retired to consider the two questions submitted to them, and they had the assistance of full, clear and correct instructions. After long deliberation, they reported differences of opinion on the first question, that of the truth of the charge against defendant, and asked certain questions of the court. The supplemental charge was then given. The court was evidently strongly impressed that the verdict ought to be in favor of plaintiff, and conceived that justice would be thwarted if the verdict was the other way or if the jury disagreed. The result was a very able and persuasive argument in favor of plaintiff, and a verdict was soon reached. The charge was such that giving it can only be sustained by saying that the evidence was conclusive or so overwhelming in plaintiff's favor that the court would have been justified in granting judgment notwithstanding a verdict for defendant. We have reached the conclusion that we can not say this. It follows that there must be a new trial.

"The judgment and order appealed from are reversed and a new trial granted."

A. E. McManus appeared in the case as attorney for the plaintiff, Victor G. Gran, and Benjamin M. Goldberg represented the defendant, Mrs. Gran. The appeal was argued before the supreme court on April 16.

REPORT ON BREAKWATER

Maj. Peek Prepares Statement on Whether or Not It Is Necessary.

Nature of Document Not Disclosed But Duluthians May "Have Hopes."

Maj. E. D. Peek, United States army engineer in charge of the Duluth district, has just completed his preliminary report concerning the necessity—or the opposite—of a breakwater to protect the entrance to the harbor of Duluth, and it will be forwarded to Washington as soon as the typewriting of it will have been finished. It is inferred to be favorable.

The United States does not permit the announcement in advance of the text of the report or of the conclusions of the engineer, so the result is left to surmise or inference. Maj. Peek explained this morning:

"After I have made my preliminary survey, I report to Washington. If the report is against the request, I notify you; if it is not; I don't."

"Are you going to notify us, major?" he was asked.

"I am not," he replied.

So there you are.

Following the preliminary report, provided, of course the board of army engineers sees fit, the survey and hearings will be ordered. At that time, such testimony as Duluth can produce to establish the necessity of a breakwater, will be the only document on file in the matter and the matter will rest there for some time.

The need of a breakwater to protect the barbor entrance has been demonstrated several times by severe storms. When these have occurred shipping inside the harbor has been unsafe, and much damage has been done to docks and to warehouse terminals along the bay front. Even less furious storms have caused damage by high water and action of the waves; but in such storms as that of April 28, 1914, damage has been heavy and vessels at docks inside have been torn loose from their moorings and set adrift. The storm of last April is what brought the agitation for a breakwater to a head, and Congressman Miller took the matter up in Washington during the past fall and winter. At first, Mr. Miller says, the board of army engineers looked upon the proposal coldly, but later developed a favorable attitude and started the machinery which, it is believed, will result in the ultimate protection of the harbor by a breakwater, somewhere about Twenty-second avenue east and projecting out far enough to over-lap the entrance, thus breaking the force of the seas that now roll in through the entrance in every storm, and not only do damage, but create such turbulence in the entrance and its approach as to render entry by ships seeking shelter most dangerous and frequently impossible.

It is expected that the main survey and hearings will be completed in time to send the entire and complete report on the matter to congress at its December meeting, at which time efforts will be made to have the breakwater ordered.

She was given a royal welcome by a large number of Walkerites, who were glad to see the boat sailing the waters of Leech lake again.

STATE SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following decisions were rendered today by the Minnesota supreme court:

ST. LOUIS COUNTY.
Evidence Supports Verdict.

H. J. Kruse, respondent, vs. Chester D. Tripp, et al, defendants, Chester D. Tripp, appellant—

1. In an action to dissolve an alleged co-partnership, and for an accounting and other relief, it is held that the evidence supports the verdict of the jury and findings of the trial court to the effect that the alleged partnership was entered into, and that it included the royalty agreement involved in the action, all substantially as set forth in the complaint.

2. The agreement, not in writing, if within the statute of frauds, was fully performed within a year, and therefore not void or unenforcible.

Order affirmed. BROWN, C. J.

HENNEPIN COUNTY.
Plaintiff Was Owner.

Royal C. Moore, respondent, vs. Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban Railroad company, appellant—

Evidence considered and held to support a finding of the trial court that a part of a certain lot in an addition to the village of Excelsior was west of a railroad right-of-way and that plaintiff was the owner thereof.

Judgment affirmed. BUNN, J.

HENNEPIN COUNTY.
Both Orders Affirmed.

Arnold A. Schonmer, by guardian, respondent, vs. Four City Ornamental Iron Works, appellant—

1. A motion that judgment on the pleadings admits the facts alleged in the opposing pleading for the purposes of the motion.

2. If a contract, which states the amount to be paid in case of a breach thereof, manifestly disregards the rule that the injured party is entitled to fair compensation for his actual damages and nothing more, it will be construed as naming a penalty and not as fixing the amount of damages.

3. A provision which would give no damages for a total breach of the contract, and no damages for an important breach thereof, violates the rule and cannot be construed as providing for liquidated damages.

4. Where a discharged servant sues for loss of time, the burden is upon the master to show that he was discharged for cause, or obtained, or could have obtained, other employment.

Both orders appealed from are affirmed. TAYLOR, C.

RAMSEY COUNTY.
Judgment Affirmed.

Edward Erickson, appellant, vs. Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, respondent—

Where the laws of a fraternal association and also the application for beneficiary membership therein provide that an appellant shall not become a beneficiary member thereof until his medical examination is approved by the chief medical officer, and the applicant dies before such examination reaches such officer, its subsequent approval by him in ignorance of such death, creates no liability against the association.

Judgment affirmed. TAYLOR, C.
Schaller, J., took no part.

HOUSTON COUNTY.
Jurisdiction Acquired.

W. M. Atkinson, respondent, vs. U. S. Operating Company, a corporation, appellant—

Defendant, a Maine corporation with its place of business in Illinois, sent agents into Minnesota to sell its own corporate stock. One of these agents sold stock to plaintiff in Minnesota, and in the course of the negotiations made representations out of which this cause of action arose. Defendant's principal executive officer came several times to Minnesota for the purpose of adjusting this and other claims, and did adjust some claims here. The president of the corporation resided in Minnesota and occasionally performed official acts in the state. Summons in this action was served upon the president in this state. Held, the corporation had brought itself within the state and the court acquired jurisdiction by the service.

Order affirmed. HALLAM, J.

DAKOTA COUNTY.
May Contest Will.

In the matter of the estate of Maria Latto, decedent, Sebastian Schleiderer, respondent, vs. Nicholas B. Gergen et al., appellants—

1. Under G. S. 1913, Sec. 7491, a party entitled to appear in probate court and object to the probate of a will, but who does not so appear, may appeal to the district court from an order admitting the will to probate, and may there contest the will.

2. In order to make a valid will, the testator must understand the nature, situation and extent of his property, and the claims of others upon his bounty or his remembrance, and he must be able to hold these things in his mind long enough to form a rational judgment concerning them. The evidence in this case is sufficient to sustain a finding of the trial court that deceased had not sufficient mental capacity to make a will.

3. A person who is unable to understand, without being prompted, the nature and importance of the business she is transacting has not capacity to make a will.

Order affirmed. HALLAM, J.
Schaller, J., took no part.

BENTON COUNTY.
Does Not Apply to Real Estate.

Swan F. Hjelm, appellant, vs. City of St. Cloud, Respondent—

Section 275 of the home rule charter of the city of St. Cloud providing that "all suits and proceedings by or against said city not brought before a city justice shall be brought in the district court of Stearns county; and that no other court whatever shall have original jurisdiction thereof" is held to refer to transitory actions and to actions and proceedings pertaining to or growing out of governmental affairs of the city, and does not apply to actions for the recovery of real estate which are governed by the general law found in Sec. 7715 G. S. 1913.

Order reversed. HOLT, J.

MARSHALL COUNTY.
Petition Sufficient.

Fred Tiedt, et al., appellants, vs. Village of Argyle, et al., respondents—

1. Under a statute which provides that "on petition of a majority of the owners of land abutting on any street —or any part thereof, in any village, the council may—vacate the same or any part thereof—" a petition signed by a majority of the owners of property abutting on the part of the street to be vacated is sufficient.

2. A naked allegation that one of the signers signed conditionally, with nothing to indicate the nature of the condition does not show that the signature was invalid.

3. A village may properly, under circumstances, pay a property owner for the opening of a street across his property. The court will not enjoin such expenditure unless its illegality is made to appear. Vague allegations that the expenditure is an extravagant waste of funds, without stating facts on which the court can form a judgment, are not sufficient to warrant an injunction.

Order affirmed. HALLAM, J.

PENNINGTON COUNTY.
Questions For Jury.

F. H. Gambell, respondent, vs. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company, appellant—

Evidence considered and held to make the issues of negligence and contributory negligence questions for the jury.

Order affirmed. BUNN, J.

Iron Worker Praises Duffy's

Here's a case of a structural iron worker who suffered severe stomach trouble, but thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey he is almost ready to resume his hazardous calling:

"For many weeks I was laid up sick in bed in the hospital with stomach trouble which gradually wore me away to a mere skeleton. The hospital treatment did not seem to improve me, so my doctor said I would not get well and told my people to take me home, as there was nothing any one on this earth could do for me. When I reached home my doctor ordered me to be fed on a tablespoonful of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey every two hours. After taking Duffy's for over one week, without another morsel of food entering my system, I began to have a longing for something to eat, and to my surprise found I could keep a little oatmeal gruel on my stomach, and gradually I regained my former appetite and felt better. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the cause for my present good state of health, and my doctor says I will soon be able to go back to my trade of structural iron worker. I am not afraid of the truth and hope others will benefit from the use of Duffy's the same as myself."—Thomas Satchell, 275 Tillary St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

may be relied upon in extreme cases where other foods are rejected. When taken as directed just before meals, it assists in keeping healthy and essential functions of digestion because it induces activity in the flow of gastric juices so the food you eat will digest naturally. PAY-MATTER IS SERIOUS British Government's Problem in Providing Work for Women.

Suffragists Champion Equal Pay for Equal Work Demand.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, April 15.—Equal pay for equal work, the training of inexperienced women and the supervision of labor conditions are the main problems with which the government has to deal in its scheme of providing war work for women.

The pay matter is serious in the view of the trades unions, which fear the employers will use the less paid women in order to oust men and at the end of the war refuse to restore men to their old positions. Suffragists also champion the equal pay for equal work demand, since they regard less money for equivalent work as an insult to their sex. Further complications are caused by women volunteering to work free, but it is suggested their wages be paid and turned into a charity fund.

It is estimated that 80 per cent of the women of the British isles are engaged at the present moment either on voluntary work or on professional or industrial work. The most recent returns made to the Central Labor exchange show that 33,000 applications for war work have been filed by women. Of this number, the women of London contribute 13,000, the southeastern district of England 2,028, Yorkshire 2,300, Scotland 4,253, Wales 670, Ireland 590 and the rest come from other parts of England.

Women in the Unions.

That women volunteering for war service work should join the unions in order to maintain present conditions was the advice from Sylvia Pankhurst at a recent conference under the auspices of the Emergency Workers' National committee. A resolution was passed asking men's unions to admit women members. This also recommended to the government that all women registering for war service should immediately join unions; that such membership should be conditional to employment; that when doing the same work as a man the women should receive equal pay; that sweating conditions must be avoided and a living wage paid; that adequate training with maintenance should be provided and that, after the war, the priority of employment should be given to workmen whose places were taken by women, and new places provided for the women.

These resolutions represent the attitude of the women suffragists, the trades unionists and Socialists represented at the conference, representing about 5,000,000 workers of both sexes.

Economic Conscription.

Miss Mary R. Macarthur, who presided, described a visit to a large armament factory where she found a large number of women applicants for work standing outside.

"It is one thing for women to fill the places of men who have voluntarily enlisted," declared Miss Macarthur, "and another to allow ourselves to be used as instruments to force economic conscription on the men."

War service by women, she continued, should not be used to force men to go to the front. National conscription would be preferable to an economic conscription of this kind. Those acquainted with the union movement knew that the men had never objected to women as women, but what they did object to was cheap labor. Unfortunately, women had taken men's jobs at very much less than men would take.

Speaking of the claim that for patriotic motives women ought to give their help unconditionally to the government, she said that in so doing she women would not be assisting the country but helping profit-making interests, which were already shamelessly exploiting the present national emergency.

For Telephone Service.

Male operators for night duty in the telephone service, which is government owned, have become so few that a special call has been made for women operators for the period of the war. Heretofore, women have been employed only on day duty.

The women who answer the switches are paid $5.50 a week during their training period, and $6 when trained, a week to consist of forty-eight hours of work. Beds are provided, so that by rotation each operator can obtain two hours of sleep in the night.

Women are also fast replacing men on the railway lines of England in minor capacities. Following the innovation of women baggage porters, the great western railway has engaged women ticket collectors and punchers. They wear a neat, plain dress, with a badge on the sleeve.

CANAL OPERATION SHOWS A DEFICIT

Mainly Due to High Cost of Operation and Maintenance.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Panama, April 10.—The first eight months of operation of the Panama canal have not yielded a profit to the government notwithstanding that traffic has been better than had been expected in view of the European war. From July 1, 1914 and ending March 1, 1915, the canal showed a loss of $261,098, the deficit being mainly chargeable to the high cost of operation and maintenance.

During the period mentioned the canal earned $2,324,515 in tolls while the charge for operation and maintenance was $2,595,613, the government thus losing approximately 10 per cent. Under operation and maintenance are included all the diversified expenditures necessary for keeping the canal open to traffic and a prorated part of the expenses on civil government, sanitation and general administration.

More than a third of the total overhead expense of the canal is charged to operation and maintenance.

KILT SUPERIOR TO THE TROUSER

Soldiers Claim Kilts Are Better for Work in Trenches.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, April 15.—The kilt as a soldier's uniform has proved itself entirely superior to the trouser in the winter's hard campaign in France, according to an officer who writes home:

"The only times I've ever thought with even a tinge of regret on the trousers I've almost forgotten how to wear have been when I've chanced to be on guard on a cold breezy night, when the wind maliciously whistles round and about your legs; then you feel involuntarily almost that two thicknesses of cloth might be better than none. But the thought vanishes as soon as you are relieved and see the guardroom fire again.

"I am told that the Canadian Scottish regiments treat their kilts as a sort of dress parade and put on trousers when they go into the trenches. This is a great mistake, for it is in those very trenches that the kilt shines.

"For instance, it's no uncommon thing for a trousered section who have stood shivering on their platforms with their wet things clinging to their legs for twenty-four hours to see with a feeling of envy their kilted comrades coming up through the water to relieve them with their kilts tucked up high out of the wet, so that with the exception of feet and puttees they can look forward to a comfortable and, all things considered, a warm time instead of a shivery one. For the kilt, being exceptionally thick around the waist and loins keep the whole body nice and warm, and if it does happen to get wet the constant swinging about tends to dry it quickly without a constant clammy contact with the legs.

"On the night of the 10th, for instance, we were taken about 7 o'clock through a stream which came over my hips, but the kilt was quite dry soon, and I felt no ill effects whatever from the wetting, although it was a bitterly cold night.

"But it is on the march that one appreciates the kilt most. There is a delicious coolness as the wind strikes your knees that helps you along, and there is a sense of freedom about the waist and shoulders that the trousered man will never feel.

"When you are in billets on a hardwood or stone floor, then with your blanket starting from the bottom of it and brought forward again over your feet, you have a bed which keeps all the cold and hardness away.

"In actual fighting the moral effect of the kilt is of value, and its associations with hard and terrible fighting are so well known and appreciated that the very sight of bare knees and waving kilts has an effect on the enemy as well as on yourselves."

There are 108 von Buelows serving in the army or navy.

REFORMS AFFECTING THE JEWS IN RUSSIA

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, April 15.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Jewish Chronicle states that Count Ignatieff, minister of education, has severely rebuffed anti-Semitic officials, and other reforms affecting the Jews have been granted in Russia. Admissions to the schools have been freed of artificial restrictions in Kieff, and provision made for admitting Jewsh students into the Yurieff medical courses. The watering places in Siberia, the Caucasus and Finland will be open to Jews next summer. Anti-Semitic agitation has been stopped by the governor of Wilna, and at Dmitrivesk the authorities have accepted the services of Jewish doctors.

For Freckled, Rough or Spotty Complexions

The freckling, discoloring or roughening to which delicate skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun, often appearing in early spring, may readily be gotten rid of. Mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvelous transformation. —Advertisement.

HISTORY OF WAR IS BEING TAUGHT

Children of France Instructed on Progress of Fighting.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Paris, April 15.—The history of the war is being taught to the children as it goes on. By order of the minister of public instruction the schools have observed a patriotic day. Every teacher talked about the war and brought out the patriotic character of the conflict from the French standpoint. There followed a Belgian day devoted to King Albert's heroic attitude, a Serbian day, and a day consecrated to the praises of the celebrated 3-inch field gun.

Instead of distracting the minds of the children from school work, the war has been made to heighten its interest and the attendance has been normal throughout the winter. The greatest difficulty was the necessity of finding new quarters for the primary classes, most of the schoolhouses having been utilized by the army for barracks and hospitals, but this has been overcome.

The details of instruction in matters pertaining to the war are left to the discretion of the teachings. Some of them read and comment upon the official communiques. Others read the exploits of officers and men as disclosed by the citations in the orders of the day, and many leters sent from the front by soldiers of the vicinity are read. It is often the soldier in person who tells the little ones of his experiences, for many teachers, disabled for further services in the army, have returned to their school duties. Sometimes it is a soldier that has never been a pedagogue who relates his experiences.

LOOKS OVER STEEL PLANT

Governor and His Party Shown Details of Huge Industry.

Unique Features Create Favorable Impression on State Executive.

"What surprises me the most is the fact that there is so much modern machinery lying here idle and not bringing any returns on its investment."

Such was the statement of Governor Hammond after walking through the various monster buildings of the Minnesota Steel plant yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied on the trip by about thirty business men of West Duluth, who were members of the West Duluth Commercial club.

The trip to the plant was made in automobiles. Nothing marred the pleasure of the trip, the road being for the most part in excellent conditon.

The governor showed great interest in every part of the big plant. Details interested him, and during the trip kept Louis R. Reis, master mechanic of the plant, busy answering questions.

Mr. Reis directed the governor's attention to many of the features of the big machinery, some of which, he explained, was not only the most modern, but also the largest in the world. The monster power engines, rolling tables, rail and merchant mills were especially interesting to the governor.

Skilled Men Needed.

Mr. Reis said that at present the plant was employing about 550 men and that additional men were being given employment daily. The demand at the plant was not great for common labor, he said, but more especially for men with mechanical training. Additional machinists and electricians were being employed daily.

That the present plant will be only a small part of what it will be when completed, was the statement of Mr. Reis. Now the company has but ten open pit furnaces, but plans are made for a building still larger, which will contain fourteen more of these monster furnaces. Two additional blast furnaces are planned, making four in all.

Large Coke Ovens.

While the party did not visit the coke ovens, these were explained as being the largest of their kind and the only one of their kind in the United States. Only one other coke oven plant similar to it is in existence, and that is in Germany. There are ninety-eight ovens. The coal will pass through several different processes before reaching the furnaces.

The great power plant, which will furnish the blast for the furnaces, proved especially interesting to the governor. Everything here is electrically operated and controlled. Several different switchboards, all constructed of solid concrete, are arranged so that the machines can be operated from any one of them.

The floor of this big building drew the attention of the visitors. The big engines, which will have a total combined power of 29,000-horse power, are on concrete foundations and on separate foundations from that of the building. This is made so that the vibrations of the machinery will not effect the building after operations are begun.

There are parts of the plant that could be placed in operation within two weeks, said Mr. Reis. He explained that the entire plant could be ready for operations within a year, but that at present the demand for steel products was not such as to warrant the starting of the plant at once. "It requires a large force of men to just take care of the machinery and keep it from becoming junk," he said.

The attention of the governor was directed to the safety appliances installed by the company. Every cogwheel, every part of machinery that might prove a menace to the employes was carefully guarded by wire nets or solid steel caps or guards. Every door, leading to possible danger, carried a "safety first" notice on a bright red placard.

"Safety First" Devices.

On one of the buildings a long steel baleony is stretched the entire length of the outside of the building at a point about forty feet in the air. This, it was explained, was for the purpose of giving the operator of a monster crane inside the building, a chance to save his life in case of a bad spill of molten iron. The operator could escape being roasted to death by going through any of the windows which are on a level with the crane leading to the balcony.

The company is making plans for taking care of many of its employes. While the governor was unable to visit the Model City, Mr. Reis explained that there were now 249 apartments provided and that provisions would be made for the building of a large clubhouse, hospital, churches, schools and business houses in the near future. He said that only about twenty-five families were living there at present.

The men were arrested last night by Special Officer Cavanaugh of the Canadian Northern railroad on a charge of trespassing.

The railroad officers say that there has been a large amount of thieving in the yards recently, and that especial care is being taken to keep all trespassers out. Some of the cars have been broken into and merchandise taken, it is said.

EMERGENCY ORDINANCE

Proposed Jitney Regulations May Go Into Effect at Once.

Drivers Must Secure Licenses and Post Liability Bonds.

Duluth's jitney ordinance, completed by the city attorney early this afternoon, will come up at a special meeting of the council at 3 o'clock today. The measure will be considered as an emergency ordinance, in view of the fact that Commissioner Silberstein is desirous of having it go into effect at once.

Whether the emergency ordinance will receive an unanimous vote of the council, as is required by the charter, is not known, although the commissioners are all of the opinion that the jitneys need regulation of some kind. Otherwise the ordinance would require three readings before its passage by the council.

This new ordinance is entitled "An ordinance to regulate the business of carrying passengers for hire," and has been prepared by City Attorney Greene from a number of similar laws passed in the larger cities of the country. It provides for a $20 license to be purchased by every jitney driver and the posting of two liability bonds, one for $5,000 to cover deaths and the other $10,000 to cover injuries as the result of jitney accidents.

Among the principal features of the new ordinance are the following:

"There shall be no more passengers than there are seats, except in the case of children.

"But one passenger shall sit in the seat with the driver.

"The driver shall not engage in unnecessary conversation with his passengers, or smoke or drink while on duty.

"No driver shall solicit passengers in any manner whatever.

"All articles left by passengers must be turned over to the police.

"No vehicle shall receive or discharge passengers while it is in motion.

"All passengers must be received or discharged only at the curb.

"No passengers shall be received or discharged in a public park.

"The rear part of a vehicle must be lighted after sunset.

"A driver must stop his vehicle at least thirty feet from a steam railroad before crossing."

Violations of this ordinance will make the driver liable to a fine of $100 or eighty-five days.

Special action on the ordanance was deemed necessary by Commissioner Silberstein, in view of the fact that regular vehicle licenses are issued after tomorrow and Commissioner Voss requested that some action be taken at once, so that the new licenses can be prepared immediately. In case a driver would be given an ordinary vehicle license for $5, Commissioner Voss feared that he might refuse to buy a jitney license and operate throughout the year on the other permit.

MARINE

WIND GAUGE AT WHITEFISH POINT

Reports Will Now Be Available—Valuable to Mariners.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 30.—Alexander G. Burns, in charge of the local observatory, has just returned from Whitefish Point, where he has completed the installation of a wind gauge at the lighthouse.

The value of these reports from Whitefish Point will be invaluable to marine interests, on account of the difference of wind velocity between the Sault and that point. This is shown by a comparison of wind at Sault Ste. Marie and Whitefish for the first four reports:

April 25—Whitefish, southeast, 18 miles; Sault Ste. Marie, east, 2 miles.

April 26—Whitefish, south, 8 miles; Sault Ste. Marie, east, 3 miles.

April 27—Whitefish, southeast 25 miles; Sault Ste. Marie, east, 5 miles.

April 28 — Whitefish, south, 15 miles; Sault Ste. Marie, southwest, 6 miles.

The steamer Northern Wave is here making repairs to her steering gear. The Northern King was also delayed several hours making minor repairs.

PACKAGE STEAMER ON VIDAL SHOALS

Glenfinnan Being Lightered; Out Three Feet Forward.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Glenfinnan, upbound, went aground on Vidal Shoals above the locks on the Canadian side at 9 o'clock last night. She is out three feet forward, with about thirty feet of water at her stern. A lighter was called and commenced work this morning removing her cargo of package freight.

A big fleet of steamers which anchored under Whitefish Point during the northwest blow of yesterday, left there after it subsided.

Care at St. Clair Cut.

The lighthouse-keeper at the upper end of the Lake St. Clair cut states the boats that have grounded at the lower end of the westerly channel were the ones that turned too sharply over into the upbound channel, seeking to get on the ranges with the canal piers. He says that all boats that kept nearer to the westerly bank on the straight course to the outer bouy came through all right.

WOULD SETTLE DIFFERENCES.

Farrell Will Hear Both Sides of Ninth Street Dispute.

Commissioner Farrell, head of the public works division, will attend the meeting of the Munger Improvement club to be held at the Munger school this evening.

Two factions are opposed to each other in connection with the proposed paving of Ninth street, from Seventh to Fourteenth avenues east, and the head of the works division wishes to bring the matter to some settlement. A number of the owners want the pavement, while the remainder are now circulating a remonstrance petition against any improvement at this time.

The committee working in behalf of the proposed Chester creek bridge is expected to make a report this evening.

HAMMOND GIVES MINNESOTA HIGH RANK AMONG STATES OF THE UNION

Relates Early War History and Wonderful Development in All Lines.

Leads World in Production of Metals; Farms Highly Productive.

State Auditor Preus, Mayor Prince and Others Attend Club Banquet.

Minnesota, though young in years, has taken the foremost position among the commonwealths of the union, said Governor Winfield Scott Hammond last night in an address on "The State of Minnesota" before more than 300 guests at the thirteenth annual banquet of the West Duluth Commercial club held at the Great Eastern hall. The program was one of the best ever given by the club and all the guests remained to hear all of the addresses.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Asbury Methodist church served the dinner and both the food and the service occasioned much complimentary remark among those who took part. Home-cooked food has always been one of the most enjoyable features of the West Duluth banquet and last evening's meal was no exception.

No small part of the enjoyment experienced by the diners was due to the fine program of music that was furnished by the orchestra, led by Charles Helmer, and to the selections rendered by the Westminster male quartet. The program by the orchestra was of the latest music, together with some of the old favorites, and was excellently rendered, and the selections by the quartet delighted.

Day Long to Be Remembered.

"The day I have passed in West Duluth, I shall long remember," said Governor Hammond. "The hospitality of the members of this club, the meeting of the pupils at the various schools, the visit to the various industries, and particularly the gigantic plant under construction, I shall not soon forget.

"This wonderful state, though young in years, has done many things for the benefit of the union and the people in it. It is a historic state." The governor at this point related its work in the Civil war and the offering of its war governor of the first 1,000 men to participate in the war of the rebellion.

In speaking of its resources the governor said he came to Minnesota thirty years ago and settled in the southern part. Realty men were as busy then he said as they are now in trying to dispose of land.

"They told the settler that the land would raise barley, oats and wheat and that when the weather was favorable, the springs early and the fall late, that we could raise a small amount of corn. In fact, he said, we were just on the northern end of the corn belt.

Great Corn State.

"A few days ago I attended, on invitation, a 'corn show' held at Crookston. Ten counties were represented. I viewed the exhibit, and one exhibit in particular attracted my attention because of its exceptional fine display of well matured ears, and on closer inspection, I found the exhibit labeled 'Kittson County.' Today from the border of Iowa to the national line, corn is being grown. Last year we grew twice as many bushels of corn as we did wheat.

"We have become one of the greatest corn producing states in the Union. We led in the raising of barley and was the third in the production of oats and one of the leading states in the production of all other small grains."

In speaking of the dairy products of the state, the governor said that the creameries of the state returned to their patrons $32,000,000 last year. The value of the milk and cream was estimated at $9,000,000 and its butter a similar amount. In all, the value of dairy products was $50,000,000 more than the value of all its wheat, corn, or any grains raised in the state.

"The state now raises more potatoes than the state of Maine. This state's wonderful production of grains, vegetables, milk and butter places it in the front rank of one of the greatest agricultural states of the Union, if not in the first place."

Leads In Iron Ore.

In speaking of the mineral wealth, he said that the stato produces more of the most useful metal than any other state in the United States, more iron ore than all of the rest combined and more than any foreign country in the world barring Germany in the most favorable condition. He touched on the lumber industry, and said that Minnesota still leads all of the states in the Union east of the Rocky mountains.

The governor paid a tribute to R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of schools of this city, saying that he was a great asset to Duluth. He ranked him as one of the foremost educators in the country and as one who had devoted practically all of his life to the education of the young.

He compared Minnesota with the Thirteen Colonies. He said that every nationality on earth was represented here, and that as such, it had become the greatest "melting pot" of the universe. Similar conditions existed 200 years ago in the colonies and the war of the Revolution had blended them and created the greatest race of people in the world.

Banquet Program.

The guests to the banquet were seated at the tables at 7:15 o'clock. The invocation was given by Rev. Herbert Ford, pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church. Several selections were given by Helmer's orchestra during the dinner, which was served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Asbury M. E. church.

After a few short introductory remarks by W. A. Pond, president of the club, who welcomed the guests, Assistant County Attorney Mason M. Forbes was introduced as toastmaster. Mr. Forbes said he had "fallen" for the job of toastmaster because of his promise to President Pond that if Mr. Pond would do the work, he, as vice president of the club, would do the talking.

Mayor W. I. Prince gave a short talk on the subject of "The City of Duluth." He welcomed the out-of-town guests and congratulated the club on its successes in being one of the "live" factors in the upbuilding of the western end of the city. No task, he said, was too small or too big for its membership to undertake.

Forbes Introduces Greene.

In introducing County Attorney Warren E. Greene, Toastmaster Forbes said be approached the next speaker with care. He said he did not know just what difficulties it might lead him into, nor what wrath he might bring unto himself. He said he felt a good deal like a prisoner who had been found guilty recently in district court and was up for sentence. The judge asked the county attorney if he had anything to say, and he responded that he had only to say that he felt sorry for the prisoner and recommended that he be sent to state's prison on the reformatory plan for a period of not exceeding fifteen years. When the judge asked the prisoner if he had anything to say the prisoner responded that he was glad that Warren E. Greene felt sorry for him because if he had any grievance against him there was no telling how long a sentence he would have recommended for him. "With this," said Mr. Forbes, "I wish to introduce the rest of the county attorney's office."

GOVERNOR W. S. HAMMOND.

J. A. O. PREUS.

WARREN E. GREENE.

MASON M. FORBES.

JOHN . DWAN.

Greene's Talk Humorous.

Mr. Greene's talk was largely humorous. He said he did not know just how to approach such a subject as "The County of St. Louis." In his humorous description he said the county was bounded on the north by the Rainy river, on the south by Lake Superior, on the east by county option and on the west by the Indian treaty. He said it now represented the ark stranded on Mount Ararat, and like an island was entirely surrounded by water. He referred to its politicians as being those who liked three elections each year and three chances to vote at each election.

In winding up he gave an eloquent talk on the beauty of the county, and said that if any man of foreign birth became lonesome for his former home or surroundings abroad, that all he had to do was to take his tent and pitch it on the banks of one of the pretty lakes in this county. All the recollections of the former home with its pretty scenery would be forgotten by such an experience.

"Jake" Preus Speaks.

State Auditor J. A. O. Preus, former insurance commissioner, was introduced as one of the most successful young men of the state by Toastmaster Forbes. Mr. Preus had for his subject "State Lands," a topic that he is thoroughly familiar with and one he said was of vital importance to the future welfare of Duluth. Mr. Preus quoted figures saying that Minnesota has an area of 84,000,000 square miles, of which 44,000,000 are on the tax roll, and 28,000,000 have been turned over by the hand of man. "The lands of Minnesota are exceedingly valuable," continued Mr. Preus. "Minnesota has 170,000 farmers with an average farm of a quarter of a section and an average price of $10,000. He said that Duluth occupies a most strategic position and that he knew of only one other place in the country that was the equal of Duluth, and that was Stillwater, because Senator Sullivan of that city, who was a guest at the affair, was endeavoring to build a canal that would connect the Great Lakes with the Mississippi and make Stillwater the chief point. The speaker touched upon the constitutional amendment that was introduced by Senator McGarry for the purpose of improving state lands, the money to be taken out of the permanent trust funds.

He said he was commencing the campaign early for the passage of this amendment at the next election, and that it was of vital importance to Duluth because, as the chief city in the northern part of the state, it would derive the greater benefit in an agricultural way from the settling up of these lands. Mr. Preus told of the greatness of Minnesota in an agricultural and mineral way, and said that if there was anything to the old adage of growing up with the country, then, surely, the place was right here in Northern Minnesota.

Dwan Closes Addresses.

John Dwan of Two Harbors was the last speaker on the program, responding to the toast, "Our National Affairs." Mr. Dwan had been made the victim of a number of jokes sprung by the other speakers in referring to him as "Governor" Dwan, due to the fact that he was governor for a night at the banquet of the Irish Fellowship club on Tuesday evening at the Spalding hotel. He was introduced by Toastmaster Forbes as "Colonel" Dwan and the only "governor" that had ever been recalled by the people of the state. Attorney Dwan dwelt at a considerable length upon the wonderful inventions that have been given to the people of the United States during the last century and of the help that was accorded the various inventors by the United States patent office at Washington. He said that at the Philadelphia exposition there was not even an incandescent light to help beautify and illuminate the different buildings, while now one of the chief features at recent expositions have been the brilliant electrical displays. He said that all of the inventions were the product of American genius and that it seemed that Marconi, who discovered the wireless telegraph, had to get into the American spirit and environment before giving to the world his great work.

Mr. Dwan then launched into a talk on some of the legislation that has been recently enacted by the last congress and said that in addition to physical development, America must have financial development as well. He warmly praised the regional bank act.

"The wheels of business are again beginning to respond after the shock of the terrible European struggle," continued the speaker. "Few of us realize that the population of the countries involved in this gigantic struggle is upwards of 925,000,000, practically 50 per cent of the population of our entire globe.

"The calamity howlers who cry 'a war tax and no war' have no realization of what is going on about them," he said. "When the war opened England, which had 4,000 ships sailing upon the high seas, withdrew about 1,200 of them, and Germany, which had about 2,000 ships took all of them out of service, thus seriously crippling our trading with Europe and leaving us without any export trade whatever.

Praises Wilson Policy.

Mr. Dwan cautioned his hearers on the value of neutrality and criticized Roosevelt for making a public declaration some time ago that he would challenge Germany in behalf of Belgium.

"If that is the way we were to observe neutrality it would not be long before we would be embroiled in this struggle," he said. Touching lightly upon the immigrant problem, Mr. Dwan praised both ex-President Taft and President Wilson in vetoing the literacy test as not being a true test of character. He urged that national and state immigration officials get together and meet the immigrants when they come to this country and that they should find out from them whence they came and where they want to go, and that if a farmer came over from Southern Europe with his family he should be given a place on a farm here, instead of being sent into the mines or getting into the congested district of the great metropolitan centers.

C. A. PARKER FUNERAL.

Rust-Parker Offices Will Be Closed in Honor of Official.

Funeral services for Charles A Parker, treasurer of the Rust-Parker company, wholesale grocers, who died Wednesday at a St. Paul hospital, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 1906 East Third street. Burial will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

Offices and warehouses of the Rust-Parker company were closed this afternoon. Mrs. Parker, with Frank E. Parker and Joseph F. Parker, two brothers, arrived from St. Paul with the body last night.

A delegation from the Elks' lodge, of which Mr. Parker was a member, met the train and accompanied the body to the Stewart undertaking rooms.

MAY INTERN CRUISER AT SOME OTHER PORT

Washington, April 30.—Secretary Daniels announced yesterday that he had ordered the German commerce raider Kronprinz Wilhelm held in the harbor at Newport News until Saturday, when he will confer with Rear Admiral Beatty over a proposal to intern the vessel elsewhere than at the Norfolk navy yard.

The possibility of moving both the Wilhelm and the other interned ship, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, to some other port, has been considered, as it would be very inconvenient to keep them moored at the navy yard indefinitely. It has been suggested that the vessels might easily be moved to some anchorage within the Virginia capes, or by agreement with the European allies, taken to any desirable port along the coast.

BURNED COLLEGE HALL TO BE RECONSTRUCTED

Ashland, Wis., April 30.—The board of trustees of Northland college last night discussed rebuilding Wheeler hall, at the college, which was destroyed yesterday. The students held a mass meeting and subscribed $587 toward a fund to rebuild the structure. The amount is to be paid before Sept. 1, 1915. Indications are that $1,000 will be raised this week.

The school was organized as North Wisconsin academy in 1892. It became a college in 1906 and now numbers on its rolls 148 students from five states. The building was valued at $40,000 and was partially insured.

FEW SCHOOL CHILDREN ASSIST IN FARM WORK

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, April 15.—The suggestion recently made in some quarters that children be taken from the public schols and allowed to assist in farm work, has apparently not met with any very general adoption. The returns made to the national board of education under the compulsory education laws, show that only 1,400 children of school age have been excused from school attendance for this reason.

The average pay of children employed in farm labor is given as $1.60 a week, although in many cases board and lodging are supplied in addition.

AIRMEN DROP MANY BOMBS

Incendiary Missile Enters Room of Little Girl at Ipswich.

Two Houses Set on Fire in Village of Bury St. Edmunds.

Ipswich, Eng., April 30.—A hostile aircraft—whether a Zeppelin or an aeroplane, is not known—raided Ipswich early this morning. Several bombs were dropped. An incendiary bomb struck a house, pierced the roof and fell into the bedroom of a little girl. The child was rescued by her father, Harry Goodwin.

The flames spread to two adjoining houses, which were almost destroyed.

The aircraft then passed on to Whitton, where it also dropped explosives. So far as known, nobody was injured.

Bury St. Edmunds Visited.

Bury St. Edmunds, Eng., April 30.—A Zeppelin flew over here early this morning and dropped several bombs. So far as known no one was injured, but two houses were set on fire, one in the butter market and the other in St. Andrews street.

Zeppelin Works Hit.

Geneva, Switzerland, via Paris, April 30.—Six bombs were dropped on the sheds of the Zeppelin dirigible balloon works at Friedrichshafen during the attack Wednesday by a squadron of allied aviators. Four of the bombs fell on empty sheds. One of them struck a shed in which was housed the framework of a new Zeppelin.

The French aviator who dropped the bombs was under heavy fire. Riflemen stationed in church steeples around Lake Constance showered bullets at the aviator.

Drop Bombs on Belfort.

Belfort, France., April 30.—Three German aeroplanes flew over Belfort at 5 o'clock yesterday evening and dropped nearly a dozen bombs. Four workmen were wounded.

The damage to property was slight, as a majority of the missiles fell into open fields. A few windows were broken and some roofs were damaged.

ALLIES CAPTURE GALLIPOLI

after heavy fighting. Allied forces disembarked at Enos, advanced nearly twenty miles, and occupied several villages.

"Three British warships bombarded Turkish positions in the Gulf of Smyrna, and it is stated that allied troops also landed in the neighborhood of Smyrna.

"Five points on the line between Enos and Saros were selected by the allies for the disembarkation of troops. Another force was landed on the Bulair line. A demonstration by a landing party on the plains of Troy led to the capture of 8,000 prisoners. Turkish troops continue to arrive."

Bombardment Vigorous.

London, April 30.—"The bombardment in the Dardanelles continues vigorously," says the Daily Telegraph Mitylene correspondent under date of Wednesday. "The allied ships have reached Vryscy in front of the Chanek forts, eight miles up the strait.

"Information received here regarding the landing operations is meager. It is reported that the allies have occupied the towns of Maitos and Gallipoli.

"Large numbers of Turkish prisoners are being brought to Lemos and Tenedos.

"The accounts of the operations received here agree that the British and French are making excellent progress, but it is stated that their losses have been very heavy."

The Athens correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that the real difficulties for the allied troops will only commence as they advance further into the interior, where the Turks have strong defenses and heavy guns. The correspondent adds that the military authorities in Athens believe that the campaign will be a long one.

Turkish Statement.

Constantinople, April 30, via London. —An official statement issued here today says that the allied forces which landed on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles have been entirely cleared away, that a large part of the troops which invaded Gallipoli peninsula has been driven off and that several warships and transports of the allies have been damaged.

The statement is as follows:

"No enemy remains on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles. Hostile force at Gaba Tepe (west coast of the Gallipoli peninsula, near the tip) are obstinately maintaining their positions, under the protection of ships.

"From the other parts of Gallipoli the enemy has been driven off.

"We have damaged several warships and transports."

Turks Are Praised.

Berlin, by wireless to London, April 30.—The following official statement was issued last night from the headquarters of the general staff:

"Reports from the Dardanelles pay tribute to the bravery and enthusiasm of the Turkish troops. In the first battle at Kumkaleh the Turks did not fire a shot, but repulsed the enemy with the bayonet.

"Forty warships bombarded Seddul Bahr. While this bombardment was in progress the Turks captured a large quantity of rifles and ammunition.

"At Gallipoli the Turks fought uninterruptedly for two days against the constant attack of the enemy without showing fatigue.

"On the eastern and western fronts the situation, generally speaking, is unchanged. In Russian Poland and the Carpathians there have been lively artillery duels in which our fire was very effective. In the Opor valley the enemy after many hours of artillery fire vainly attempted a night advance against the heights held by our infantry."

ate. In questions as to whether the witness had talked to Governor Hughes about the primary bill, or whether the governor favored the measure, were ruled out.

Mr. Hinman then read a record of the vote which defeated the direct primaries bill. It was defeated by the vote of 13 Republicans and 12 Democrats. The witness added that the Meade-Phillips direct primaries bill, favored by the organization, was passed, 14 Democrats and 14 Republicans voting for it.

Bi-Partisan Alignment.

The idea in offering this evidence, counsel for Col. Roosevelt said during an argument over an objection, was to show a bi-partisan alignment against the Hinman-Green bill and in favor of the Meade-Phillips bill.

William M. Ivins today denied that he had telegraphed Governor Whitman last night and requested him to appear as a witness later in the trial of the suit. An aide to Mr. Ivins had previously declared, however, that an answer had been expected from the governor before night, but that none had been received.

Mr. Hinman was shown Governor Hughes' message to the legislature of May 26, 1910. In it the governor expressed objection to the Meade-Phillips bill.

Mr. Minman then went on to tell of the action of the special session of the legislature called to consider direct primaries.

"I think," said Justice Andrews, "that you are trying to convey to the jury the idea that because Governor Hughes opposed a bill it necessarily must be a bad one."

"Oh, no," replied Mr. Van Benschoten, of Col. Roosevelt's legal staff, "we want to show later on that the plaintiff said he would defeat the Hinman-Green bill and that the organization Democrats and Republicans combined to do so."

Mr. Hinman then told of the senate receiving on the night of June 30, 1910, ten days after convening, a concurrent resolution from the assembly providing for adjournment of the special session. Only twenty-three Republican senators voted against adjournment.

France Next Witness.

L. W. France of Port Washington was the next witness. He said:

"Mr. Barnes had sent a message to me at the Brooklyn Young Republican club. He said he wanted to discuss with me direct primaries. He said our attitude was wrong on the Hinman-Green bill. He said he could show the whole idea was wrong. He said he could get the riff-raff of the Democrats and vote them in for Republican primaries and vice versa and nominate such rotten men that the public would soon become disgusted with direct primaries. He also told me direct nomination gave too much publicity to the candidate, as it forced him to go through two campaigns. Barnes said he could ruin the reputation of any man living by throwing too much limelight on him. I told him that because of such views we disagree with him and that we believed there were men who could withstand the limelight.

H. H. Vreeland, formerly president of the Metropolitan Securities company, which owned the New York city railways, was the next witness. He was asked if he had contributed in 1902 to both the Democratic and Republican campaign funds, but objection to the question was sustained and after Mr. Vreeland was permitted to testify that he had contributed $20,000 to the Republican campaign fund of last year he was excused.

John A. Hennessy of Brooklyn, former Governor Sulzer's investigator, was the next witness. Mr. Hennessy said he made an examination of the bill and accounts of the state architect's office.

Mr. Van Benschoten read into the record a stipulation that it was agreed between counsel that in 1912, 1913 and 1914 there were gross abuses in the state government, there were scandals in the various state departments, that public offices were bartered for, contractors were blackmailed and that civil service was debauched.

A recess was then taken.

through freight, with overtime additional when switching work causes the overtime.

4.—An advance in rate of pay in switching service, 10 hours to constitute a day's work, with time and a half for overtime and guarantee of time to eat after six hours' work.

5.—Pay for time spent in preparing engine for day's run.

6.—Pay for time delayed at initial or final terminal in addition to all mileage or time made on trip.

7.—Automatic release when arrived at terminal; if used again, run to be considered a new day.

Pay for Continuous Time.

8.—Pay for continuous time, after fifteen hours' rest, while held away from home terminal, at rate of last service performed.

9.—Enginemen "deadheading" shall be paid the same rate as the enginemen hauling them.

10.—Hostlers to be employed where there are six or more engines handled per day, engineers and firemen to have rights to these positions with wages approximately the same as men in switching service.

11.—Elimination of the surprise test.

12.—Firemen to be assisted at coaling chutes.

13.—Employment of two firemen on engines weighing 185,000 pounds or more on drive wheels, when in freight service.

Relieved of Cleaning.

14.—Firemen to be relieved of duty of cleaning locomotives, engineers to be relieved of duties of filling grease cups, cleaning headlights, setting up wedges and a number of other minor duties.

15.—The weight of each engine in service to be posted where information can be available to men.

16.—Engineers and firemen not to be required to throw switches, flag through block signal systems or fill water cars.

The requests are all based on a general request that the weight of an engine on its drive wheels shall be the standard of size and the size of the engine, as is now the general practice, shall determine the rate of pay. These rates as requested are set forth in detail according to the weights of the various engines in service in the West, ranging from 80,000 to 400,000 pounds.

Ninety-eight railroads with 140,000 miles of railroad and 64,000 men are involved in the case.

berg) as the ultimate Austrian objective.

The increasing Russian menace on Uzsok pass, however, Russian military observers say, has brought this movement to a standstill, since with Uzsok in Russian hands, the operations of the Austrian right wing, deprived of its most important support, would automatically collapse.

French Statement.

Paris, April 30, 2:30 p. m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a report on the progress of hostilities reading as follows:

"We made progress yesterday to the north of Ypres, in the region of Steenstraate.

"The city of Reims received 500 shells of which many were of an incendiary nature. These missiles started several fires, but it was found possible to circumscribe them and to put them out quickly.

"In the Champagne district the enemy shelled one of our ambulances, wounding a doctor.

"German warships have been reported at large off the coast of Belgium.

"Dunkirk yesterday received nineteen shells of large caliber. Twenty persons were killed and forty-five wounded. Some houses were destroyed."

Another Denial.

London, April 30.—The east coast of England again has been subjected to an aerial attack accompanied by the usual infliction of material damage, but without casualties of any sort. Like former raids, this one of last night is marked by differences of opinion as to the type of air machine used by the Germans, but most people agree that a Zeppelin carried the raiders, who arrived in the small hours of the morning and spent a brief time over Ipswich and Bury St. Edmunds.

Another item of news of striking interest was the presence, reported officially from Paris, of a German fleet off the coast of Belgium and the shelling of Dunkirk, with the loss of twenty lives. Further news of this marine activity on the part of Germany is awaited anxiously in England.

It is a fact, however, that the air raid, the fighting along the Dardanelles and the report of German warships off Belgium were compelled to forego the limelight in favor of the question of liquor regulation in Great Britain. The government for the first time since the beginning of the war has had to meet a division in the house. The attitude of the house probably reflects the opinion of the country, which is sharply divided on the question of the necessity of regulating the consumption of alcoholic beverages. Even the Church of England resolved to view with uneasiness any action suggesting total prohibition.

Opposition From Ireland.

But the strongest opposition comes from Ireland. Some idea of the strength of this opposition to the proposal of the government is indicated by the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, a leading government organ, who declares that the measure proposed by Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George will not pass the house.

Official quarters still remain reticent concerning the military operations on the Dardanelles, but the London papers this morning contain a number of special dispatches from that region in which the claims are made that the allies are steadily advancing under cover of the fire of the fleet, but not without meeting an opposition which is causing them heavy losses. British troops are reported in occupation of the narrow tongue of the peninsula to the north of the town of Gallipoli.

The fighting in the western arena of hostilities still centers around Steenstraete. This position, occupied by the Germans, forms an irritating wedge in the allied line.

In the east, with improved weather, there has been some revival of activity along the line in Russian Poland. German attacks, according to Petrograd advices, have been repulsed.

In the Carpathians and Bukowina preparations evidently are under way for a resumption of operations on a large scale.

POPE IS ASKED TO ABANDON NEUTRALITY

Belgian and French Cardinals and Bishops Appeal to the Pontiff.

Rome, April 29.—Belgian and French cardinals, archbishops and bishops have united in an appeal to Pope Benedict for the Vatican to abandon the attitude of neutrality it has maintained since the beginning of the war. They say they cannot understand how the head of a church which is founded on principles of right and justice can remain neutral without protesting at the same time against those who violate written or unwritten laws. The pontiff is urged to assume an attitude which would be epoch-making in the history of the papacy.

Baby of Future is Considered

Much thought has been given in late years to the subject of maternity. In the cities there are maternity hospitals equipped with modern methods. But most women prefer their own homes and in the towns and villages must prefer them. And since this is true we know from the great many splendid letters written on the subject that our "Mother's Friend" is a great help to expectant mothers. They write of the wonderful relief, how it seemed to allow the muscles to expand without undue strain and what a splendid influence it was on the nervous system. Such helps as "Mother's Friend" and the broader knowledge of them should have a helpful influence upon babies of the future.

In a little book for such women these points are more thoroughly brought out and a copy will be mailed to anyone who will send us their name and address.

"Mother's Friend" is sold in all drug stores and highly recommended for its timely usefulness, its safeness and the real help it affords. Ask for it at the store and write us for the book. Bradfield Regulator Co., 311 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

TRIPS OVER WIFE'S BODY

Young Mother, in Fit of Depression, Takes Her Own Life.

Husband, Awakened By Shot, Stumbles Over Body on Floor.

Distracted by the belief that she was not recovering from a recent illness as rapidly as she should, Mrs. F. E. Hannah, wife of the district plant chief for the Duluth Telephone company, committed suicide at her home, 6 Munger terrace, shortly after 4 o'clock this morning. She was 25 years of age.

With her 10-day-old son in a nearby room under a nurse's care and her husband sleeping scarcely twenty feet away, Mrs. Hannah stepped to the middle of her room and placing a revolver close to the right temple, fired a revolver shot through her head. Death was almost instantaneous.

Awakened by the shot, Mr. Hannah imagined that the infant son had fallen from his cradle, and while on his way through his wife's room to the adjacent room where the child was asleep, he stumbled over something in the dark and turning on the lights discovered his wife's body.

Frightened at the blood, but still not realizing what had happened, he called the nurse, and when they raised the body from the floor the revolver was found under the skirt of Mrs. Hannah's gown.

Pronounces It Suicide.

Coroner C. F. McComb, following an examination at Crawford's undertaking rooms this noon, pronounced the case one of suicide, with a bullet wound in the right temple as the cause of death. He stated that Mrs. Hannah probably was temporarily deranged mentally following the birth of her son.

Recently a sister of Mrs. Hannah, after being an invalid for several years, committed suicide, and this is believed to have preyed on her mind.

"Despite the fact that physicians in charge of Mrs. Hannah stated that she was recovering rapidly, and that her son was an unusually healthy child, she persisted in the idea that she was not well," said W. H. Dean, a friend of the Hannah family.

"Mrs. Dean and myself called at the Hannah home last night," he said, "and Mrs. Hannah seemed normal in every way, except that she complained of being confined to her room so long. It is a most pathetic case, for Mr. and Mrs. Hannah were so happy in their wedded life."

Mr. and Mrs. Hannah had lived in Duluth but a short time, coming here from St. Paul about eight months ago. During that time they have made many friends here, who were deeply shocked at the tragedy. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, pending the arrival of relatives.

A. B. Payton of Council Bluffs, Iowa, father of Mrs. Hannah, left for Duluth this afternoon. Mr. Hannah's relatives, living at Boone, Iowa, also are expected to arrive here for the funeral.

SERIOUS RIOTING OCCURS AT TRIEST

Disturbance Largely Due to Increase in Prices of Food.

London, April 30.—Serious rioting has occurred during the past few days at Triest and Austrian sea coast towns, according to mail advices from Budapest received by the Post. The disturbances have been due largely to a further increase in food prices and a scarcity of flour resulting from large military requisitions. The police on one occasion was reported to have charged a mob in a suburb of Triest, killing several and wounding 800.

Army contract scandals continue to arouse deep indignation at Budapest. Many additional arrests have been made of persons accused of supplying adulterated food to the army.

TURKS ADVANCING ON THE SUEZ CANAL

Military Operations Are Evidently Continuing in That Region.

London, April 30.—Military operations in the vicinity of the Suez canal, from which region little has been heard recently, apparently are continuing, says the Post, in publishing a letter just received from an officer, who states that a party of Turks fired on a white flag, killing two and wounding eight men while they were attempting to deliver a letter to Turkish officials. The letter says: "We expect soon to be sent up the canal again, as we hear the Turks are advancing."

MARCHING SONG OF SERBIAN SOLDIERS

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Nish, April 10.—The Serbian soldiers' marching songs are composed by the men of the ranks on the Homeric rather than the modern variety hall plan. A Serbian officer has rendered into English one of the most popular songs, a song of exultation over victory, as follows:

"The Swabos came right up to Ralya
But no farther, tra, la laiya,
Hey, how was that?
Yoy, why was that?
Rashko Pol they won't forget,
For the Serbians they met.
Hey, how was that?
Yoy, why was that?
Now they know, the Swabo bruders,
How the Serb receives intruders:
Hey, this is why,
Yoy, this is how!"

GERMANS ARRESTED.

Four Prominent Men at Vancouver Celebrated Victory at Ypres.

Vancouver, B. C., April 30.—Four prominent German residents of Vancouver were arrested charged with taking part last Sunday night, with a number of other Germans, in a celebration of the German victory over Canadian troops at Ypres.

The men are Paul Koop, capitalist; Baron von Luttewitz, said to be a relative and intimate friend of Emperor William; Dr. Otto Grunert and Frederick Stritzel. A long list of Vancouver men killed and wounded reached here Sunday night, and news of the celebration caused popular indignation. The Germans arrested declare they were merely having a housewarming. It is expected the four will be sent to a detention camp for alien enemies at Nanaimo.

SWOBODA PROTESTS AGAINST DETENTION

Says Charges of Setting Fire to La Touraine Are Spite Work.

Paris, April 30.—Raymond Ruff Schwind, best known as Raymond Swoboda, arrested on suspicion of having started the fire aboard the steamship La Touraine and now charged with espionage, has been confronted by Maj. Wehring, who identified him as having been in his employ when the major was manager of the Russo-Chinese bank at Shanghai, according to the Petit Journal. The newspaper asserts the prisoner admitted he had been convicted in the consular court at Shanghai under the name of Schwind and stated then that he was born in Hamburg, but he is said to have explained to the French military authorities that the name and birthplace were assumed.

The prisoner has written to Maj. Jullien of the Paris permanent court-martial protesting against his long detention, declaring that the charge of setting fire to La Touraine was trumped up out of spite by a fellow passenger and that the charge of espionage is altogether preposterous.

TRIPP APPEAL NOT GRANTED

Original Case Brought By H. J. Kruse to Recover Mine Royalties.

Tripp, as Co-Partner, Is Charged With Conducting Secret Transactions.

The Minnesota supreme court in a decision handed down today affirms the order of District Judge Cant refusing a new trial to Chester D. Tripp in an action decided adversely to him by a jury last October in which H. J. Kruse brought suit to recover several thousand dollars in royalties paid Mr. Tripp by the operators of Armour mine, No. 2, and a half interest in the surface rights to property sold to the mining company.

Mr. Kruse claimed that he and Mr. Tripp were in a copartnership and that the defendant with intent to defraud him, concealed certain transactions connected with the conveyance of their jointly-owned land, and had been secretly receiving royalties from the mine owners.

Certain questions of fact were decided by the jury in favor of Mr. Kruse. In accordance with the jury's finding, Judge Cant filed conclusions of law in which the property rights in question were awarded to him. The property in dispute is located on the Cuyuna range.

Fryberger, Fryberger & Fulton appeared as attorneys for Mr. Kruse and Abbott, McPherran, Lewis & Gilbert appeared for Mr. Tripp. Mr. Kruse is a resident of Crosby and Mr. Tripp lives in Chicago. The latter was former president and general manager of the Rogers-Brown Ore company of Chicago.

WOULD NULLIFY SECRET TREATIES

Resolution Introduced at International Congress of Women.

The Hague, Netherlands, via London, April 30.—The entire session yesterday of the international congress of women was devoted to the discussion and adoption of two resolutions. The first provided for democratic control in framing the following policies of nations. As amended and adopted, this resolution recommended the nullification of all secret treaties and the participation in the adoption of future treaties of the people at least through the legislative branches of governments.

The second resolution, presented by Miss Emily Balch of Wellesley college, opposed the transfer of territory of one nation to another without the consent of the inhabitants. As amended and adopted, this resolution recommended recognition of the right of peoples to self-government, and demanded a Democratic form of government for every nation.

Large quantities of pamphlets, dealing with conditions in Poland, were distributed among the delegates. This aroused some feeling on the part of the women who characterized it as anti-Russian propaganda emanating from German sources. Dr. Sofia Goulinska of Munich and Emily Napieralski of Chicago made speeches in support of the movement for the freedom of the Poles.

References were also made to the political position of the Jews and Finns in Russia.

Cargoes in Prize Court.

London, April 30.—The Danish steamship Louisiana, which sailed from New York March 30 for Copenhagen and was detained at Kirkwall on April 16, was transferred on April 26 to Hull, where the foodstuffs in her cargo will be passed on by a prize court. The cargo of cotton on the Swedish steamer Georgia, which left Savannah March 2, bound for Gothenburg, Sweden, has been thrown into the prize court at Sharpness.

SHIP OWNERS ARE PILING UP PROFITS

One English Firm Averaged $1,000,000 Monthly Since War Began.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

London, April 15. — Several large English shipowners are piling up profits at the rate of $500,000 or over a month, and one firm at least is reported to have averaged practically a million dollars a month since the beginning of the war.

It is, of course, only those who have had their ships free who have been able to make money. Some owners had their vessels tied up by charters at normal figures and others had their ships taken by the government. Then all the shipowners have had to bear increased expenditures for wages, fuel, insurance and delays in port.

The people who are really making the money, according to a London shipping journal, are the Greek shipowners. "For the last few years," it explains, "the Greeks have been steadily buying ships, and they now have a very considerable merchant marine. They can take full advantage of the high rates, and do not have to face the risks British shippers do, nor pay the extra wages."

ROADS FAVOR TWIN CITIES

Evidence of Partiality Is Shown in Rate Inquiries, Say Traffic Men.

Duluth Most Economical Place in U. S. for Roads, Says Hall.

It would seem scarcely necessary, after the decision handed down by the interstate commerce commission on Wednesday of this week, to submit more proof that the railroads are favoring the Twin Cities in the matter of rates wherever possible at the expense of Duluth, in view of the voiced recognition of this state of affairs by the commission, but the inquiry into grain rates now in progress in Chicago is revealing more than confirmatory evidence. In the decision of last Wednesday the commission, in its memorandum attached to the decisions, says:

"The northwestern lines entered no appearance on this record and their officials testified only under subpoena issued at the request of the Twin Cities, where those lines have their official headquarters.

"A careful examination of the testimony given in this case by their officials shows that those lines are still willing to build up the Twin Cities at the expense of Duluth, thus holding the differential scale down to the lower level."

In the grain rate inquiry it is shown by the statisticians and auditors of the interstate commerce commission, in the examinations of the books of railroad companies that

The railroads' rates on grain products shipped by the Twin City millers are not only profitless to the roads, but in some cases cause actual loss to the roads.

Milling in Transit.

The Twin City mills, that is the Minneapolis mills, to be explicit, have an arrangement with the railroads by which they may mill grain in transit; that is, wheat, for instance, will be received by the mills there and ground into flour, but in theory is still on its way East or to whatever shipping point the mill desires; and the product of the grain thus milled in transit is carried at the rate of only 5 cents more than the wheat itself although in greater bulk. The figures produced in the inquiry being conducted, show a fair profit on the wheat or other grain, but no profit, and, as has been said, in some cases, actual loss to the road, on the grain products.

Duluth has no "milling-in-transit" arrangement and yet, as G. Roy Hall, Duluth traffic commissioner, testified at the inquiry last week, "it is the competition through Duluth that has been offered as an excuse for the Minneapolis arrangement."

At the grain rate inquiry, which is being conducted before Commissioner W. M. Daniels, the railroads are asking for a freight increase of 1 cent a hundred in proportional freight rates on grain and grain products between the Twin Cities and other points. Minneapolis is fighting the advance asked. When W. P. Trickett, traffic commissioner of Minneapolis, testified at the hearing, he declared that Minneapolis should have the same rate on grain shipments as is granted Duluth, and asserted that the 5 cents a hundred proportional rate from Minneapolis to Duluth now in effect worked to the disadvantage of Minneapolis and that the proposed increase on 1 cent a hundred would only augment the evil.

In view of the figures gathered, Mr. Trickett's testimony is regarded as rather amazing; and it is also regarded as hardly well founded.

It has been pretty conclusively shown in the inquiry that Minneapolis and Chicago have been rather unfairly favored by the roads, and it is believed that if Duluth were placed on an equitable basis—asking no advantage other than that which nature gave her in the way of being a port on the Great Lakes—she would develop into a milling center second to none.

It is considered obvious that this is what Minneapolis dreads, and with the railroads asking no greater proportional rate on grain products, it is taken as a still further evidence that they are no more anxious for that result than is Minneapolis.

Carriers' Attitude Puzzling.

The attitude of the railroads in favoring Minneapolis in all freight not in grain products alone is of so long standing as to have become a habit; but in the matter of grain and grain products, traffic men fail to understand why the carriers are willing to contribute to the supremacy of Minneapolis at a loss to themselves, when a more equitable basis of rates would interfere in no way with their earnings save to increase them, even should Duluth become a milling rival of Minneapolis.

In this grain rate inquiry, Duluth is asking for a more equitable basis of rate from all points east of the Missouri river, and at Chicago last week, Traffic Commissioner Hall of Duluth and C. F. Macdonald, secretary of the Duluth board of trade, gave testimony. The Traffic World reviews their testimony as follows:

"Mr. Hall:

"The present proportional rate of 16 cents on wheat from Omaha to Duluth is prohibitive as against a proportional rate of 11 cents to Minneapolis and 12 cents to Chicago, so that our only Omaha purchases are 'famine' purchases. Moreover, wheat from Omaha, milled in transit at Minneapolis, can be delivered as flour at Chicago for 18½ cents.

"It is our theory that rates should be constructed upon a progressive scale. The distance from Minneapolis is 150 miles. I have taken several 150-mile hauls and find the average cost to be 3 cents. Should not the rate from Omaha to Duluth be the Omaha-Minneapolis rate, plus a reasonable transit charge and 3 cents for the haul from Minneapolis to Duluth?

Victim of Discrimination.

"The Duluth grain operation is at present the victim of discrimination. For example, wheat may be shipped from Omaha to Chicago, milled at that point, and the product forwarded lake-and-rail at a cost of 26.7 cents for a haul of 1,787 miles. Wheat may be shipped from Omaha to Minneapolis, milled there and shipped rail-lake-and-rail to New York, via Chicago, for 34 cents for a haul of 2,056 miles. Wheat shipped from Omaha to Duluth, milled at Duluth, and the product shipped to Chicago, a total haul of 965 miles, pays 26 cents.

"Duluth has no milling in transit rates of any kind. Yet it is the competition through Duluth that has been offered as an excuse for the Minneapolis arrangement.'

"'Your idea, as I gathered,' said Mr. Wright, 'is that you would like a through rate from the Missouri river less than the combination on Minneapolis. Is that so?'

"'Yes.'

"'You would like an advantage over Minneapolis?'

"'No; we are not asking any advantage.'

"'You know the Omaha-Chicago rate was forced by the Great Western.'

"Mr. Hall admitted that he did, but added that he could not see any reason why the revenue from Omaha to Chicago should be more attractive than from Omaha to Duluth for a haul of approximately the same length.

C. F. Macdonald Testified.

"C. F. Macdonald, secretary of the Duluth board of trade, was also a witness. He paid particular attention to the proposed increase of the rate between Duluth and Minneapolis. The movement of grain, especially barley, is heavier northbound, he said, and added:

"'An advance of 1 cent means an advance of about six-tenths cent per bushel on wheat, rye, corn and flax, ½ cent on barley and 1-3 cent on oats. These amounts are sufficient to effect the movement and must be absorbed or the movement will be considerably diminished.'"

During his testimony, Mr. Hall cited rates and distances to prove his assertion that Duluth is grossly discriminated against. One statement was as follows:

"In the case of the Duluth board of trade vs. the Great Northern Railway company and others, the commission ordered that the carriers should maintain rates on grain from points of origin in Minnesota, South Dakota and Iowa to Duluth, which should not exceed, for equal distances, their rates from the same points of origin to Milwaukee, Wis.

"The distance from Omaha to Milwaukee is 506 miles. The local rates are 15¾ cents on wheat and 14¾ cents on coarse grains. The distance from Omaha to Duluth is 496 miles and the local rates are 18¾ cents on wheat and 17¾ cents on coarse grains. The proportional rates from Omaha to Milwaukee are 12 cents on wheat and 11 cents on coarse grains, the same as to Chicago, while the proportional rates to Duluth from Omaha are 16 cents on wheat and 15 cents on coarse grains.

Order Not Obeyed.

"The rates from Omaha and Council Bluffs have not yet been established by the railroads in accordance with the decision of the commission in the Duluth board of trade cases referred to. There is no reason why a proportional rate from Missouri river points should not be made the same to Duluth as to Milwaukee; particularly we see no reason why the Duluth grain dealers and millers should be subjected to an advance of 1 cent in the proportional rate on grain into Duluth and of 1 cent out from Duluth."

The change from Omaha to Duluth is 5 cents over Minneapolis on all grains for the 150 miles additional haulage. This is not including grain products. In this connection Mr. Hall told the commissioner:

"The conditions of transportation between the Twin Cities and Duluth are more favorable than between Missouri river points and Chicago. Howard Elliott, then president of the Northern Pacific Railway company, testified in the so-called Minnesota rate case that the most economical business the Northern Pacific railway had was the steady back and forth movement between the Twin Cities and the Head of the Lakes."

Testifies to Loss.

Mr. Hall cited the testimony in another case of J. W. Kendrick, at one time chief engineer, general manager and vice president in charge of the operation of the Northern Pacific, which pretty well tells the story of the difference of expense and earnings between the haulage of grain and grain products. This testimony in part follows:

"The Duluth-Twin Cities lines, have, at different times, published a proportional rate of 5 cents per 100 pounds applying on grain products from the Twin Cities to Duluth when destined East via the lakes. The rail-lake-and-rail rate from the Twin Cities to New York on flour is 23 cents during the season of navigation on the Great Lakes, made up of 5 cents to Duluth and the local rate of 18 cents from Duluth to New York. The 5 cents proportional rate above referred to was published at a time when the through rail-lake-and-rail rates were suspended for the purpose of enabling the Twin City millers to ship flour to Duluth for storage in dock warehouses free of charge. The service which the Duluth-Twin Cities carriers perform for this proportional rate of 5 cents is as follows:

Service Given Millers.

"Cars are furnished at the mill, into which the grain products are loaded to an average of about 40,000 pounds to a car. Cars are switched into trains and connecting line switching, if any, absorbed. Cars are hauled to Duluth, switched to the docks, unloaded into the dock warehouses at the expense of the railroad company and there stored pending the opening of navigation. This service is very extensive and expensive and is in sharp contrast to the service performed for the proportional rate of 5 cents on grain between the Twin Cities and Duluth. That service is substantially as follows: Cars are furnished at an elevator, grain is loaded and hauled to the Head of the Lakes or vice versa, where it is set at an elevator and immediately unloaded. The cars are then switched to a coal dock at Duluth and usually within twenty-four hours of the time of arrival loaded with grain, are on their way back with a return load."

Mr. Hall added that from the standpoint of equipment efficiency, Duluth is the most economical place in the United States, car detention here being less than at any other large terminal; and he continued:

"These facts alone would warrant a lower proportional rate between Duluth and the Twin Cities on grain than exists on grain products."

DULUTH PASTOR RESIGNS POSITION

Dr. Hovis Will Leave Endion Church Next October.

Dr. William Forney Hovis, pastor of the Endion M. E. church, has tendered his resignation to take effect at the end of the church year on Oct. 1.

Dr. and Mrs. Hovis are at present visiting in the East, and it is not known by his friends here just what his future plans are. It is understood, however, that he will accept a large pastorate in the East, immediately after severing his connections with the Duluth church. Dr. Hovis has been pastor here for the last three years, having succeeded Dr. John Walker Powell, who is now in Minneapolis.

The official board of the church has postponed action on Dr. Hovis' resignation, and a successor will not be selected for several weeks at least, it was announced last night.

BUSY YEAR IS PLANNED

Retail Merchants' Association Will Be Active in Many Lines.

Disapprove the Trading Stamps; Will Co-operate With Farmers' Clubs.

At the first meeting of the new board of directors of the Duluth Retail Merchants' association, held yesterday at the St. Louis hotel, plans for a year's work of great activity were outlined.

It is the intention of the directors to make the association a powerful factor in the civic life of the city.

Through co-operation with the Commercial club, the Neighborhood clubs, other civic organizations and the farmers' clubs the merchants aim to keep in very close touch with civic and agricultural conditions.

Duluth a Convention City.

Particular attention will be paid to conventions. The retail association will do its share in getting conventions to the city and will put forth every effort to help make such affairs a success. Already plans are under way to make the convention of the National Retail Credit Men's association and the meeting of the mercantile agency secretaries to be held here during the same week this summer an event that will make good the claims Duluth has made as a convention city.

Disapprove of Trading Stamps.

The directors individually expressed their disapproval of trading stamps, premium coupons and all other similar forms of trade solicitation, expressing an opinion that such methods were but another factor in the cost of doing business and were not conducive to business economy.

Aprrove Clean-Up Campaign.

The directors went on record as heartily approving the "clean-up and paint-up" campaign and at the regular monthly meeting, to be held next Tuesday evening at the Holland hotel, the members of the association will be requested to make themselves individually responsible for conditions in their respective communities.

Craig Will Address Retailers.

At an early meeting Charles P. Craig will address the association on the subject "Intelligent Co-operation With the Farmer." It is planned to have a series of addresses of this character on subjects of interest to the retail trade.

The officers of the association are: President, Bentley P. Neff; vice president, A. C. Pearsons; secretary-treasurer, George M. Peterson; directors, A. O. Anderson, R. D. Annis, W. A. Abbett, William Bilstein, William Burgess and I. Freimuth.

WAS ARRESTED IN FARGO IN JANUARY

Mill City Woman, Accused of Trying to Swindle, Known in Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pearl Turner, arrested under the name of Mrs. F. T. Turner, in Minneapolis, on a charge of attempting to work a jewelry swindle, was under arrest in Fargo for six days from Jan. 20, as a forgery suspect and was later fined $25 on a vagrancy charge.

She spent about two months here and in December was located by the police at the request of the Canadian officials, charged with the theft of a fur coat at Nelson, B. C., where, it is said, she conducted a house of ill-fame She adjusted the matter by paying for the coat when a Canadian official appeared.

When arrested here she had a large supply of morphine, being addicted to the habit, it is alleged. She admitted conducting bawdy houses in Brandon and also on Prince Edward Island.

Took Up With Convict.

When she first came here she was accompanied by a man who gave his name as George A. Klosson, but later separated from him and lived as the wife of William Norton, alias Baker, now serving a term in the state penitentiary on a forgery charge. She passed a check at a local restaurant one night handed her by him to pay for a supper they had eaten. He also passed a forged check on the proprietor of the hotel at which they were registered as man and wife. He was arrested in Wahpeton, brought back here and pleaded guilty. After he was sentenced she left town with Klosson with whom she had made up. As far as known she attempted no jewelry swindles here.

The police department has pictures of both Pearl Turner and Klosson, the latter being held at one time on suspicion but later dismissed. The woman is said to have admitted many swindling schemes to local people.

KINDERGARTEN FESTIVAL Tonight —AT— CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL (7:30.) Adults, 25c; Children, 10c.

WILL TALK ON PAGANS.

Dr. Gebauer Will Begin Series of Sermons on May 2.

"Pagan Prophets and Teachers" will be the subject of a series of sermons to be delivered by Dr. George R. Gebauer, pastor of the First Unitarian church, beginning Sunday, May 2. The subjects will be: "Socrates—The Enlightener;" Plato—The Poet-Thinker;" "Aristotle—The Philosopher;" "The Stoics and Marcus Aurelius."

AUTO WITH EACH ACRE

Concrete Cottage and Small Car for Each Settler, New Plan.

"Jitney Acres" May Be the Name of New Homecroft Settlement.

An acre plot, a concrete bungalow and an automobile—all for $300 down and $25 a month.

This is the dream of a Minneapolitan, whose offer to conduct such a selling program for a large realty firm of this city, was turned down yesterday, but may yet be taken up by some other company.

"Jitney Acres" is the name given by the Minneapolitan to his scheme, the plan being to clear a fifty-acre tract about two or three miles from the city limits, build a concrete bungalow on each acre and sell the property with a certain popular small car thrown in—all for $300 down and $25 a month. It is believed that such a prize package, the acre, the bungalow and the car, could be sold for about $3,000 and return a good profit.

Of course, the car is thrown in, so that the owner of the bungalow may be able to drive to the city every day and go on with his business. He could also bring in the produce from his acre plot and with fifty settlers owning a car apiece, arrangements could be made whereby only about a quarter of the cars would be used each day.

Although the idea sounds fantastic to some, the plan has great possibilities according to one local real estate man.

"This Mill City man has a good idea," said the agent. "It's certainly an up-to-date way of opening a new settlement."

FILES ANSWER IN CONTEST CASE

Capt. Smallwood Outlines Defense; Decision in Mandamus Action Due.

Capt. W. H. Smallwood, municipal judge-elect, today filed with the district court an answer to the contest proceedings instituted against him last week by John Brown, Jr., who asks the court to declare William L. Windom elected on the ground that he received a plurality of all of the first-choice votes cast at the election.

Capt. Smallwood's defense to the action is that the election was conducted in the manner provided for in the city charter and that by a canvass of the first, second and third-choice votes he was elected. The contestant's claim is that the office of municipal judge is a state office and that the preferential system of voting does not apply.

The questions are in all respects similar to those which have been raised in the mandamus suit brought by Judge Windom against the city, a decision on which is now pending. It is expected that the court will hand down an opinion in this case today or tomorrow.

H. H. Phelps is appearing in the litigation as attorney for Capt. Smallwood and Fryberger, Fryberger & Fulton are representing Judge Windom's interests.

REFUSES TO TRANSFER STOCK

Mining Company Must Show Cause for Its Attitude.

An alternative writ of mandamus directed against the Iron Mountain Mining company requiring the concern to make a transfer of stock on its books or show cause why it should not be made to do so, was granted by Judge Bert Fesler in district court yesterday afternoon on the petition of Edward Downie.

On Jan. 27, 1914, J. W. Fee became the owner of 1,200 shares of the capital stock of the Iron Mountain Mining company. On April 29 last, Fee transferred and assigned the stock to Downie. However, when Downie sought to have the stock transferred on the company books, he was refused.

The writ sued out by Downie requires the company to make the transfer or appear in court tomorrow morning and show cause to the contrary.

WILL CONFER WITH OWNERS

Farrell Will Meet Residents Before Starting Woodland Avenue Paving.

Will Let Two Contracts If His Plans Prove Satisfactory.

Before final action is taken on the paving of Woodland avenue, from Fourth street to Kent road, and Sixth street, from Twenty-first to Twenty-fifth avenues west, Commissioner Farrell, head of the public works division, will hold special meetings with the property owners affected by the proposed improvements.

Commissioner Farrell announced this morning that the Woodland avenue owners will meet in his offices at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening, and the Sixth street owners at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The head of the works division also announced that he has decided on the material for both thoroughfares, one-course concrete for Woodland avenue, and crushed rock macadam for West Sixth street, but that he will take no official action until he has met with the owners. If his plans are satisfactory, he said, he would introduce resolutions at the council meeting next week awarding the contracts for the two pavements.

A. N. Nelson, who is low bidder on the one-course concrete pavement for Woodland, will probably be awarded the contract in a resolution to be introduced Monday. It will require an additional week before it can be passed, however. Mr. Nelson's bid is $17,793.20.

James W. Preston, who was low bidder for the West Sixth street pavement, will be awarded the contract, if the material is satisfactory to all the owners. The bids on class B macadam follows: Rogers & McLean, $13,591.05; Olson & Johnson, $15,537.90, and James W. Preston, $12,165.85.

Next week Mr. Farrell plans to advertise for bids on the First street pavement, from Twenty-eighth avenue east to Congdon park, and Twentieth avenue west, from Superior to First street. The latter will be paved with brick, he said, while several materials are to be considered for the East First street pavement.

THE CAMERA'LL GET YOU.

The camera promises to be an interesting adjunct to the clean-up campaign next month. It will go spying about various parts of the city in search of indications of unusual non-activity, and will make permanent records of such indications as seem to justify having that distinction conferred on them.

Wouldn't it be interesting and instructive to pick up a newspaper and find in it a picture of your own back yard as a sample of what a back yard can be made to look like if it isn't taken care of? You bet it would be interesting! If you doubt it, just leave the winter's accumulation where it will make an unsightly mess, and see if you don't find it immortalized in this way.

The trouble about the camera in this connection is that it doesn't miss anything. You may think the work already done leaves things looking "good enough," and then along comes the lens and shows it all up, including that can or bottle or whatever it is that you overlooked. And the only way to guard against such a contingency is not to overlook anything.

So just remember, when clean-up week comes, that it's well to be particular, or the camera will get you if you don't watch out.

We are already getting tired of the war over here, so what must the noncombatants on the other side feel like?

CARE NEEDED IN THE HOMES.

Charges have been made again and again that practically all the fires that occur are due to carelessness or negligence on the part of some person. The percentage charged to these causes varies according to the experience of the compiler of the report, but there is always the big proportion of avoidable fires.

In view of this fact it is interesting to note that Fire Commissioner Adamson of New York city, in his annual report, states that out of a total of 14,425 fires in that city last year, no less than 9,243 occurred in dwellings. In other buildings there were only 2,768 fires and outside buildings there were but 2,414.

Smoking is credited with having a good deal to do with the fire loss in New York city. Last year, for instance, there were 1,342 fires started through carelessness with cigars, cigarettes and pipes. Some other causes are reported as follows: Careless use of candles and tapers, 523 fires; children playing with matches or fire, 755; careless use of matches, 1,248; overheated stoves, boilers, ranges, etc., 958; defective insulation, 472; hot ashes igniting woodwork, 90; bonfires, brush fires and rubbish fires, 1,491.

These figures do not come near covering the whole list of causes, but they are interesting. Among other things they emphasize the failure of mankind to overcome entirely the danger from the friction match.

Several reforms in the service of the fire department are given in the commissioner's report, but perhaps the most striking is the "establishment of the commissioner's right to recover the cost of extinguishing fires due to culpable and wilful negligence." This is a movement comparatively new in American cities, but it is one of immense importance. It puts upon owners of property a reasonable burden of responsibility for carelessness, and relieves the public treasury of an equal amount of expense that should not fall upon the public.

How strongly this factor figured in the financial affairs of the department last year is not shown in the brief published summary of the report; but it is shown that, despite the purchase of new apparatus and the provision for twenty new fire companies, the budget is lower by $65,110 than that for the last year. Surely something must have been discovered to bring about so marked a difference as that.

But to get back to the home: With carelessness branded as the chief cause of fires the country over, and with something like nine-fourteenths of all the fires in a city like New York occurring in dwellings, it is evident that the dwellings are the place to look out for the carelessness that breeds fires.

There are people so unreasonable that they will find fault with Italy now if she stays out of it.

BREAKERS AHEAD.

One of the most interesting subjects for study during the present year is going to be the women's peace congress at The Hague. Whether it will be able to accomplish anything definite in the way of terminating the present war is problematical, if not actually doubtful. But the efforts will be interesting, and there is bound to be much instructive matter brought out in the discussions.

One of the proposals so far advanced at the congress is for the nullification of all secret treaties. The theory is undoubtedly excellent, but it is quite as undoubtedly impracticable. International relations are as subject to requirements of non-publicity as are those between individuals, and in such cases secret treaties are inevitable. It is hard to see how they could be prevented, for their very nature makes general knowledge of them out of the question, and the necessity that leads to such compacts prohibits the disclosure of their existence. It is probable that the protest against secret treaties may be "accepted in principle," but disregarded in practice.

More practical seems to be the plan to abandon transfer of territory from one nation to another without consent of the inhabitants of that territory. Yet there are many sharp angles in that question too, and it may be found impossible of universal application. For example, if the Turkish government should be disrupted by the war, what would become of the people of Turkey? They would hardly consent to Christian rule, yet there would be no Moslem nation to which they could turn. And there are other complications that the plan would have to overcome.

There appears to be some feeling already in the congress over the distribution of propaganda dealing with the status of countries affected by the war, notably Poland. Political status of alien nationals in belligerent countries also is a double-edged theme for discussion.

With the best of good will for the women's efforts, it is easy to see that there are breakers ahead of their peace congress.

Students of the human race are cordially invited to inquire into possible relations between the moving van and the water wagon.

A BASEBALL-LESS TOWN.

Incredible as it seems, there is actually a city in the United States of America that has no ball team, professional or amateur. There are some towns and villages where the population could all be put into one fair-sized hall, but where the corner lots or the outlying pastures are the scenes of red hot contests on the diamond. There are cities of thousands upon thousands of population, where two or even three professional games are to be seen on certain days of the year by anybody who has the price.

But it seems like a safe bet that there is only one city in the country with more than twelve thousand population where there is no talk of "glass arms," "stolen bases," "foul strikes," "rotten umpires" or "inshoots." Yes, it seems absolutely safe to wager that Morristown, N. J., is the only place in the country that can fulfill all the requirements of that description.

And Morristown isn't a dead place, by any means. Far from it. It has young men of athletic tendencies, and it has places for sporting events of one kind or another. It has young women who are ready to cheer their admirers for athletic or other prowess, and it has plenty of people ready to attend athletic contests.

But Morristown youngsters, according to the New York World, "go poloing, horsebacking, tennising, lacrossing, croqueting and autoing," instead of playing baseball. Suggestions that a professional team be obtained have been turned down with scorn. Morristown wants to be represented by home people or none, and as home people don't take to baseball, Morristown is left in the lurch.

Of course this gives a very good chance to moralize on the evil effect commercialism is having on our national game. But so long as Morristown is the only city in the country that can't scrape up even an amateur team, the moralizing would have to be pretty badly strained to cover the ground. And anyway the season is young. There is time yet for reformation, and the chances are that before August, or even by the Fourth of July, Morristown will be so stung by the taunts of neighboring communities that it will have a baseball team of its own, all home talent, too, and show those other fellows something about the game.

Roosevelt says he took certain action, told the newspapers about it, and the panic was over. And yet he doesn't seem in a hurry to give the newspapers credit for anything in the way of panic-stopping.

Chivalry No Longer Known in Naval War

From the Army and Navy Journal.

There is no certainty as to the total number of the allied fleet gathered at the Dardanelles, but whatever the number it is a mistake to say that it is the largest in number of any naval fleet ever assembled. The most formidable, no doubt, in tonnage, weight of metal and other elements of offense, but not the largest numerically.

At La Hougue, May 19, 1692, the French had seventy-six vessels and the English and Dutch allies fifty-six and sixty. Blake had forty-six vessels at Dungeness Nov. 28, 1652, against Van Tromp's ninety-eight, and the Dutch under Van Tromp off Goodwin Sands, Oct. 20, 1639, had 110 vessels to sixty-seven in the Spanish fleet. Sept. 1, 1591, occurred what Rawson in his "Twenty Famous Naval Battles" calls "the most conspicuously gallant fight in all the annals of naval warfare," when fifty-three Spanish vessels were fought single-handed at Flores, in the Azores, by the English man-of-war Revenge, commanded by Sir Richard Grenville, who scorned to follow the other five British line of battleships of Howard's fleet when they ran from what they regarded with reason as a hopeless fight.

The Spanish had 120 ships in the Armada they launched against England July 29, 1586, and the English a scratch fleet of 197 vessels, mostly small ones, no match for the formidable Armada, which evidently expected to tow the British Islands home with them. At Lepanto Oct. 7, 1571, the Spaniards had 300 sail and the Venetians 316.

If we go still further back we find at Actium, B. C. 31, 500 ships under Mark Antony and 250 under Octavius Caesar. The young Octavius won the battle by his possession of more mobile vessels. The pirates at Illyria had devised a light and powerful craft, long and narrow, sharp at either end, with a powerful ram, a mast in the center and two banks of oars. They were of light draught, easily handled, and possessed one of the great indispensable factors of naval success—speed, a factor which can never be disregarded with impunity in the construction of ships. This sort of vessel contributed largely to the effective force of Octavius.

The largest fleets in numbers were at Salamis, 481 B. C., when the Persians had 700 vessels of the class considered formidable in that day, and the Greeks 380. These vessels were mostly triremes, boats with three benches for the rowers, and a mast that could be raised or lowered by means of stays. This mast carried square sails.

There was some chivalry in a naval fight in the good old days of Blake and Van Tromp, when sneaking submarines and barbarous torpedoes were unknown, and naval commanders "courted war like a mistress."

When the Spanish Admiral Oguendo declined to come out of the shallow waters of Goodwin Sands to fight because he had no powder, Van Tromp said, "I have powder enough for both. I will give him half of mine."

"It is not only powder I need, but masts for my ships," replied Oguendo. To which Van Tromp replied, "I have plenty of masts, a whole shipload of them, and you can have them if you will only come out and meet me."

The result justified the caution of Oguendo, for when the two fleets did meet the Spaniards were so terribly beaten by the Dutch that of sixty-seven ships only eighteen reached Dunkirk in safety.

Fall River Has "Jitneys"

From "Chat and Comment" in the Fall River News: No longer can we say that the jitneys have come to town. The town has come to the jitneys. They own us, horse, foot, and breathing space. Permission is needed to leave the sidewalks at all anywhere along the center, and a life insurance policy is necessary to cross the street anywhere. There are people always ready to say, when a point like this is made, "Ha, he is against the jitneys." This does not follow. The jitneys may have their proper place. Time, not prophets, can prove that. (Perhaps profits can.) But just now, with 102 of them, according to registration figures and a lack of regulative rules and ordinances, we have met the jitneys and we are theirs. The line of them along the sidewalks in front of the city hall, and the two blocks north is so dense that a man actually has to go up and down like a vessel skirting the coast for an entrance. Now, more than ever, it appears that we have made a grave mistake not to make some ordinance restricting the standing of automobiles in the center of the city. But it is not too late, even now.

What says the poet?

Jitneys to right of us,
Jitneys to left of us,
Jitneys all round us,
Caromed and blundered.
(Continue ad lib.)

And again:

If a street car meets a jitney
Coming down the lane,
And the street car hits the jitney,
I wonder who's to blame.

Again and again:

I had a little auto which
With very little fuss
I tagged all o'er with 5-cent signs
And called it blunder-buss.

The jitbus drivers are certainly showing—some of them, of course, not all of them—a very serious disregard for the rights of other teams, and of traffic laws. Proving that those who think that modern communities have to be legislated into decency are more than a little right. I saw one yesterday stop for full five minutes in the middle of Main street while he loaded up—there being no room at the curb—and while he collected fares. As he loaded and collected, coal teams came up behind him, waited patiently, and then having stopped, got under way again and went on around him. One of his fellow jitney drivers made a great fuss with his horn, at which the offender against reason showed very plainly his ire and his indifference to the rights of others. He was a subject for regulation.

Already the number of jitney busses is greater than the patronage on certain runs. I saw seven standing idle in City Hall square for quite a while yesterday. The law of the survival of the fittest is shining up its implements and will soon be in the game.

All in the Month of May

Editorial in the St. Louis Republic.

According to our dispassionate Republican friends, who desire nothing but the progress of the true, the beautiful and the good, the Underwood tariff was in process of wrecking the country when the obliging war came along and stopped up "the breach in the tariff barricade." Now it is no use for us Democrats to dodge. Facts are facts. We might as well face them. Here goes to gaze on the Underwood tariff at its worst:

In May, 1914, our importations were $34,000,000 greater than they had been under the Payne-Aldrich tariff in the corresponding month of the year before. This was the greatest excess of the period before the war. Let us analyze it a little.

Of the $34,000,000 excess, $14,000,000 is accounted for by increased importations of food. In 1913 this country was visited by general drouth and the crops of the four principal grains fell short of the 1912 yield by a full billion bushels. Result: a greatly shortened food supply and heavy importations in the spring of 1914. Here are some of the items of increase: Food animals, $665,000; fresh meats and dairy products, $8,900,000; corn, $809,000. Several millions of this increase was in commodities which had been taken off the dutiable list by the Underwood tariff and made free.

We respectfully ask our Republican friends whether, if they had the power, they would restore the tariff on these things, so that the food supply of the nation should be scarcer and higher in time of drouth and shortage at home?

Of the $34,000,000 increase more than $11,000,000 was in the four items of coffee, hides, unmanufactured rubber and raw silk. The amounts were: Coffee, $2,429,000; hides, $4,145,000; unmanufactured rubber, $1,758,000; raw silk, $2,745,000. All four of these commodities were free under both tariffs—the Payne-Aldrich and the Underwood. The change of tariff had no more to do with this increase than the aurora borealis had.

More than $13,000,000 of the increase in this awful month was in the importation of crude materials for manufacturing. Of these, raw cotton—free under both tariffs—increased nearly $1,600,000, and raw wool—made free by the Underwood tariff—$6,789,000. The tariff had, therefore, nothing to do with the first increase. As for the wool, the greatest wool-producing state in the Union is Montana. They grow about 40,000,000 pounds a year there. These blighting wool importations were in May. In November they had an election out in Montana. They elected two Democratic congressmen—there are only two congressional districts—by pluralities of about 10,000 each over their Republican opponents, and over Republicans and Progressives both of about 4,000 each; and they sent a legislature to Helena Democratic on joint ballot by eight members. And before we leave this painful subject we should like to inquire what use American wool manufacturers could have had for all that raw wool in view of the fact—which every Republican knows—that the woolen business had been paralyzed by Democratic onslaughts on Schedule K in the tariff law which went into effect in October of the year before?

We ask the Republicans whether they would change the tariff on wool if they could? And if so, why?

Manufactures ready for consumption increased in this month $6,517,000. How large a percentage of this increase was in goods free under both tariffs we do not know; but increases in the two somewhat dissimilar items of fertilizers and works of art amount to nearly a million dollars, and both were on the free list under both tariffs. Before any charge can be brought against the Underwood tariff on account of this increase it is necessary to show that it took place in the case of items affected by tariff reduction and that industrial depression followed at home in consequence.

Now here emerges a capital fact in this controversy—salient, vital, ignored by Republicans. Every normal year shows a growth in imports over a normal year preceding. In the ten years from 1904 to 1913, under the Dingley and Payne-Aldrich tariffs, our annual imports grew from $991,000,000 to $1,813,000,000. This is at the rate of $82,200,000 a year, or $6,800,000 a month.

Of the increase of $34,000,000, $14,000,000 was caused by the unprecedented need of food following a year of drouth, and well on toward as much more was in the four items of wool, cotton, raw silk and rubber, upon the last three of which there was no tariff change. In fact, our country is so rich, so lavish in its purchases and so confident in its future that in May, 1914, there was an increase in importations of fourteen articles alone, exclusive of foods and food materials, all of which were free under both tariffs, of more than $13,500,000 over May, 1913!

Republican denunciation of the Underwood law is shallow, ignorant and insincere.

Too Many Women Drift

Ellen Adair in the Philadelphia Evening Ledger: Although many a woman would indignantly deny the statement, too many today might be classed as nothing more or less than "drifters" on the sea of life. For they have no plan, no purpose, no guiding principle beyond the great goal of Pleasure. There is a certain thrill, a certain glow of anticipation connected with drifting, too, though it be ephemeral and short-lived, which is very interesting and delightful while it lasts. The pity is that it lasts for such a short time—and then come the rocks and the under currents and the storms and the tears and the disappointments.

There are hundreds of different ways of drifting. One small boat may be drifting in a very safe and pleasant haven, where no possibility of mishap could occur. Another may be drifting in waters that look calm and lovely and that yet hold treacherous currents and waves underneath. A third may be drifting in the open sea, but with rudder and oars ready at a moment's notice to combat any sudden emergency. And the unfortunate fourth may be drifting because there is no other alternative, for the rudder is broken and the oars gone! And God help that poor lonely boat out there in the open!

A life without a purpose never can be a happy one. For, after all, the enthusiasms of life are what bring happiness to us—provided, of course, that the enthusiasms tend toward the right direction. Yet the saving clause is unnecessary, for no wrongly directed enthusiasm survives more than a brief space. For then it ceases to be an enthusiasm and becomes merely a failing and a handicap.

Seeing America First

By Fred C. Kelly.

From Diary:

In olden times the train butcher passed down the aisle shouting his wares—papers, magazines or fruits—in a sing-song voice, and that let him out. He did not tarry long, and if one did not care for what he had to sell only a scant amount of harm was done.

Almost anybody could be a train butcher in the good, old-fashioned way. But now—in the West—or at any rate in those parts of the West where the scenery abounds—the train butcher must be not only a salesman, but a lecturer, a cross between a book agent and Lyman H. Howe. He gives a travel talk on the scenery and then undertakes to sell a book of views confirming all that he has said. He slides into the seat beside the guileless passenger and takes the passenger's attention from the scenery to look at a souvenir paper weight. He will talk confidentially for ten minutes about the merits of a pair of penny postcards—for which he asks a dime.

Throughout the West practically everything that one can think of is now offered for sale on trains—Navajo blankets, Indian jewelry, staple and fancy groceries, and all manner of articles for which one cares little or nothing.

In the course of a day's journey through a mountainous region, we came to a patch of snow. Simultaneously with our coming upon the snow, entered a train salesman with about eight dozen pairs of low-grade amber spectacles over his arm. He explained that from then on we would be in snow almost continuously, and that to save the passengers' eyesight the railroad company had thoughtfully provided colored glasses at the absurdly low price of 50 cents each.

When no one offered to buy he started his lecture all over again with ramifications and variations, quoting various learned medical authorities on the deplorable number of persons whose lives had been made one continuous-performance headache simply because they persisted in staring out into the sunlight reflected by the great white mantle of snow.

By the time he had finished his discussion the train had pulled out of the little patch of snow.

And we saw little more snow that day.

I noticed one passenger buying a number of rather expensive souvenir booklets, showing wild mountain scenes.

"These will be a great help when I get home and start telling lies," he said, thumbing his purchases tenderly. "I'll show these pictures to my friends and tell them I went all over this country on a mule."

The charming feature of the average train salesman is his optimism. I rarely saw one of them sell any souvenirs. Yet all talked as if with a confidence of being on the verge of closing out the entire stock. After working at his trade for a few years, one of these train boys would make an ideal fisherman in the Adirondacks, where the fish are scarce. He could sit all day without getting a nibble and yet be certain every moment that he would get a big strike the following moment.

Moccasins are offered for sale in great assortment all through the West. I presume somebody must buy moccasins. But who wears them after they are bought? And why? Do you, yourself, foolish reader, know anybody who ever actually wore a pair of souvenir moccasins?

The literary hero of the train butchers throughout California is Harold Bell Wright, who lives in California. I must have asked fifteen different boys whom they regarded as the greatest living writer. Without exception they told me Harold Bell Wright, and all seemed surprised that I found it necessary to ask such a question. I flew to the defense of Bertha M. Clay, and one or two of the salesmen admitted that she has a wonderful style, but that was as far as they would go. They saved their superlatives for Harold Bell Wright. As one lad expressed it:

"You can't really know literature until you have sold it on trains. Then you see what the people really want. I reckon Harold Bell Wright is the most popular author since William Cullen Bryant."

There Is No Death.

There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore;
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown,
They shine forever more.

There is no death! The dust we tread
Shall change beneath the summer showers
To golden grain, or mellow fruit,
Or rainbow-tinted bowers.

The granite rocks disorganize
To feed the hanging moss they bear;
The leaves drink daily life,
From out the viewless air.

There is no death! The leaves may fall,
The flowers may fall and pass away;
They only wait through wintry hours
The coming of the May.

There is no death! An angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread,
He bears our best-loved things away;
And then we call them "dead."

He leaves our hearts all desolate;
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers;
Transported into bliss, they now
Adorn immortal bowers.

The bird-like voice, whose joyous tones
Made glad these scenes of sin and strife,
Sings now an everlasting song
Amid the tree of life.

And when he sees a smile too bright,
Or heart too pure for taint and vice,
He bears it to that world of light,
To dwell in paradise.

Born unto that undying life,
They leave us but to come again;
With joy we welcome them—the same
Except in sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless universe
Is life—there are no dead!
—Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton.

The Hen and the Codfish.

San Francisco Chronicle: The business manager of a country paper in Missouri is destined either to boost his journal or win a place on the scroll of poetic fame. His masterpiece, "The Hen and the Codfish," is as follows:

The codfish lays a million eggs,
While the helpful hen lays one;
But the codfish does not cackle,
To inform us what she's done;
And so we scorn the codfish coy,
But the helpful hen we prize;
Which indicates to thoughtful minds
It pays to advertise.

Fairmont Sentinel: Intimate friends of Hon. Daniel W. Lawler are passing out the word sub rosa that shortly after the adjournment of the legislature Uncle Dan will file as a candidate for the United States senate. We are inclined to credit the report. Your Uncle Daniel does things differently from almost everybody else. He has no system. He adheres to no rule. Like Gen. Grant he asks other people's advice and then goes his own way rejoicing. Not even the Cardinal (Dick) can run him and he can generally be depended upon to do the unexpected.

Not under any circumstances could the Sentinel support Mr. Lawler, but there is something about his style of doing things that appeals to our fancy. If he enters the race he cannot be "pulled off" and his methods will add much to the gaiety and picturesqueness of a campaign which otherwise promises to be dull and lifeless.

Go to it, Dan Lawler! We'll hold your coat!

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Quintius, the Sunshine Man.

For none of us liveth to himself.—Rom. xiv, 7.

We shall best honor Christ, as child and man, when our admiration leads us to repeat His life in our own. We are not to suffer our thought and life to be narrow and exclusive. Our affection and our purpose are to reach beyond ourselves and beyond our household, our clan, our country. * * * By every limit we put upon our sympathies, we become less like Him. By all the widening of our affection, we become more like Him. * * * We must live in a brotherhood larger than Israel, and say the Lord's prayer with all men, in the inspiration of its opening word.

—Alexander McKenzie, D. D.

There would be no need for any other law, if we all obeyed perfectly the law of love.

—William Walsingham.

When it was decided to close the prayer meeting in a certain village, a good woman declared she would be there if no one else was. She was true to her word, and when the next morning someone said to her rather jestingly: "Did you have a prayer meeting last night?" "Ah, that we did," she replied. "How many were present?" "Four." "Why," he said, "I heard you were there all alone." "No," she said, "I was the only one visible, but the Father and Son and Holy Spirit were there, and we were all agreed."

Have Sympathy.

"I have shewed you all things," says Paul, "how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, it is more blessed to give than to receive." A soul that has no sympathy is a vessel without oil.

Let us reach within our bosoms
For the key to other lives,
And with love to erring natures
Cherish good that still survives;
So that when disrobed spirits
Soar to realms of light again,
We may say, "Dear Father, judge us
As we judged our fellow-men."

J. Barleycorn, Murderer.

Detroit News: William Mellon, 34, dropped dead recently while sitting at the supper table with his wife and 9-year-old daughter Mary. Mellon was a grocer and according to the coroner's report of the death "committed suicide by drinking an excessive amount of whisky."

A few years ago Mellon owned one of the largest grocery stores on Grand River avenue, and was a member of two clubs. While returning from a champagne party in a hotel cafe at 2 o'clock in the morning, he slipped and strained his knee. The affliction became worse and finally the leg was amputated. Since then he had drunk heavily.

The widow is ill, and the child, who says she has been driven into the streets dozens of times, is so hysterical she may be taken to a hospital. Mellon allowed his insurance to lapse two years ago. The wife will conduct the grocery.

Business an End in Itself.

From "Dalhousie's Lady of the Morning," by David Gray in the Saturday Evening Post: What had he thus far learned from making bedsteads? Had he ever considered there was anything to be learned from that occupation? The uncouth figure of his father began to grow before him, gazing at him accusingly from under shaggy brows. Was it possible, then, that business was in a sense an end in itself, aside from the gaining of money? Was it the overcoming of obstacles, the sharpening of character against routine, the winning in competition, the waiting for unseen ends—that kept the world at the daily treadmill, yet keen eyed and eager? In that moment it came to him it was so.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THE IRRESPONSIBLE JITNEY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The jitney has come to stay—at least until cold weather. Through our deep drifts of snow and icy ruts it can operate, if at all, with extreme difficulty. Its open season is limited to seven or eight months of the year. During this season are numerous cold and windy days when the public will prefer the comfortable street car. During this open season the street railway will give the service necessary to care for that which the jitney leaves—largely the suburban traffic—and no more. Can the street railway afford, and can we compel it to give increased service limited to the few winter months? Can we compel the street car company to extend its suburban lines, when the principal traffic, the short profitable hauls co-extensive with our paved Superior street is largely carried by the jitney? Cheap living is largely dependent upon the suburban home with its garden and poultry yard. The jitney will not serve these homes. Can we afford to overlook this condition?

Unlicensed and unregulated jitney service creates serious danger and loss of life and property. Compared with that of the street car the jitney is not "in it." The street car moves on a fixed track; the only lookout necessary is to the front. The jitney swings in and out wherever there is a real or an apparent opening. The street car is provided with every modern appliance to regulate and stop its speed. These are all in front of and within instant reach of the motorman. From these he is not permitted to take his hands, eyes or attention. He is not permitted to collect a single fare nor to turn his face to the rear. To safeguard the entrance and the exit of passengers a glass reflector at his front is placed so that he may verify the signals received from the conductor that the passengers at the rear gates are safe. The jit alone has all these duties to perform, and every instant delay makes the jitney the less desirable; hence his hurry and the necessary consequent risks created.

The busy street is crowded with humanity. There is the impaired hearing of the aged, and the defective sight of the unfortunate; there is the unrestrainable child, the weak and the lame; there is also the person so deeply engrossed in personal affairs that his attention is often far away from the attendant dangers of the street. These are conditions ever present and unavoidable. They give rise to the laws that require the operation of speedy vehicles, whether jitneys, automobiles or street cars, to be operated with due regard to all these conditions, and that the highest practicable degree of care and diligence be exercised that no injury shall result.

I am told that we have over 100 jitneys now in operation. Their numbers may so increase that their operation may become less endurable than at present. These numerous jitneys are now a nuisance. We have one main driveway—Superior street. On its paved portion the jitneys operate. They retard progress, and unnecessarily endanger the safety of the people. Competition among the jitneys may become so keen that the care exercised may be greatly reduced. A responsible jit may be forced out of business. Practically all these jitneys are separately owned by individual jits; some are borrowed. The jit and the street car company have equal liability for damages caused, but not equal financial responsibility. I have secured a large number of judgments against the street railway for damages caused. Every final judgment has been paid. The company could not prevent its payment. It has property in value far beyond the amount of damages that it may cause. Because of its liability its care and ingenuity to prevent accidents is constantly increased. I have secured a number of judgments against owners or drivers of automobiles where there was a legal liability. I have been unable to collect any of these judgments where the owners and the drivers were financially irresponsible. No money can be collected where there is no unexempt property from which to force the payment.

These jitneys range in value from $250 to $500. Ninety per cent of the jits have not a dollar's worth of property exempt from execution. There is therefore, no financial incentive to care on their part. No judgment can scare, and no condition can terrify them. A disastrous jitney ride is therefore a very serious matter. Unregulated jitney service is a serious menace to the public. A reasonable license fee is necessary to protect the jit as well as the public. It should be at least equal to the increased cost of policing, and of the wear of the streets thereby caused. Stringent rules for its operation must be adopted. A human life under our statutes is fixed at $7,500. A jitney wreck may take several lives. A surety bond securing the payment of damages in a sum equal to the value of two human lives is not unreasonable.

My experience in these matters is surpassed by few. As a good citizen, I deem it my duty to call the public's attention to the jitney peril. Remedial regulation should be adopted without delay. Jitney joy is too expensive for the poor man. Respectfully,

JOHN JENSWOLD.

Duluth, April 29.

"GETTING ON OUR NERVES."

To the Editor of The Herald:

Recently one of Duluth's prominent manufacturers said to me: "It's no fun doing business these days. Everybody's temper seems to be hung on a hair trigger. Men who are ordinarily courteous, peaceable and good natured, are irritable and grouchy. I think it must be the strain of long continued anxiety over business conditions and the war. You get down to your desk in the morning feeling good natured, and inside of half an hour you get into a wordy scrap with somebody over some trifling incident. Everybody is critical, irritable, and hard to get along with."

His comment voiced a feeling that I had vaguely had for months. It is true, Mr. Editor, that we are letting this war "get on our nerves."

MEETING AT GRAND FORKS.

North Dakota Academy of Science Is in Session.

Grand Forks, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many members were present this morning when W. B. Bell of Fargo, president of the North Dakota Academy of Science, called that body to order and in his annual address covered the work of the organization during the past year, declaring splendid results had been attained.

Last night the engineering department of the university conducted an open house, demonstrating the various activities of the college. This was featured as a part of the academy meeting.

Appetite Follows Good Digestion

Nearly everyone indulges their appetite and the digestive organs are abused, resulting in a congestion of poisonous waste that clogs the bowels and causes much misery and distress.

The most effective remedy to correct this condition is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a natural, pleasant-tasting remedy, gentle yet positive in action, and quickly relieves indigestion, constipation, sick headache, belching, etc. Drug stores sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and in thousands of homes it is the indispensable family remedy. For a free trial bottle write Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

WOULD STOP SHELL MAKING

Milwaukee Man Institutes Proceedings Against Allis-Chalmers Company.

Suit Brought Under "Discovery" Law of Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 30.—A complaint was filed yesterday under the so-called "discovery" statute of Wisconsin to secure information to determine whether the Allis-Chalmers company, a corporation, Otto Falk, its president, and others, have entered into a conspiracy with the Bethlehem Steel company and others not yet known, to manufacture and ship shrapnell shells to European belligerents.

The action, service in which was secured last night, calls for the appearance of Mr. Falk and other defendants before the circuit court commissioner in Milwaukee, May 5, for preliminary action before pleading as provided by the discovery statute proceedings. Mr. Falk is cited to appear and bring with him all letters, contracts, correspondence and agreements between the Allis-Chalmers company and the Bethlehem Steel company.

Owns Property in Germany.

The complaint was filed by Samuel Pearson, who declares he is a citizen of the United States and that he has valuable property interests located within the boundaries of the German empire; that he is owner of securities issued by the German government, and that the German government is and for some time past has been engaged in war with Great Britain, France, Serbia, Montenegro, Russia and Japan. On information and belief, Pearson avers that the defendants, prior to the war, were engaged in the manufacture of peaceful instruments of art and industry, and that the manufacture of shrapnel was engaged in only after the war started and is to continue only during the actual continuance of the war.

The complaint sets forth that it is the belief that the defendants have entered into an unlawful conspiracy with the Bethlehem Steel company and others and that such a conspiracy indicated is made a criminal offense under the laws of Wisconsin, the penalties for which are defined in the Wisconsin statutes.

The examination of the defendants under the discovery statutes is for the purpose of ascertaining among other things the names of each person or corporation with whom the defendants may have contracted for the manufacture of shrapnel shells or similar munitions; the intent and nature of such contracts, and the names of any consignees to whom such munitions may have been shipped.

Injunction Suit.

Upon the information gained in the examination it is said, an injunction suit will be based to prevent the defendants from continuing in any such conspiracy as is alleged.

The complaint goes on to state that one type of ammunition indispensable to the belligerents is a projectile known as the shrapnel, designed but for one purpose, the destruction of human life and property, and that the intent of the war now being conducted by the several countries named against the German empire is so to cripple the said empire by the destruction of the lives of its citizens and of its property, both public and private, as to compel the submission of Germany to the future disposition of its national domain or to the surrender of its sovereign life as the allies, if victorious, may dispose.

Mention of President Wilson's neutrality proclamation is made and certain Federal statutes are cited, violations of which, it is contended, constitute breaches of neutrality and submit the offender to criminal prosecution for "high crimes and misdemeanors."

According to the complaint, the duration of the war would be materially shortened and the operations resulting in wholesale bloodshed and taking of life and vast destruction of property would be promptly curtailed if arms and ammunition were withheld by the United States from either of the belligerents.

TEN-YEAR-OLD BOY PERISHED AS HERO

Buried With Full Military Honors in Austro-Hungary.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Vienna, April 19.—Jan Wisjewski, aged 10, who died a hero, has been buried with full military honors in Maehrisch-Weisskirchen. He was one of the youngest, if not the youngest of the actual fighters in this war.

Jan's home was in Rychwald, from which he fled with his parents, Polish peasants, when the Russians came in December. The three were making their escape in a wagon when a piece of shrapnel killed his father and mother.

Neighbors took him in, but his childish mind clamored for revenge and he waited only until it was night to run away and join the Austro-Hungarian forces. The soldiers let him in the trenches and soon made him their favorite. He was so small that he could wriggle from one trench to another with food, tobacco and the like, without making much of a target.

Last month when ammunition suddenly ran low during the midst of a vicious attack, and the fire was so hot that it was out of the question to make one's way to the ammunition wagons, Jan begged in vain to make a try for it, and, when he was refused, made a dash for it.

He reached the train in safety, loaded himself down with cartridges, and began the return journey. A hundred feet from the trench the soldiers saw him fall, struck by a piece of shrapnel. While the men, regardless of the fire, ran toward him, he worked his way onward toward the trench until he collapsed ten feet away.

When the battle was over Jan was removed to the field hospital but his wounds were too severe, however, for him to survive them. He is mourned by "his" company as no other member has been.

AGAINST FARGO DOGS BEING ON STREETS

Fargo, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Starting campaigns against the dogs and the brilliant electric lights on automobiles, J. H. Dahl, the new police commissioner, is attracting attention. He has issued instructions that dogs will not be permitted to run at large whether licensed or not.

The use of electric lights within the city limits and on lighted streets is forbidden autoists. Only top lights will be permitted unless dimmers are used over the electric lights.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

An Adventure into Business.

Miss Florence Pealer of 14 Chester terrace, who went East several weeks ago for a visit, has entered on a novel and interesting adventure into the business world.

Miss Pealer and a Philadelphia friend, have rented a small cottage on the automobile highway between Philadelphia and Atlantic City, and have converted it into a tea room, where luncheons are served to the many automobile parties that travel that road.

The young women, their friends say, have no visions of big financial returns, but hope to earn sufficient money to pay them a fair return for their work, and permit them to enjoy a summer vacation at the seaside.

Employes of the different shops and department stores in the city are taking advantage of the arrangement being made by the heads of the stores to give them an opportunity of hearing the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, when it appears here under the auspices of the Duluth Curling club on June 4 and 5.

Ebar, whose niece, Miss Violet Jordan, has become well known in musical circles during her visits to Duluth, is in charge of reservations. About seventy young women from the Glass Block store have already arranged to attend the concerts, and parties are being made up among the young women in Gidding's, Silberstein's and the John J. Moe stores.

The members of the musical program advisory board will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of the chairman, Mrs. E. L. Schmied, 2218 East First street, to select program numbers from the requests which have been submitted by subscribers. These will be forwarded to Emil Oberhoffer, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra for final approval.

Theater Gossip.

Tomorrow evening Homer Barton and Miss Doris Olsson will bid farewell to patrons of the Baldwin Players, and early next week will probably leave the city.

BUT THREE MORE PERFORMANCES. Miss Olsson will go to Boston for a short stock engagement, and Mr. Barton will probably go to his home in Missouri before going east, for a vacation. Three more performances of "Charley's Aunt," which has proved a very popular comedy, will be given, tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night.

Sunday afternoon the company will open in "Fine Feathers" with three new faces in the cast. Miss Anne Bronaugh, the new leading woman; Harry L. Minturn, the new leading man, and Mark Elliston, the new "heavy," will all make their debut Sunday afternoon. They have been in the city since early in the week rehearsing, and will be letter perfect in their parts in the hope of making a favorable first impression. Mr. Minturn has appeared in his role before, having succeded Robert Edeson in the all-star cast, which was seen here two years ago, in the play. "Fine Feathers" has been seen in Duluth but once, and then at the regular road scale of prices. Duluth will see one of the first stock presentations of the play.

Large crowds were present at the New Grand last night when a new show opened a week-end engagement. There was variety in the vaudeville offerings, and the pictures were up to the usual high standard of Grand film attractions.

NEW BILL AT GRAND.

The Three Harvey Girls in a singing, dancing and pianologue act, were the headliners, and their work justified their premiere position on the bill. There is an abundance of good things in their act, and the features were well put over.

George Fredo, the "Baron of Milwaukee," took the house by storm in a comedy monologue. Smiletta Brothers and Mora in a comedy bar act put over some new stuff in athletic divertisement and their comedy is good.

Stanfield, Hall and Loraine in a comedy playlet, "A Merry Mixup," present a sketch full of fun and clever situations. The whole act is entertaining and was warmly welcomed.

The Hearst-Selig News Pictorial shows many current events of international interest. Several film plays of worth were shown, and rounded out a good bill.

"The Governor's Ghost" or "Did the Woman Sin?" is the name of the photoplay that will be the star attraction at the Zelda theater today and tomorrow. This film drama takes up in four reels the misunderstandings of a husband and wife, in which the husband accuses his wife of infidelity. It is a domestic problem play with the eternal triangle conspicuous in the forefront.

AT THE ZELDA.

All next week beginning Monday the six-reel film drama, "The House of Bondage," will be shown. It is a white slave play, and children under 16 years will not be admitted.

Curious are the ways in which performers get on the vaudeville stage. They may even have an international reputation, and still not be wanted by the managers who control the great variety interests.

HOW SHE GOT ON "BIG TIME."

The dramatic soprano, Mme. Jeanne Jomelli, who is to be at the Orpheum next week, was in such a case when her European concert tour was canceled by reason of the great war. She did not want to be idle. It is so boresome to be idle! But she was told quite candidly that vaudeville audiences do not care for the high-brow, grand opera "stuff." "What people want is something light and entertaining and popular," she was given to understand.

"Never mind," she told the booking manager, "I will go sing in vaudeville. It costs you nothing. If the audience doesn't like me, that ends the matter. If people do like me and their applause shows that they do, you will know whether I will be useful. Then I shall expect you to pay what I am worth. Ever since then she has been touring the country in vaudeville and in every city receiving a big ovation.

In "Spanish Jade," coming to the Rex today and tomorrow, the elements of mystery, adventure and pathos have been cleverly woven into a story which is bound to hold. The characters are well drawn in every detail. This means first that the acting is brilliant and second that the spectator is able to understand the character almost the instant it appears on the screen. The Spanish grandees feeding on dry bread and an onion, spicing the frugal meal with recollections of past glory, the faithful servant and the unbridled youth scorning discipline are as true to life as though they had stepped out of Louis Joseph Vance's novel. The central figure of the story is, however, the heroine, Manuela, the Spanish peasant girl who is sold by her half-brute father, to a wandering musician to dance her way around Spain.

SPANISH JADE" AT THE REX.

Alice Stone Blackwell Indorses National's Suffrage Policy

Editor of the Woman's Journal Favors Policy of Securing Suffrage States Rather Than Concentrating Upon Congressional Work.

Suffrage circles, which have been agitated by the controversy between the National American Woman Suffrage association and the Congressional union regarding the proper method of securing a Federal amendment, were stirred this week by the announcement that Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, the veteran editor of the Woman's Journal, indorses the National's position. In a statement given out over her own signature, the pioneer suffrage leader declared that the National, in her judgment, has adopted the "wiser policy" in trying to secure more suffrage states rather than in concentrating time and money solely upon congressional work. This is virtually an indorsement, though one distinctly balanced in tone, of the position taken by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw and the congressional committee of the National, which is headed by Mrs. Medill McCormick of Chicago.

Miss Blackwell's statement is as follows:

"There are now two national suffrage organizations in the field, with two clearly defined policies. Both the National association and the Congressional union are working for the nation-wide suffrage amendment—the Anthony amendment, as it is often called—but the Congressional union advocates concentrating wholly upon that amendment, while the National association believes in trying also for the Shafroth amendment, as a flank movement, and holds that this will help the final success of the Anthony amendment. Both organizations are non-partisan, but in different senses of the word. The National association believes in opposing, irrespective of party, candidates who are individually opposed to equal suffrage. The Congressional union believes in opposing the party in power at Washington, whichever party that may be, unless it consents to submit the nation-wide suffrage amendment to the states, and it aims to bring pressure upon the dominant party by getting the women in the enfranchised state to vote against that party's congressional candidates until the party leaders withdraw their opposition to the passage of the nation-wide amendment through congress.

"Feeling over this question has grown acute. This is, perhaps, inevitable among women who think that the method used by the other side is in danger of fatally injuring the cause. The editor of the Woman's Journal believes that the policy of the National association is the wiser policy; but she is not much concerned over the controversy, because she holds that the movement has now got along so far that no mistakes of method on the part of any leader can kill or very seriously delay it. Moreover, she is profoundly convinced that, at this stage of the game, what happens in congress is a matter of minor consequence. The vitally important thing just now is to get more suffrage states. Those wishing to put in their money and work where it will do the most good just at present should put it into helping the campaign states—especially New Jersey, as New Jersey is to vote on the question first, and its success or failure will help or hurt all the other campaigns."

The statement is considered to be indirectly a reply to the members of the Congressional union who, like Mrs. William Kent of California, take a roseate view of the chances of getting a Federal amendment and assert that it can be accomplished within a year.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

Public Chivalry, Embarrassing.

A man who for any reason whatsoever attracts undue attention to himself or to women with whom he is in company in public, seldom fails to raise any antagonism, no matter what the cause. It always seems to me that any noticing anything intending to offend him or those with whom he is, a bad matter is made worse instead of better. I think usually that a real man who allows himself time for a second thought, arrives at this conclusion himself.

It is wiser and safer to ignore all that one can which is unpleasant and still maintain self-respect and decency. It is better to inconvenience oneself and one's party and retire from a scene that promises to be disagreeable and embarrassing. It takes great self-control to do this, but it pays.

I suppose there are cases where the insult to a woman has been so flagrant that her escort has only the one initiative—that of thrashing the offender—at his command. But if he has any sense of decency he bides his time and pilots his charge to her home or to some place of safety far removed from the point of disturbance before administering what is well deserved.

I can conceive of nothing more deeply annoying to a woman than to have the man acting as her escort enter into an altercation with the person who has given offense, while she stands nearby, an unwilling hearer of talk not fit for her to hear. Not only does it draw undesirable attention but advertises the fact that she has been at least bothered by a stranger, if not insulted, and this is something that no womanly woman takes any comfort in. She would probably rather that the man guilty should go unreproved.

"I recently witnessed an instance of just this thing. A man who was leaving a restaurant, accompanied by a woman companion, stopped at a table where two young men were seated and began to talk in a loud and excited tone about insulting ladies in his care. This drew attention to himself, the young men and, more than all, to his companion, who was the most surprised and embarrassed woman you can imagine.

If any offense had been given this man and the woman with him, it had not been noticed by anyone in the same room, and it would have denoted true manliness and true breeding if he had let it pass until he could have settled it privately and not in the presence of ladies. As it was, his conduct reflected upon the woman with him and placed them in a most embarrassing and unenviable light.

It Will Be Very Wise For You to Attend Our Double Action Gas Range Demonstration

And let us show you how to reduce your gas bills.

Mary had a new gas range
Its name was Double Action,
And every time that Mary baked
It gave her satisfaction.

Mary's mother came one day
And found her daughter cooking,
She saw the oven flame and bread,
By through the glass door looking.

"That's very fine," her mother said;
Mary replied, "Look, dear mother,
This oven requires but half the gas
Compared with any other."

Mary's mother lingered round,
The range was all attraction,
And she decided there and then,
To buy a Double Action.

We are baking fine toothsome pastries on a Double Action Gas Range like Mary's.

Boys Ride to Duluth on Rods; Cared for By Police.

"A life on the ocean wave,
A home on the rolling deep,
Where the scattered waters rave
And the winds their revels keep."
—Sargent.

Lake Superior isn't exactly the ocean, but the effect is very similar when the wind blows hard enough, is the belief of Chester Smith, 17, and Clarence Lawrence, 16, who "rode the rods" into Duluth this morning to get a job on one of the lake boats.

When their private car, with its load of lumber, rolled into the yards, Sergeant John Roberg and Officer Connors took the two boys to headquarters, and they will go back to St. Paul in due time.

Lawrence is on probation from the Red Wing school, according to police, and probably will be returned to the institution. He gave his home address as 90 East Twelfth street, St. Paul, and his mother's name as Mrs. Ada Lawrence.

Smith has made his home with his stepfather, Enoch Olson, 275 West Seventh street, also St. Paul.

Both youths were "broke," but confident of getting work.

JITNEY DRIVER HELD.

John Shosie Arrested; Pedestrian Seriously Injured.

Charged with reckless driving, John Shosie, 29, 3712 West Fourth street, a jitney operator, was arraigned in municipal court this morning. He pleaded not guilty and will be given a hearing May 7.

Shosie's car struck Matt Manula, a transient living at 526 West Superior street, as he was crossing Superior street at Twentieth avenue west Wednesday night. Manula was seriously injured and is confined to his room, the warrant being sworn to by O. W. Haglund, who was with Manula at the time of the accident.

LANDLORD DOUBLY TOUCHED.

Takes in Lumberjack; Finds Blanket Missing.

When a transient lumberjack told him a story of hardships, which included sleeping on the bare ground behind billboards or in box cars, for several days, Matt Korsmo, 29, clerk at a West Superior street rooming house, was touched last night and gave the destitute one a blanket.

Korsmo was arrested this morning on a warrant sworn to by the owner of the hotel and charged with petit larceny. The lumberjack was routed out of his suite at the Hotel de Gink, in the "Jungle" and brought to headquarters as a "vag."

The blanket went to the laundry.

Prisoner Gets Sixty Days for Stealing From Free Spender.

Because he was ungrateful and tried to steal $5 from William M. Gonyea, who had been "buying" all afternoon, William C. Prince, 32, will serve sixty days at the workfarm. It was one of the stiffest sentences for a petty larceny case of this kind ever imposed by Judge F. H. Cutting.

Prince and Gonyea "made the rounds" Wednesday afternoon and finally Prince picked up the change from a $10 bill which Gonyea had deposited on the bar in payment of a 50-cent round of drinks.

Officer Callahan arrested Prince on a charge of petty larceny and Gonyea for drunkenness. Prince denied stealing the money, but a $5 bill was found in his shoe.

Both were given a hearing yesterday afternoon and Gonyea was released.

HAD NOTHING TO LIVE FOR

Note Found in Bottle on Lake Shore Tells of Tragedy.

"Marion Connelly" Writes Father She Was About to Drown Herself.

"My husband has deserted me, and I have nothing left to live for. I am going to drown myself off Park Point."

These words, penciled on a page torn from a memorandum book, were found in a bottle picked up on the lake side of Minnesota point this morning by Capt. James Pryor of the U. S. light-house service bureau.

Written in a plain, feminine hand, which marked the author as a woman of education, the note was signed "Marion Connelly" and addressed to Col. William Harris, 2741 South Clark street, Chicago, Ill."

The note also stated that "Col. Harris" was the father of the writer and conveyed a request that he be notified.

Police believe the note to be genuine and state that it does not bear the earmarks of being the work of a "practical joker." Capt. A. M. McLennan of the U. S. life-saving station, on Minnesota point, has been instructed to watch for any further clew as to the identity of the writer of the note.

They will communicate with Chicago police in an attempt to locate the man named as the father of "Marion Connelly" and hope to solve the mystery in that way.

Capt. Pryor found the bottle about 8 o'clock this morning as he was making his rounds. It had been tossed up on the beach by the waves and evidently had been in the water some time.

CLOQUET PUPILS ARE PLANTING MANY TREES

Cloquet, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The pupils of the city schools have planted over 1,000 apple trees in the yards of the city and the surrounding country. These trees were purchased by the pupils themselves, the cost being 6 cents each. The trees were three or four feet tall and all of hardy varieties suitable for this section.

Board Cannot Decide.
Grand Forks, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—With bids under consideration during the past four years for the construction of a new high school building—the tenders running from $171,000 to $200,000—the board of education is still undecided as to its action.

HAS SOME DECIDED IDEAS ABOUT HONESTY

WALTER WILLIAM JOHNSON.

Walter William Johnson, age 7 years, son of Martin Johnson, captain of the salvage corps of the local fire department and well known in sporting circles of the city, has some decided views of his own as to honesty. He recently found $15 in bills on the street and next day, noticing an ad in The Herald's lost and found column, returned the money and then refused to take a reward.

Walter found the money Wednesday and slipping it in his pocket he decided he would wait until he saw an "ad" in the paper for it. When it appeared he immediately sought the owner. The owner happened to be a young woman, employed by a local business firm, who had been given the money by her mother to buy clothes. When Walter tendered the money to the girl she offered him a substantial part of it for its return.

"No, I don't want any reward for returning the money," he said. "I am not entitled to it. None of the money belongs to me, so I don't want any of it."

The lad lives with his father at 516 West Fifth street.

SAFETY ZONES FOR SCHOOLS

Commissioner Silberstein Shown Danger to Children From Autos.

Will Work Out Some Plan to Protect Them.

Safety zones for school districts will be established by Commissioner Silberstein at the suggestion of Principal Mooney of the Franklin school.

While on a visit to the Franklin school this morning Mr. Silberstein was shown how the children are in danger from the heavy automobile traffic in the front of the building and at Mr. Mooney's suggestion the former will endeavor to work out a safety zone plan for school districts.

Principal's Mooney's plan is to place large signs at each corner along the streets passing the schoolhouse, warning automobiles to drive slowly and to be careful of accidents to the children playing in the streets. Such a move, he explained, is absolutely necessary wherever there is considerable automobile traffic passing a schoolhouse.

As a result Mr. Silberstein will work out some plan and warning signs will be placed near all the schoolhouses in the city.

While at the Franklin school this morning the children went through a fire drill, emptying the entire building in 1 minute and 30 seconds.

HOSPITALS INSPECTED

Commissioner "Takes a Chance" With Smallpox and Scarlet Fever.

For the first time in many years, according to those in charge of the institution, a public official visited the contagious and isolation hospitals this morning.

Commissioner Silberstein, head of the public safety division, braving the dangers of smallpox, diphtheria and scarlet fever, made an inspection trip this morning under the direction of Health Director Fahey. As a result of the visit to the institution, Commissioner Silberstein has ordered the grounds about both buildings improved and parked and numerous changes made in the interiors.

The trip was made in Chief Randall's automobile and the inspection party included Commissioner Silberstein, Dr. Fahey, Park Manager Cleveland and a Herald representative. On arriving at the contagious hospital at Thirteenth avenue west and Third street, Chief Randall and Mr. Cleveland "backed out" and refused to go in the building.

However, Mr. Silberstein, Dr. Fahey and The Herald representative inspected the structure. They were shown about the various wards by Dr. J. R. Manley, assistant health director, and Misses Helen O'Connell and Madeline Cheadle, nurses in charge. There are forty-five patients in the hospital, most of them being children, while several are mere infants. Four were released this morning to make room for as many more who were brought from the western end of the city. It is estimated that there are about twenty cases outside the hospital waiting for vacancies.

Arrangements were made by Mr. Silberstein and Mr. Cleveland to complete the roadway around the hospital building and to seed the grounds. In addition several flower beds will be planted to make the exterior more attractive.

From the contagious hospital the party went to the isolation hospital adjoining the county poor farm. After an inspection of the building, Mr. Silberstein decided to make several improvements. He will also endeavor to secure an extension of the electric wires from the poor farm to the hospital, so that Neil McDougall, who is in charge, will have better lighting facilities.

GOVERNOR STANDS BY HIS LETTER

Whitman Declares It Expresses His Sentiments Then and Now.

Albany, N. Y., April 30.—Governor Whitman today declared that the letter written by him and introduced at the Roosevelt-Barnes libel trial was given out by him last July. "That letter expressed my sentiments then," he said, "and I would write the same now."

While the governor declined to discuss the possibility of his going to Syracuse it was declared by an authoritative source that he had received neither a subpoena or a telegram from Mr. Ivins or anyone else asking him to testify.

By law the governor does not have to respond to a subpoena.

AIRMEN ATTACK AMERICAN SHIP

German Aviators Drop Two Bombs on Cushing But Do No Damage.

London, April 30.—The Reuter Telegram company has received a dispatch from its correspondent at Rotterdam saying the American steamer Cushing from Philadelphia arrived at Rotterdam today and reports having been attacked by German airmen in the North sea last Wednesday.

The airmen dropped two bombs but no damage was done.

The Cushing was flying the American flag at the time of this attack and her name was displayed on her sides in huge letters.

The steamer Cushing left Philadelphia April 11 for Rotterdam via Deal. She is of 4,320 tons net register and is 427 feet long.

TROYER RESIGNS AS HEAD OF POLICE DEPARTMENT

Retires on Pension and Will Become Chief at Fargo.

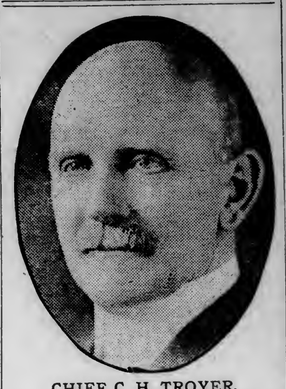

Action Will End Heated Controversy Over His Reappointment.

Chief Chauncey H. Troyer, head of the Duluth police department since Jan. 1, 1902, was retired by the pension board this afternoon on a monthly pension of $75, and he has accepted the offer of a similar position at Fargo, N. D. He plans to assume the duties of chief of the police department in the North Dakota city on May 15.

Several days ago Chief Troyer applied to the pension board for a pension and early this afternoon the members held a meeting to consider the application, which was made under the new police pension law passed by the last legislature. The chief retires after twenty-four years' service and he will receive a pension of $75 a month until his death and a pro rata share to his widow and children after his death.

Chief Troyer will retire from active service on May 14 and the following day he will take charge of the Fargo police department, he announced this afternoon.

Chief Troyer was appointed patrolman on April 7, 1891 and he has been a member of the department ever since. He later served as a detective and on

CHIEF C. H. TROYER.

Jan. 1, 1902 was appointed chief of police by Mayor Hugo. He has held that office under all the mayors since that time, having established a remarkable record during these years.

The chief said this afternoon that he has received no announcement as to his successor. He plans to move his family to Fargo sometime this coming summer.

The members of the pension board are: Commissioner Silberstein, Chief Troyer and City Treasurer McLean, ex-officio, and Detectives Terry and Irvine, Sergeant Butchart and Bertillon Superintendent Lahti, who is secretary.

Chief Troyer's successor is still a matter of doubt, but it is rumored that Detective Frank Schulte is slated for the place.

Would Release Fiance From Military Prison

EMMY DESTINN.

Emmy Destinn has sailed for Italy, whence she expects to go to Austria to try to release from captivity her fiance, Dinh Gilly. She has been one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan opera for several years. Gilly was one of the baritones. He was made prisoner at Prague when the war began and as he refused to promise not to take arms against Austria, he was not released to join the opera company. Mme. Destinn is not to return to the opera but she will be here for a concert tour probably next winter. She has taken out papers to become an American citizen.

KAUFF INCIDENT RENDS LEAGUE

Tener Assures Brooklyn Federals That Player Is Barred.

New York, April 30.—President John K. Tener of the National league officially notified Robert B. Ward, president of the Brooklyn Federal league club, shortly before noon today that Kauff would not be permitted to play in the National league at this time. His telegram to Mr. Ward was as follows:

"Answering your wire of yesterday relative to the Kauff incident, you are apprised that the player in question will not be permitted to play in the National league at this time.

"JOHN K. TENER,
"President National League."

Secretary John A. Heydler, speaking for President John K. Tener of the National league, said that the executive of the senior baseball organization had ruled that yesterday's game between the New York and Boston clubs, won by Boston, 13 to 8, was a contest regularly scheduled and played and would be counted in the league records and standing as a victory for the Boston club.

Secretary John P. Foster of the New York club, in discussing this point, said that when such a decision was officially received by the New York club the game would be protested and the matter brought to the attention of the board of directors of the National league.

Regarding the playing status of Kauff, Mr. Foster said it was the contention of the New York club that Kauff was the property of the Giants as a result of the agreement entered into between the New York club and the Indianapolis club of the American association last September.

"If it is proved, however, that the Brooklyn Federals have a prior or binding contract with Kauff," said Foster, "then we will withdraw all claim to his services. The New York club does not desire to cause the violation of any legal baseball contract. Kauff assured us that he was not under contract with the Brooklyn Federal league club and was free to sign with the Giants."

According to Secretary Heydler the first step toward fixing Kauff's status in organized baseball was made yesterday when the player personally wired to the headquarters of the National commission requesting that he be restored to good standing by that body. The formal and written application for Kauff's reinstatement is being prepared at National league headquarters today and will be mailed to the national commission, probably tonight.

President Gilmore of the Federal league notified the executives of the eight Federal league clubs to come here tomorrow to confer with the league attorneys regarding what action should be taken to protect the rights of the Brooklyn club and the Federal league in general in the Kauff case.

It is understood from sources outside the Federal league that the independent baseball organization is determined to make a strong fight in the case of Kauff and settle the status of this player and others who have signed contracts with first one league and then another.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 30.—Benny Kauff's official standing, in so far as organized baseball is concerned, will not be passed upon today, according to the statement of August Herrmann, chairman of the national baseball commission.

Chicago, April 30.—No reprisals will follow Bennie Kauff's attempt to jump to the New York Nationals, but the Federal league will ask the courts to protect its interest and those of the Brooklyn club, according to President Gilmore, who left today for New York, where he expects to meet magnates of his organization in a session called to talk over the latest developments in the baseball war.

"We have never tampered with a player under valid contract with a club of organized baseball, and we don't propose to do so now, in spite of the action of the New York club," he said. "I believe the National league will decline to support the New York club. We will invoke the law to protect us if there is any further attempt to take Kauff away."

It is generally reported here that peace terms between the organized baseball and the Federals were to have been considered at the gathering of the latter's leaders in New York tomorrow. Originally the meeting was to have been in French Lick, Ind., it is said, but the Kauff developments changed this plan, though a session may be held in the Indiana resort.

Madison, Wis., April 30.—The assembly today engrossed the Hambrecht bill throwing open the entire civil service eligible list to appointment instead of limiting it to the third highest as under the present law.

The assembly adjourned until tonight and the senate until Monday night.

TRIED TO SURRENDER; QUICKLY SHOT DOWN

Germans With White Flags Killed By Own Quick Firers.

Havre, April 30.—The virtual annihilation of 4,000 Germans who crossed the Yperlee over a bridge near Steenstraate is described by the newspaper Vingtieme Siecle. Belgian heavy artillery destroyed this bridge, while field artillery showered them with shrapnel. Many tied handkerchiefs to their bayonets and raised them in sign of surrender, but immediately their own quick-firers, the newspaper says, opened fire and mowed them down pitilessly. Many survivors were made prisoners by the Belgians.

HOW WOLVES ARE TRAPPED.

Wolves, writes H. Mortimer Batten in the Wide World, are the most difficult of all animals to trap, and it is usually by working upon their uncontrollable curiosity that they are most easily deceived. The "camp-fire set" is one of the best. When a man makes camp in the forest, the wolves, if there are any near, are sure to note his whereabouts. When he has gone, they trot up to investigate the ground, and with due caution pick up any scraps he may have left lying about. The "camp-fire set" is made as follows: First hollow out an oblong hole in the ground just large enough to take the trap, and perhaps five inches deep. Cover the trap with a sheet of brown paper, and over this fill the hole with damp earth. Then light a fire on the top of it, and into the fire, as it burns low, throw a few scraps of raw meat.

Should a wolf came along to investigate the place, he is sure to scent the cooked meat, and will start scratching in the ashes for it, thus, of course, springing the trap.

One of the greatest difficulties in wolf-trapping is to hide the aforesaid tell-tale scents, so keen is their sense if smell. The traps must never be handled with the naked fingers. Old gloves, soaked in oil or fat, are used, and it is best to smoke the trap over a "smudge" fire before setting it, and then enclose it in a paper bag.

The old wolvers often used to proceed as follows: They would start out on their round dragging a piece of carrion behind their horse or cart by means of a long rope, thus leaving a trail, upon which they set their traps at regular intervals. At night time the wolves took the trail up, and whichever way they followed it, they were sure to encounter one or more traps.

Wolves are more easily done away with by the use of strychnine than they are by trapping. A trail of baits is land, the central bait containing poison. Into this bait is stuck a black feather to warn passers-by to keep their dogs out of the danger zone, and incidentally to attract the notice of the wolf. Having picked up several of the baits, he has now lost suspicion, and gulps down his dose of poison, which kills him almost instantly.

The wolf-trap is never fastened to a permanent fixture, such as a tree or stake, as the captured animal is then able to pull, and ten to one will escape. It is fastened, instead, to a log or drag that the animal can pull along with him, and that hampers his progress, though it does not prevent it. A wolf has been known to drag a heavy log, with the trap attached, for three months, during which period he traveled a distance of over 200 miles!

BEMIDJI MEN LOSE MONEY

Municipality Cannot Refund Unearned Portion of Liquor Licenses.

Law Does Not Apply to Towns in Indian Treaty District.

Bemidji, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Bemidji saloonkeepers are not to have the unearned portions of their liquor licenses returned. Bills for $490 from E. K. Anderson and $142.27 from Thomas McCarthy were laid on the table at the last council meeting.

P. J. Russell, city attorney, explained that the city had no authority to pay back the money as the law covering the return of unearned license money to saloonkeepers in towns that vote dry does not cover in the instance of the Indian treaty of 1855, under the provisions of which the saloons here were closed. Attorney Russell wrote to Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith and Mr. Smith agreed with Mr. Russell that the money could not legally be returned.

Can't Legally Refund.

"It is not a matter of right or wrong," said Mr. Russell to the council, "in my own mind I think that the money rightfully should be returned to whom, but we cannot do so legally and the only way I can see out of the difficulty is that they take the matter to court and make a test case out of it. I spent some time in trying to pass a bill through the Minnesota legislature this winter that would permit the return of unearned license money to the saloonkeepers in Bemidji, and although it got through the house all right, through some misunderstanding of Mr. Nord, it was delayed until the last day in the senate and met its death with about 1,000 other bills."

BRAINERD PLANT HAS SAVED COIN

President of Water and Light Board Makes Report.

Brainerd, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reviewing operations of the water and light board, M. T. Dunn, the president, states that in six years citizens have been saved in hydrant rentals and water rates $29,000, while enough line repairs have been made to reduce the line loss from 38 to 21 per cent. In the waterworks plant a new pump was installed. The hypochloride plant has proved efficient, the last reports of the state board of health on the water being especially gratifying. Tests are now being conducted at Spring bay for a better water supply. When a new water supply is ready for distribution, Mr. Dunn recommended that an eighteen-inch feeder be laid to the business section.

The board ordered paid the balance of the electric bonds, $30,000, and $1,000 interest, thus clearing up all indebtedness in this department. All money left in the water and light fund after the bonds are paid is to be appropriated for a new water supply.

WHEAT SEEDING IS ALMOST COMPLETED

Outside Red River Valley, North Dakota Grain Is Well in.

Fargo, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ninety per cent of the wheat of the state, outside the Red River valley, is in the ground. As a result of the four days' rain within the last week seeding was delayed in the valley, especially by the heavy lying lands, and the farmers are just resuming their work. It will require at least a week of favorable weather to complete the wheat seeding in some counties.

Farmers in the state west of the valley not only have the wheat seeded, but the majority have their oats seeded and are now putting in barley, though the bulk of that crop is being seeded on spring plowing and yet remains to be put in.

Most Opportune Rain.

Farmers are generally agreed that no rain ever hit North Dakota more opportunely than that of a week ago. In about half the state the precipitation reached a total of an inch and a half and it was about an inch elsewhere. There were some counties that had no rain since last fall and the moisture was greatly needed.

LOG DRIVERS NOW NEED MORE RAIN

Floodwood Drive Will Be Delayed Unless River Is Raised Considerably.

Floodwood, Minn., April 30.—(Special to the Herald.)—The Coolidge-Schussler company has started its log drive on the Upper Floodwood river. The stage of water in the river is very low, and unless rains come soon, it will take a long time to bring the drive to this village, where it is sorted out in the local yards, loaded on cars and shipped in many directions. This gives employment to good many people. Last year nearly 100 men were working up to July 15. This year's drive is a good deal smaller, and consists principally of ties and pulpwood. A. R. Walker has charge of the drive.

As a result of warm weather the lawn grass in many parts of the village is quite high. Dr. Triplett has been mowing his large lawn. The pastures are rapidly turning green and the stock has already plenty to eat. The indications are that there will be a larger acreage soon to small grain than ever before. W. A. Baune alone expects to put in something like 120 acres to oats, wheat and barley. He has over 250 acres under plow. The balance will go into clover and timothy, root crops and potatoes. Last fall he cleared over forty acres, which has been sown to tame grass.

New Settler Arrives.

Albert Pollack of Donnelly, Minn., who bought 160 acres about three miles east of Floodwood about a year ago, brought his family this week, and is now busy gathering material to put up a substantial house and other buildings on his land. He has a large family, wife and six children, mostly boys, who will be of considerable help to him, to clear the land. At present they live in town.

County School Supt. Young and Assistant Supt. Schulz visited schools at Gowan, Lindstrom, Moore and Floodwood, and they expressed being pleased with the work. While here the superintendent explained to the local school board the law passed by the recent legislature affecting consolidated and rural schools. At the present time six wagons are used to transport the children to the schools in this district.

STAPLES ODD FELLOWS HAVE MILITARY BALL

Staples, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A military ball was given in the Batcher opera house on Wednesday evening by the Knights of Militant, I. O. O. F., of this city and the Canton Presto, No. 16. About 500 people were present at the ball and to witness the conferring of the Decoration of Chivalry upon Mrs. Walter Wright of this city.

Mrs. Wright with four woman assistants was escorted in and took the obligation. The honor of the order was pinned on her by little Lela Pride, and she was presented with a bouquet of carnations by the chevaliers. Then followed a drill of the chevaliers of States in uniform, there being seventeen present.

MINOT COMMISSION ROW.

Differences Said to Have Arisen Over Cutting Salaries.

Minot, N. D., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city commission is again divided because of differences between John J. Lee, a newly elected member, and the other four members. Lee has just launched a campaign of municipal retrenchment that failed of favorable consideration at the hands of his fellow members—and the fight is on. Lee wanted to reduce city officers' salaries.

The trouble began, it is said, when the commission refused to make Lee commissioner of police, making him commissioner of streets instead.

The commission appointed city officials as follows: City treasurer, A. J. Brunner; auditor, A. D. Hagenstein; city attorney, B. Bradford; city health official, Dr. J. R. Pence; chief of fire department, William O'Leary; city engineer, E. J. Thomas; street commissioner, John Strommen; chief of police, Dan Dougherty; superintendent of waterworks, O. Tom Perkovich, Cortese's partner, also was caught beneath the rock, but suffered only minor injuries, which are receiving attention at the C. & H. hospital.

MUD LAKE LANDS TO BE OPENED SHORTLY

Crookston, Minn., April 30.—Congressman H. Steenerson was notified by the department of the interior that the so-called Mud lake lands in the Crookston land office district, would be thrown open to entry either in June or July, the exact date not being fixed.

The opening of this land recalls the sensational rush that was experienced last June when settlers in the vicinity of the lands in question became possessed of the idea that the lands were to be opened immediately. Squatter settlers immediately established themselves, only to find themselves sorely mistaken.

The whole movement probably will be repeated this year, as the lands in question are quite valuable. They are in a district that has been drained in recent years and thus made valuable for agricultural purposes.

This act was passed by the last legislature to bring within the scope of the law the traveling salesman employed by liquor firms.

CALIFORNIA RIVAL OF RADIUM BANISHES PAINFUL RHEUMATISM

St. Paul Molder Also Says Akoz Ended Bad Case of Stomach Trouble.

Frederick Behm of 724 East Seventh street, St. Paul, who is a molder with the Norton Malleable Iron company, has joined the rapidly increasing ranks of Akoz boosters. He says the new California medicinal mineral rival of radium cured him of muscular rheumatism and stomach trouble of 12 years' standing. These are his words:

"For 12 years I suffered with muscular rheumatism and stomach trouble at intervals. I had much pain in my shoulders, arms and back as a result of my rheumatism. I also had gas and sour stomach and at times I could not sleep. My appetite was also very poor.

"I tried various remedies but nothing helped me until I tried Akoz. In a short time all the rheumatic pains left me, I slept better than I had in years and I relished my food. My stomach was also relieved of the distressing gas and sourness. Akoz is surely a fine tonic. I have gained six pounds and am still gaining. I shall be glad to recommend Akoz to others."

Such are the words of praise spoken by hosts of those who have used Akoz for rheumatism, stomach, kidney, bladder and liver trouble, diabetes, Bright's, eczema, catarrh, piles, constipation and other ailments. Akoz is a natural mineral and not a patent medicine or mixed with harmful drugs.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Boston Won Anyway.

New York, April 30.—Boston defeated New York 13 to 8 here today in a game that was started after an unusual complication had arisen over New York's attempt to play Benny Kauff, who jumped to the Giants from the Brooklyn Federals just before play was called. Umpire Quigley at first declared the game forfeited to New York when Boston refused to play with Kauff in New York's lineup. Meanwhile Umpire Eason had been in communication with President Tener of the National league, and, according to a statement by Secretary Heydler of the National league, reported that he had received instructions to forfeit the game to Boston if New York persisted in playing Kauff, whom President Tener had declared ineligible. The clubs then took the field after McGraw had called attention to the fact that Quigley had variously declared the game forfeited to New York. Kauff was not in the lineup when actual play began. Under President Tener's ruling as reported by Secretary Heydler the game stands as played, a victory for Boston. The game was a see-saw affair, featured by long hits. Magee made two triples and a double, Murray hit a home run, triple and single and scored four runs. Cather also scored four runs, hitting a home run and two singles. In the fifth inning Gowdy hit a homer with the bases full. Score:

Speaker was responsible for an unusual play in the second when, having caught a fly off McHale's bat, he purposely dropped the ball, threw to second, forcing Nunamaker out, and Wagner relayed the ball to Hoblitzell, catching McHale, who had not run out his hit. Score:

Coach Glyer has had a good squad out, and several more men are expected out in the next few days. The men have been brushing off the rough spots under the careful leadership of the coach, and have had the advantage of unusual weather for some time.

With prospects of a squad being sent down to the state meet at Minneapolis May 29, the boys are especially enthusiastic and are training hard. While the form shown to date is a little rough, the men are expected to improve rapidly. Capt. Hrutiford has practically recovered from the injury sustained to his knee, and is leading the squad. It is expected that Hrutiford will make a name for himself in track work this season. Coach Glyer is spending considerable time in drilling Hrutiford on the fine points.

To date more time has been spent on the dashes and hurdles. Coach Glyer is taking enough time with the rudiments of expert work and the fine points of the various events. Considerable attention was paid to hurdles yesterday, while others of the squad took some long runs.

The students of the school appear more interested in track work this year than for several seasons past. A collection will be taken up among the students if the team decides to go to the state meet. The interclass meet will be held May 14, the Denfeld meet May 21, the state meet May 29 and the annual Superior meet June 5.

TRACK MEET FOR THE KIDS

Sunday School League Will Hold Contest at Y. M. C. A. Gym.

More Than 150 Boys Are Expected to Compete in Contest.

The annual indoor track and field meet of the Sunday School Athletic league of Duluth will be held this evening in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. It is expected that 150 kid contestants of the various schools will be entered in the events.

Boys have already entered from the First Presbyterian church, the First Methodist, the Baptist, St. Paul's and a number of the other churches of the city. J. R. Batchelor, who has charge of the program, stated that the meet will be the largest ever held in the city, excelling the one of last year, in which 120 of the junior athletes of the various Sunday schools of Duluth were entered.

There is no age limit to the various events. The weight of the contestants govern the entries.

Those identified with the Sunday School league have labored long and faithfully to make a success of the meet. Each year has witnessed a growth in the number of participants and interest in the meetings. The first event on the program is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Following is the list of events:

Midget, under 90 pounds—Potato race, standing broad jump, 2-lap relay race, 4 men.

Lightweight, 90 and under 105 pounds — 15-yard dash, high jump, broad jump, 4-lap relay race.

Middleweight, 105 and under 120 pounds—15-yard dash, high jump, three standing broad jumps, ⅛-mile run, 6-lap relay race.

Welterweight, 120 and under 150 pound—8-pound shot put, 20-yard dash, high jump, three standing broad jumps, 15-yard dash, 12-lap relay race.

Heavyweight, 150 pounds and over—⅛-mile run, shot put, high jump, 20-yard dash, hop, step and jump, 14-lap relay race.

BURMAN WINS RACE IN SOUTHWEST

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 30.—Bob Burman, driving a French car, won the $5,000 sweepstakes automobile race run over the Oklahoma city course yesterday after a spectacular race for thirty laps with Dave Lewis, who finished second. John Raimey and Eddie Hearne finished third and fourth. Burman averaged 67.8 miles an hour for the entire 200 miles, his time for the distance being 2:56 3-5.

Lewis came in 1 minute 3-5 seconds later. Raimey was two laps and Hearne three behind the two leaders at the finish.

The car of A. F. Scott ran into a tree during the first lap, and proceeded no further. This was the only accident.

MERKLE OUT OF GAME.

New York, April 30.—Fred Merkle, first baseman of the New York National league club, fell in trying to field a wild throw by Marquard in the sixth inning of yesterday's game and dislocated his left arm. It was at first thought the arm was broken. The injury, however, is likely to keep him out of the game for several weeks.

James Thorpe, the Olympic champion, was released by the Giants yesterday to the Jersey City International league club under an optional agreement. He has been with the Giants two seasons.

Jackson, Mich., April 30.—Charles Conway, leftfielder of the Bay City Southern Michigan league team, ran into a steel fence support while chasing a fly ball in yesterday's game and received injuries which probably will keep him in the hospital for some time. A bolt on the support tore a hole in his groin and his face was badly cut.

JIM COFFEY IS IN LINE FOR MATCH WITH WILLARD

Big Bushman Is Being Groomed for Crack at the Title.

Saylor to Get Another Chance at Welsh—Mandot May Come.

BY BRUCE.

Down East there is talk of a meeting between Jess Willard and Jim Coffey. Jim Coffey is the latest sensation among the heavyweights. This Coffey person is as Irish as Paddy's pig. He came direct from the auld sod, right from the vicinity of Dublin, and has as great a following among the Irish of this country as Peter Maher had in the bright days and nights of his prime.

Billy Gibson, who promoted the big contests at Madison Square Garden for a couple of seasons, has Coffey under his wing. According to a letter received here today Gibson is already negotiating with the New York state boxing commissioners with the hope of securing a permit to hold bouts in the open air. The ultimate idea is to hold a contest between Jess Willard and the big Irishman in the Polo grounds.

Mike Fitzmorris of Duluth, a well known boxer and steeple chase rider in his day, was brought up in the same town as Coffey. The Duluthian is of the opinion that Coffey is one of the greatest heavyweights of modern time and that in the event of his being well handled and brought along during the next six months, believes big Jim will stand an excellent chance against the gigantic Willard.

Mandot Coming Again.

According to a statement made yesterday, Joe Mandot will make another appearance across the bay during the coming month. It is said the little Frenchman is carded to meet some lightweight at the Grand. Just who the opponent of Mandot will be apparently has not been decided upon as yet.

Saylor and Freddy Welsh.

This column is in receipt of a communication from Ray Bronson, claimant of the welterweight title, and also the industrious manager of Milburn Saylor and Chick Hayes.

According to the announcement of Bronson, Saylor is to have another chance at Welsh. Something like a year ago Welsh and the Indianapolis lightweight met in Winnipeg. Welsh was awarded the battle on an alleged foul, after being helpless on the floor of the ring. There are those who declare to this day that Saylor scored a clean knockout.

this time," writes Bronson, "as he believes Welsh is made for him."

That is a highly optimistic frame of mind to be in and all of that, but you will have to show us where any of the present brand of lightweights are going to do much to Freddy Welsh in the ten-round route.

Welsh is one of the greatest boxers of his time. Gans would have beaten him, we believe, though possibly not in ten rounds. The leading citizen of Pontypridd stands glowingly forth with Mike Gibbons and Packey McFarland when it comes to the speed and scientific stuff.

Gibbons and Jack Dillon

Again there come rumors of a prospective meeting between Mike Gibbons and Jack Dillon, the slugging middleweight of Indianapolis. The application of the word middleweight is used advisedly. There seems to be considerable doubt as to the ability of Dillon to make 158 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

We, for one, don't think the Indianapolis slugger would be able to do anything to Gibbons in ten rounds. You have to see this Gibbons to have any conception of his marvelous ability with the gloves. Dillon is one of the best hitters among our modern boxers; but, you know, you have to hit 'em before you hurt 'em, and landing fair on any portion of the anatomy of Mike Gibbons is a very difficult feat of accomplishment.

For confirmation of this statement we respectfully refer any doubter to Messrs. McGoorty, Clabby, McCoy, Knockout Brown or a score of other glove wielders.

Wins Qualifying Round.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 30.—Max R. Marston, the former interscholastic title holder and champion of the Baltusrol links won the qualifying round of the spring golf tournament at the Atlantic City Country club yesterday with a card of 155 for the 36 holes. Nearly 160 players, including golfers from Canada and many sections of this country, teed off for the opening rounds. Maurice Risley of the home club finished in second place with a score of 156.

COURT TURNS DOWN PULFORD

Injunction Dissolved and Winnipeg Baseball Fetters Are Removed.

Former Magnate Will Have Chance for Damages Only.

Winnipeg, Man., April 30.—The Northern league baseball season will open in Winnipeg and St. Boniface next Thursday as scheduled. Yesterday the court of appeals gave judgment in the baseball case which has been before it for two days. The injunction has been dissolved and the bond given set aside. The judgment is that the action shall come for trial by Tuesday, June 1.

Judgment by Chief Justice Howell was as follows:

"It seems to me the entire case turns upon the contents of Exhibit 1, together with the meeting that was held on Dec. 7, 1914. This Exhibit 1 may and probably would be construed in the light of its surroundings, and particularly in the light of the transactions at the meeting when this constitution was adopted. One man swears that it was not to be the year 1914. The minutes seem to indicate that it was for that year. How the fact will be established in the court it is impossible for me to say. Apparently the partnership of 1913 was dissolved, if I read correctly the allegation in the statement of claim, and a new partnership apparently was formed for 1914.

May Recover Damages.

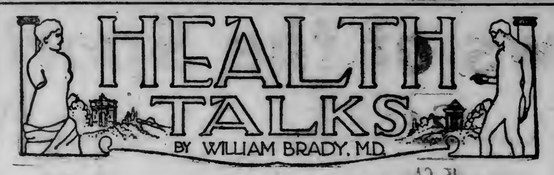

"I desire particularly to express no opinion as to the construction that is to be put upon Exhibit 1, because evidence at the trial might greatly vary its meaning. The plaintiff alleges that he has a property right which this partnership has acquired. He claims that he has a property right which that partnership is now using and he is deprived of the benefit of it. He claims also that he is still a member of that partnership. If he is, then he will be entitled to any profits that are made by the defendants."

The injunction in question was asked for by A. H. Pulford and his associates on the ground that the Winnipeg baseball franchise, which they held, gave them territorial rights. The Northern league, they claimed, had transferred their franchise illegally and they asked an injunction to restrain the new franchise owners from playing in Winnipeg. Justice Curran granted a temporary injunction pending the trial of the case, but agreed to waive it for the time being if the new owners would put up a bond of $20,000 to guarantee any damages which might be awarded.

The Webb people agreed to this, but appealed and the court of appeals quashed the injunction and ordered the case to be tried as though it had never been through the lower court.

Gets Promising Pitcher.

Detroit, Mich., April 30.—Manager Rickey of the St. Louis Americans announced yesterday that Ernest Koob, the promising young pitcher of the Kalamazoo normal team, will report to the Browns on June 15. Koob is a southpaw.

The Transverse Arch and Its Painful Callous

THE shape of the foot of an adult who has never worn shoes is like an inverted triangle with the apex cut off. The inside line of the triangle is straight and parallel with its fellow of the other foot. The triangle is cut off at the heel. The base of the triangle is the line of the toes, and this is the widest part of the foot. When unrestricted by confining shoes the transverse measurement of the foot straight across on the level of the great toe joint (the bunion joint) is approximately half that of the length of the foot. But in women's footgear particularly this spread of the toes is seriously obstructed, as a narrow, deformed foot is considered fashionable.

Owing to the narrow shoe and the outward swing the shoemaker insists on giving the sole, a strain is put upon the forward part of the foot. Here is where the transverse arch of the foot lies—along the line of the great toe and other toe joints. The arch, being hampered by the narrow toe of the shoe, finally breaks down.

Morton's Neuralgia.

One symptom of a flattened transverse arch is a sudden attack of severe pain in the joint of the second or third toe. The sufferer is forced to remove the shoe wherever she may happen to be. This attack comes at any unexpected time.

Another symptom is a large, painful callous under the ball of the foot. It must be remembered that the foot may not look flat or seem deformed.

The wearing of a pad of thick felt under the middle of the arch—say, under the heads of the second, third and fourth tarsal bones where they form the joints with the toes—will give relief. This may be strapped in place with adhesive plaster, or a leather pad may be inserted permanently in the shoe. But the shoe must be orthopedically correct if a cure is hoped for.

Questions and Answers.

Girl With a Drooping Shoulder: My daughter, aged 13, has acquired the habit of standing with one shoulder drooping, and one hip relaxed. How can I overcome the habit?

REPLY.

First, have her examined by your family doctor, to determine whether she has spinal curvature. If there is no curvature present, then have her enter a physical culture class to develop her weak muscles.

* * *

Gum Chewing and Digestion: Is pepsin gum helpful for the digestion? Does chewing gum tend to give one a better digestion?

REPLY.

No. The infinitesimal trace of pepsin you would get in a chew of gum is scarcely worth mentioning, and besides, pepsin is the last thing wanting in a weak stomach.

* * *

Have It Done Twice a Year: I believe it is recommended that one should submit to a thorough physical examination occasionally as a sort of guarantee against such diseases as tuberculosis, diabetes, Bright's disease, heart disease and the like. How often should one have such an examination made?

REPLY.

Twice a year. If any abnormalities are detected, the test should be repeated monthly.

* * *

Should the Dogs Be Muzzled: If the health authorities deem it necessary that all dogs should be muzzled to prevent rabies, why not also muzzle all children who cough and spread the germs of whooping cough, colds, consumption and other diseases?

REPLY.

Because a dog can't bite through a muzzle, and a child could splash through one quite readily.

KAUFF CAUSES COMMOTION

Deserter to Federal League Tries to Crowd Back to O. B.

Barred From Playing With Giants—Hoosiers Claim Him.

New York, April 30.—Benny Kauff, star outfielder of the Federal league, jumped yesterday from the Brooklyn Federals to the New York National league club, thereby creating the biggest commotion of the baseball season so far, his action giving rise also to an unusual series of complications in connection with the game scheduled for yesterday at the Polo grounds between Boston and New York.

Kauff appeared in the New York lineup in the afternoon as centerfielder, but President Gaffney of Boston, who was on the grounds, refused to permit his team to play against the Giants with the Federal league-jumper a participant in the game. The game was then forfeited by Umpire Quigley to New York, 9 to 0. Later a game was played in which the New York club took the field with Murray in center. Boston won this contest, 13 to 8. It was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness.

Opposition Forfeits.

Manager McGraw of the Giants claims this was an exhibiton game. According to Secretary John A. Heydler of the National league, however, President Tener, called by telephone, ruled that Kauff as a jumper from organized ball was ineligible to play with a club in the organized game unless formally reinstated, and instructed the other umpire of the day, Mal Eason, to declare the game forfeited to Boston unless Kauff was removed from the lineup, as he eventually was.

At a late hour, President Tener had issued no formal statement, but it was believed the game would stand as played as a victory for Boston, subject to probable protest by New York against any decision giving the game to the Braves.

Kauff was secured by McGraw just before the start of the game and is declared to have made an affidavit that he was not under contract to the Brooklyn Federals, and to have signed a three-year contract with the Giants at a high salary.

Deal Made Last Year.

Louisville, Ky., April 30.—Ten thousand dollars and two players to be decided on later was the price the New York Nationals were to pay to the Indianapolis American association club for the services of Outfielder Bennie Kauff, provided the player could be signed and played by New York this season.

Manager Jack Hendricks of the Indianapolis team said last night that this contract was drawn up and signed and played by New York this season.

Manager Jack Hendricks of the Indianapolis team said last night that this contract was drawn up and signed during September, 1914, by James C. McGill, owner of the Indianapolis club, and Harry Hempstead, owner of the Giants.

During the winter, Kauff made repeated requests to be signed by the Indianapolis Association club, Manager Hendricks said, but was not signed because his contract with the Indianapolis Federals was held to be binding. Hendricks said Kauff asked to be carried on the Hoosiers' training trip to the coast.

Kauff Eager to Return.

Hendricks said he received a telegram from Kauff saying he had never signed a contract with the Brooklyn Federals. According to Hendricks, Kauff's telegram said that during his training trip South he accepted terms made by Richard Carroll, business manager of the Brooklyn Federals, but that, upon coming North, President Ward refused to pay the salary agreed upon.

Kauff was drafted in 1914 by the Indianapolis Association club from Hartford of the Connecticut State league. Indianapolis offered him $300 a month, $100 more than he received with Hartford, but he refused to sign a contract and jumped to the Federals for a price Hendricks understands to have been $350 a month.

Later in the season, Hendricks says, Kauff signed a Federal league contract for the seasons of 1915-16-17 at an annual salary of $4,000, receiving an advance of $1,500, to be deducted from his salary at the rate of $500 yearly.

Hendricks asserts that only the Indianapolis Association club has any legal claim to Kauff since the Indianapolis Federal club no longer exists and by virtue of the draft from Hartford.

Commission Will Act.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 30.—Chairman August Herrmann of the national commission last night said he had received telegrams bearing on the Kauff case and that the matter would be taken up by the commission.

"There is hardly need for calling a special meeting of the commission to consider the Kauff case," he said. "It is one that can be carried on by correspondence. I am not in a position to make an official statement on the merits of the case as I have not heard all the angles of the case."

Speaking as a private individual Herrmann said he was aware of the fact that Kauff had signed a three-year contract with the Indianapolis club of the Federal league.

Kauff Took Advance Money.

Chicago, April 30.—President Gilmore refused to comment on Kauff's jump to the Giants further than to say he felt like complimenting President Tener and President Gaffney on their stand in declining to permit Kauff to play. The Federal league would protect its interests, he declared, but before taking action would await further information on the subject.

Kauff, who was with Indianapolis last year, this season signed with the Brooklyn Federals, accepting $1,500 advance money for signing a three-year contract, according to Gilmore. There was no ten-day clause in his contract.

President Gilmore said that Kauff had been suspended indefinitely by the Federal league, but that he was under a valid contract to the league.

WINS THREE-CUSHION BILLIARD TITLE

Milwaukee, Wis., April 30.—Charles Ellis of Cleveland won the championship of the Interstate Three-Cushion Billiard league and a prize of $600 here last night from the former titleholder, Augie Kirkhefer, in the final block of fifty points in a tie play-off by the score of 50-35 in fifty-eight innings.

The first block played in Cleveland was won by Kirkhefer, 50-44. During some of the most sensational playing ever witnessed in the history of the game, Ellis made a high run of nine to Kirkhefer's seven.

Stop Them From Growing Large and Dangerous.

Nearly everyone who uses S. S. S. for the blood recalls a friend who went through untold suffering as the result of a mere pimple or small blood rising. A host of people did not realize, until too late, what may result from a slight skin abrasion. But they recovered if they used S. S. It is a most interesting fact that this remarkable vegetable medicine overhauls the blood in a manner that excites curious minds.

But it acts in accordance with accepted physiological laws and yet its effect is almost beyond comprehension to those who are wedded to such drugs as mercury, calomel, arsenic, iodide of potash, copper and other baneful influences which all the world bears silent testimony to their destructive tendencies.

Alexander Hamilton Encouraged Brewing.

FIRST CONGRESS A UNIT IN THE OPINION THAT BREWING DESERVES SPECIAL ENCOURAGEMENT.

In 1789 Alexander Hamilton introduced a revenue system with the object of encouraging the industry of brewing for moral and hygienic reasons. His efforts were supported by the First Congress which moved that if "The morals of the people are to be improved by whatever enters their diet, it would be prudent of the National Legislature to encourage the manufacture of malt liquors."

Dr. Benjamin Rush, father of real temperance, famous publicist and professor of medicine, taught that the promotion of temperance could be accomplished only by the encouragement of the brewing industry.

FITGER NATURAL BEER IS A SPARKLING DRAUGHT BEER—BUT BOTTLED

It is draught beer because it has the full natural character taste and aroma of the best beer as drawn from the wood. Heretofore the only known way to keep bottled beer was by pasteurization. Pasteurization, or steaming, gives beer that noticeable flatness of taste, heretofore the great objection to bottled beer.

GRADE TEAMS WILL MEET

Fast Games Expected in Both Eastern and Western Divisions.

Western Division.

Adams-Irving—Nineteenth avenue west and boulevard.

Bryant-Monroe—Thirty-second avenue west and Superior street.

Emerson-Jackson — Tenth avenue west and Third street.

Eastern Division.

Endion-Washington—Twelfth avenue east and London road.

Jefferson-Franklin—Fifteenth avenue east and Fifth street.

Salter-Washburn—Hunter's Park.

Some measure of the success being achieved by the Duluth Grade School league may be learned from the fact that over 500 persons witnessed one of the games of the present week. Interest in all of the teams is reaching the true bug degree of intensity. As progress in the schedule is made and the teams advance farther toward the elimination stage, it is expected that the kids of the various schools of the city will display even greater interest.

The success of the league to date has surpassed the fondest expectations of those behind it. Despite adverse weather conditions and the early start of the various teams of the organization, some surprisingly good baseball has been played. There are some real players in the league and each game is showing up the various teams in better condition.

When the final series of three games is played between the winner of the Eastern and Western divisions of the league, it is believed that all attendance records at Athletic park will be broken. Lawrence Duby believes that there will be more than 5,000 persons at the deciding game.

Superintendent Denfeld of the Duluth schools has promised to assist in making the deciding games a special event of interest, and a plan is being considered at the present time for all of the school children of the city to attend in division form, each city school representing a division. Yells will be made up and the rooting of the various schools is expected to make the games of the big league style, in so far as noise is concerned at least.

Since its organization the grade school baseball league has gained remarkably in enthusiasm. The fact that the winner of the pennant is to have the chance to compete against the winner of the St. Paul Grade School league has stimulated interest.

Early next week the White Sox will leave for Winnipeg to prepare for the opening of the season. The contests with the Red Sox will furnish about the last real practice before the opening of the Northern league schedule.

It depends upon the showing made by some of the pitchers in the inter-city games as to who will remain on the flinging staff.

HANDBALL MEN HOLD BANQUET

Plans Have Already Been Made for Next Season's Schedule.

The annual banquet of the handball players of the Y. M. C. A. was held last evening in the association cafe. About thirty of the players were present. Talks were made by Dr. Clark, William Drevis and several of the other active players. Plans for next season were discussed. A large number of the players will keep up their playing during the summer and an effort will be made to get out a large number of players before the start of next fall's schedule.

All of those present were enthusiastic over the success of the season just closed and expressions were made to the effect that the next season would be even more successful.

AX WILL FALL IN MAJOR LEAGUES

All Clubs Will Be Reduced to Twenty-One-Player Limit.

New York, April 30.—Between now and Sunday the ax will be wielded with deadly effect in every club in the National league. By a new ruling, adopted last winter, each National league club's roster is limited to twenty-one players after May 1. All the clubs, according to Secretary John Heydler, are over the limit and will have to reduce before Sunday. Forty players will be fired back to the minors by that time, he asserted.

Manager McGraw of the Giants started swinging his ax yesterday. Pitcher Kirmayer was sent back to Decatur, Ill., from whence he came; Infielder Reed, with Princeton university last year, goes to the Troy club of the New York State league, while Pitcher Press draws a berth with the Jersey City Internationals.

Secretary Foster of the Giants today was busy denying rumors. A report that Zach Wheat, Brooklyn's slugging outfielder, was coming to the Giants in exchange for Pitcher Perritt and Outfielders Murray and Robertson was branded as a fake. Manager Robinson of the Dodgers also wired his denial from Philadelphia.

Princeton, N. J., April 30.—Moving pictures of the Princeton football team in actual scrimmage, for the assistance of the coaches, were introduced here by Head Coach Rush yesterday. Two teams mixed it for half an hour and their actions were recorded on the film. Rush believes that seeing the men on the screen will be of great assistance in directing the coaching.

Wins Whist Cup.

Boston, Mass., April 30.—The New Amsterdam club of New York obtained permanent possession of the Washington trophy by winning the finals of the women's whist congress yesterday. The club had won the cup in four previous tournaments.

Easy for Johnny Kilbane.

New York, April 30.—Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, world's champion featherweight, outpointed Benny Leonard, New York, in six rounds of a ten-round bout here last night. Leonard hung back, showing a tendency to wait while Kilbane tried to force the fighting throughout. Kilbane weighed 128, Leonard 130.

RISKS WRITTEN BY FEDERAL BUREAU

Washington, April 30.—War risk insurance amounting to $71,468,665 on 1,121 policies has been written by the Federal war risk insurance bureau since its organization last year, and of this amount there now is outstanding $11,207,295.

It was announced yesterday that premiums had amounted to $1,790,207 and known losses to date, including those paid, aggregate $720,653.

The bureau learned officially that it stands to lose $50,000 on the hull of the American steamer Greenbrier, which was sunk in the North sea early in April, after a successful trip from Charleston to Bremen with a cargo of cotton.

A Substitute for Meat

ANY expert chef will tell you that a macaroni base is the ideal substitute for meat. Creamettes is more tender than ordinary macaroni and cooks in less than one-third the time.

A package of Creamettes will give you nearly twice as much food value as a pound of beefsteak at less than one-half the cost.

Creamettes is made from the creamy parts of Durum wheat and has a rich new flavor of its own.

Try it with cheese, with ham, with bacon, with tomatoes, with chicken or with nuts.

BABY OF FOUR MONTHS USES THE PHONE.

Wide World Magazine: Probably the youngest child to habitually use a telephone, although unconsciously, is to be found at the present time in Guernsey, France, where a four months' old baby sleeps every fine day in the open air with a telephone transmitter at his side by which he calls his mother on awakening. The baby here referred to belongs to the engineer-in-charge at Platte Fougere lighthouse station. He devised this ingenious scheme in order to allow his boy to benefit by the bracing breezes blowing in from the Atlantic. Inside baby's pram is a cigar-box, containing the telephone transmitter and a small clock. Wires running up to the house some distance away enable the mother, in the intervals of her work, to listen for baby's cry. When working at the table, and during meals, it is easy to listen continuously. The clock, although its use is not at first apparent, forms an essential part of the device, for the sound of its ticking provides the necessary proof that the telephone is transmitting sounds correctly. This method of employing the telephone as nursemaid has proved completely successful and is in daily use, while a rain alarm has also been evolved to give warning by causing an electric bell to ring should a shower come on.

NOT A DIRECT ANSWER.

San Francisco Star: A law suit was recently in full swing, and during its progress a witness was cross-examined as to the habits and character of the defendant.

"Has Mr. M. a reputation for being abnormally lazy?" asked counsel, briskly.

"Well, sir, it's this way——"

"Will you kindly answer the question asked," struck in the irascible lawyer.

"Well, sir, I was going to say it's this way. I don't want to do the gentleman in question any injustice, and I won't go so far as to say, sir, that he's lazy exactly; but if it required any voluntary work on his part to digest his food—why, he'd die from lack of nourishment, sir."

Revival of "Trilby" Is Notable Success

PHYLLIS NEILSON-TERRY In "Trilby."

"Trilby" has been revived in New York with as many of the original cast as could be engaged and it has proven as great an attraction as when the Du Maurier book was new and Paul Potter's dramatization of it was fresh. The most conspicuous newcomer in the company is Phyllis Neilson-Terry, who came to this country but little known last winter and played a short engagement in "Twelfth Night." She has the title role and she seems to old theater-goers a great improvement on the original.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MESABA OUTPUT OF ORE NOW INCREASED

Quite Material Gain in Shipments Noted During Present Week.

Hibbing, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many thousand tons of ore daily are leaving mines in the Hibbing district for Duluth and Superior ore docks. The output of the Oliver Mining company in this vicinity has been materially increased this week. Both the Oliver Mining company and the Great Northern Iron Ore company have begun mining new properties this week.

From the Oliver Mining company properties here about twelve extras daily leave for the Missabe ore docks at Duluth while six leave the Great Northern properties with ore each day. An extra on the Great Northern averages 7,800 tons to the trainl oad while a Missabe extra carries only 3,000 tons or ore. Altogether from this district 86,000 tons are daily hauled over the Missabe road while 47,000 tons are taken over the Great Northern.

The Hull-Rust mine is now putting out 500 cars daily, a capacity which is equalled by few if any on the range. This mine is working day and night shifts and during the last few days has materially increased the number of workingmen.

From the Clark mine, 150 car loads of ore are daily taken from the stock pile. Operations are kept up here twenty-four hours a day.

This week operations begun at the Morris mine, which for three years had produced little ore for shipments. Two shovels are loading approximately 100 cars daily. Other properties of the Oliver Mining company are being actively operated and the ore is being shipped to the Missabe docks as fast as boats can be accommodated, operators say. Despite the fact the one boat carries as much as nearly four train loads. When the boats miss out on schedule, dock accommodations are not always available and the loading is delayed.

Mahoning Big Producer.

The Mahoning mine is the giant producer for the Great Northern company. Two hundred and seventy-five car loads, averaging sixty-three tons to the car, leave the mine every day for the Allouez docks. Four shovels are operating. Most of this work is done in the day.

The Buffalo and Susquehanna mine is loading from fifty to seventy-five cars a day.

The only Great Northern mine to begin shipping ore this week is the Kinney mine, near Buhl. This mine is now putting about approximately seventy-five car loads a day and bids fair to exceed this output before the end of the season. The Deacon, Dean and other mines near Buhl are also shipping ore.

At Calumet the Hill mine is working two shifts and employing 300 men. Five shovels are being operated, according to reports, and this mine will be one of the heavy producers of the season. At Nashwauk and Bovey the output is increasing. At Keewatin and Taconite operations are light. The Minnesota mine, near Marble, has changed hands and may not be operated this summer. The Sullivan mine, recently purchased by the Oliver Mining company, is being dismantled. It is an underground property.

The Brunt mine, at Mountain Iron, began loading ore Monday. A steam shovel has been set to work in the stock pile. This mine is operated by the M. A. Hanna company and will ship an unusual heavy tonnage this season over the D., M. & N. road.

At Biwabik comes reports that although open pit mines have begun operating, shipments there have not been started in full blast. Operators there, however, declare that indications are that the season will be an unusually prosperous one.

At Aurora the Weed mine is shipping ore. It is said that this mine will ship 40,000 tons this season.

At Grand Rapids the Oliver Mining company has prepared for a similar season to that of last year. About 800 men are employed.

CELEBRATION OF MAY DAY PLANNED

Socialist Organization of Chisholm to Have Big Time May 2.

Chisholm, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Finnish and South Slavic Socialists are preparing for a celebration of May 2, a day set aside by Socialists the world over on which they hold revel. The day here will be marked by speeches, Trustee Antone Mahne being slated as the orator of the day.

A grand parade will start from the Chisholm opera house at 2 o'clock, headed by the Commercial band. In the evening a dance will be held at the opera house. All workingmen are urged to join the parade.

IS IN VIENNA HOSPITAL.

Brother of Chisholm Man Wounded in Great War.

Chisholm, Minn., April 30.—(Special The Herald.)—Louis Roth yesterday received a letter from his brother Aaron, who is fighting with the Austrian-Hungarian forces and was shot in the knee. The letter is written from a hospital in Vienna, where the wounded man is anxiously awaiting the doctors' permission to leave so that he may get into the firing line again. Aaron Roth was among the first to join the colors. His sister was sent from Lupok to Australia on the outbreak of the war.

Dandruff Surely Destroys the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

HIBBING CONFRONTS MANY DAMAGE SUITS

Seventy-Five Actions Are Started Since Beginning of Year.

Hibbing, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seventy-five indemnity suits against the village have been instituted since Jan. 1. Village Attorney Scott, who represented this section of the state in the legislature, is now investigating them.

The most important of these suits is the one of Mary Maki, who fell into an open ditch last winter and broke her leg. She declares that the village was negligent in not keeping the place protected from pedestrians.

Several of the demands are made under the employes' compensation act. Three are made by workingmen who were injured in a cave-in in the ditch at First avenue east and Center street.

"Not many," Attorney Scott said, "have any liability. I have to clean up the reports of injuries, however."

Hibbing, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Krawiec, aged 55, was instantly killed and his partner, Alexander Myzofa, aged 45, was fatally injured by a cave-in at the North Uno mine late last night.

GETTYSBURG BATTLE STILL HOLDS RECORD

Cook War Veteran Claims Present War Has Not Surpassed It.

Cook, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. E. Harris, a Civil war veteran, living on a homestead near here, one of the few survivors of the great conflict living in this section who also saw the Gettysburg battle, says that fight was the greatest in the history and has not been eclipsed by the present European conflict in point of loss in killed.

Mr. Harris was a member of Battery B, U. S. artillery, engaged at Gettysburg. He enlisted in Wisconsin and was for a time attached to the Iron Brigade. Two years ago he visited Gettysburg with the old soldiers.

"Gettysburg still remains one of the world's greatest battles," said Mr. Harris.

"I have not seen any printed account of loss of life in Europe that approaches the record of Gettysburg," he continued. "When you stop to consider that the killed on the Union side in that fight was 23,000, and that on the Confederate side 20,000, you will realize that the war in Europe has not yet equaled it in a single battle for bloodshed, despite the fact that they are fighting today under and over the sea, on the surface of the earth, upon the earth and in the air."

"I admire the soldiers of every nation engaged in the great war in Europe, but my interest with the Canadian contingent is particularly keen. They are fighting well."

CHISHOLM SCHOOL TO HAVE OPENING

Public to Be Entertained in New Edifice on May 7.

Chisholm, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new high school building will be opened to public inspection Friday evening, May 7.

The members of the board of education, their wives, the faculty and the students of the high school will receive visitors informally from 8 to 9:30 o'clock.

Classes in various phases of industrial work, including manual training, forging, turning, architectural and mechanical drawing, printing, dressmaking, millinery, ironing, cooking and physical training will be conducted during that time and pupils' work will be on exhibition.

Ball Will Be Made With Dance.

After 9:30 an orchestra will play for informal dancing in the gymnasium. Grade pupils will be given an opportunity to visit the building on Saturday afternoon, May 8, from 2 to 4 o'clock. They are asked to come at that time instead of on Friday.

ST. CROIX DRIVES WILL SOON START

Many Million Feet of Logs Coming to Winton Mill.

Ely, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The log drives of the St. Croix Lumber & Manufacturing company will be in operation in about ten days. There are three at Stoney, Burnside and near the Canadian boundary.

All three will bring the logs into the mill at Winton. For a few days there has been talk of the mill closing down on account of the lack of water in the lakes and rivers. The recent showers have done much to improve the condition of the low water. The report that the mill would close down if the drives did not begin soon proves untrue as the mill has a season's cut of logs on hand carried over from last year's operations.

Many Logs Coming.

It is estimated that at least 30,000,000 feet of logs will be received at the mill before the drives are over.

While the lakes have been open and clear of ice for the past month it was impossible to begin the drives until the water conditions improved.

The fact that the drives will be in full operation in ten days not only brings good news to the drivers who have been out of employment, but also to the Ely housekeepers. For several weeks local hotels, restaurants and boarding houses have been troubled with the request for meals from idle men.

TOURNEY NOT PARDONED

Old Man Convicted in Virginia Must Serve His Time.

Virginia, Minn., April 30.—William Tourney, sentenced from Virginia to the penitentiary at Stillwater, has been refused a pardon by the state board of pardons.

About five years ago Tourney, then about 60, was convicted on a statutory charge made by a 12-year-old girl and was sentenced to ten years in the state prison. For some time past friends of Tourney, who believed him guiltless of the crime, have been endeavoring to secure his release. Tourney, previous to the time of his arrest, was caretaker at the curling rink in this city, and the offense of which he was convicted is said to have taken place in that building. The alleged victim, formerly lived with her father on a homestead north of Virginia, but for some time previous to the charges made against Tourney had made her home with persons residing in this city. Besides herself there was only one witness against him, a little girl of about the same age of the one who claimed to be the victim. The whereabouts of the complaining witness is not known, but the other little girl is dead.

Nashwauk Township Board and Council Consider Proposition.

Nashwauk, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a joint meeting of the village council, water and light commission and the township board, the plans for the village hall, submitted by Architect Hunt of Duluth, were discussed, but no action was taken. The committee in charge of the plans was discharged. The township board decided to spend a minimum of $3,000 and not over $4,000 for their quarters in the new village hall. The plans submitted were of a fire proof building, 95 by 52 feet and to cost approximately $35,000, but if cut to 77 by 52, leaving out the township quarters, the building could be erected at a cost of $30,000. HIBBING THRONGED WITH BASEBALL FANS

Opening Game of Season With Virginia Brings Out Thousands.

Hibbing, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing is baseball crazy today without any exaggeration. The ball bug is very active and that's all one hears today as this is a half holiday this afternoon and everyone has gone out to the ball park where the locals and the Virginia team in the Northern league are playing their first "big" ball game of the season here this year. There is a great crowd present from Virginia and other range towns and interest is keyed up to a high point as the ancient rivalry between the two towns will crop out on occasions like this. The weather is not entirely favorable as it is cloudy and cool but for all that indications point to a record crowd this afternoon.

COMMERCIAL EXPANSION

United States May Become First in the World's Competition.

War May Deprive England and Germany of Their Supremacy.

Philadelphia, April 30.—Great commercial expansion for the United States as a result of the European war was forecasted by Secretary William C. Redfield of the department of commerce, in a speech here today before the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Both Germany and Great Britain, the secretary of commerce said, were in danger of losing their supremacy in the foreign trade, if the war continued.

"No one, I think," he said, "would be surprised to find the United States second in the world's competition, nor, if the war shall long continue, be astonished to find her first."

Secretary Redfield, whose subject was "America's International Trade as Affected by the European War," reviewed commercial conditions in the world trade prior to the outbreak of the war, showing that Great Britain, Germany and the United States ranked in the order named in competition for foreign business. He said that the United States, when hostilities began, found itself unprepared to meet the situation either financially or in a commercial way.

Great Change.

"It is not necessary," he said, "to review the history of the critical months of August and September last. I never think of that period without thankfulness to the men in private business and finance who with great courage and wise resource pulled us through those trying weeks. I hope they will acknowledge as freely that the government did what it was able then to do to the same end. We are concerned, however, chiefly to consider what the extraordinary change is which has come over the face of our foreign trade since these things were done.

"A floating debt of perhaps four hundred million dollars has been paid in goods, and not in gold. Some of the gold we had exported to pay what we owed before the war has come back to us in pay for debts due us. It amounts since the first of December to over six hundred million dollars. We are saving money as a nation at an astonishing rate. The nations of the world turn to us for cash. The nations turn to us, both belligerent and neutral, not only to furnish them goods, but to loan them the money with which to pay for the goods they buy from us. We are lending the world money and we are selling the world goods, and both to such an extent that our foreign financial outlook and the condition of our export trade has taken on within ten months an entirely new significance. A new spirit has come into our commercial life—a new sense of relationship to others and of our power to help them and of our ability to supply them."

Industrial Inertia.

The secretary said that there was "too much industrial inertia" when the necessity for broadening the foreign outlook of the country developed.

"Training in national inability had done its work," he continued, "and when the hour of opportunity struck, relatively few of us were ready to take the step of progress."

Business men, he said, however, were awakening to the opportunity and accepting the necessity for efficient development. He mentioned the establishment of American banks abroad as a forward step.

"It is doubtless risky," he continued, "to foretell what the ultimate effects of the current war shall be upon our commerce. We know where we were before the war began—a great and growing competitor of others who had many advantages over us. We know where we are now while the war goes on—the one great industrial and commercial country which is at peace and certain to remain so. These things we know and we are glad that they are so. One of our great competitors has been for eight months out of the market. No one has suffered from her competition during that period. Another and lesser competitor also has been excluded. A third great competitor has been so intensely occupied in the struggle as to be unable to sustain at highest pitch in other fields the commercial enterprises which have made her great, and a fourth, having much of her industrial territory occupied by hostile troops, is in a measure crippled thereby in the foreign trade.

Two Important Factors.

"Two factors will affect America favorably in the coming days. One is the loss of good will by her competitors through enforced absence from business. The other is the injury to her competitors through broken or suspended organization. This is not all. The organization in many cases has been not only broken or suspended but the units which composed it have been slain. Bad as are the loss of the good will and disruption of business, far worse is the loss of the skilled hand and the trained mind.

"What the effect of all these conditions upon American international trade is to be cannot be limited or defined, but it would seem plain that our resources are undiminished, our capital secure, our labor safe, that we are saving where others are losing, that we are living where others are dying, that with us the path is upward, and with them it is in a large measure downward. It is certain that one result will be our own greater industrial independence.

"It seems clear to me that if we do our part we shall change our place among the great competitors. The world is never the economic gainer in the last analysis by war. The losses must be absorbed and we must do our share of the absorbing, but in the process of absorption places relative to one another may be exchanged. No one, I think, would be surprised to find the United States second in the world's competition, nor if the war shall long continue be astonished to find her first. If we are willing to lay aside passion and prejudice, to look at things with an international instead of a parochial viewpoint, to realize that inefficiency is unpatriotic, if we are ready to give up inertia and take a step forward out of ourselves to help others; if these things can be done, I see no reason why we may not become the first among the world's great trading nations."

LEAVES HEALTH BOARD.

Dr. Greene of St. Paul Has Resigned From State Organization.

St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—Dr. Charles Lyman Greene of St. Paul has resigned from the state board of health. He said he found he could not give the state board duties the attention necessary.

The resignation of Dr. Greene follows, it is said, the renewal of strife between the state board of health and the state tuberculosis sanatoria advisory commission, of which Dr. H. Longstreet Taylor is chairman.

Dr. Greene said when asked if the controversy with Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the health board, had anything to do with his action, "I cannot say as to that."

Dr. Greene's term on the state board would have expired in 1916. He is professor of medicine at the University of Minnesota.

MARKET OFF ON CROP NEWS

Wheat Sells Down on Favorable Reports From Over Southwest.

Flaxseed Strong, With Good Inquiry From Crushers.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 30.—The market showed increasing weakness at the close, with liquidation apparent. May wheat closed 1¼c off. July ⅞c off and September 1c off. May durum closed ½c off, July ¼c up and September unchanged.

Oats closed ⅞c off at 52¼@52¾c for on the track; rye unchanged at $1.15@1.16; barley unchanged at from 67c to 76c; and corn ⅜c off at 75⅜c.

At Winnipeg, May oats closed ¾c off at 63c bid, and July ¾c off at 64¼c bid.

Puts on Minneapolis May wheat closed at $1.49⅞, and calls at $1.54¼.

Wheat quotations eased off in today's market, being influenced by lower Liverpool cables and prospects of more rain in sections of the West and Southwest. That led to considerable selling at the opening, with the market showing declines of ⅝c. Quotations then rested, but weakness was more in evidence at the noon hour.

May wheat opened ½c off at $1.62¼ and eased off ⅝c more. July opened off ⅝c at $1.57¾, and with better support it held on that basis. Scattering trading came in September. It opened unchanged at $1.26¼ and did not move.

May durum was weak and declined ½@¾c to $1.70, but on some bidding, attributed to operators endeavoring to cover contracts, the July future advanced ½c to $1.68.

Present high prices for grain and a rigid scouring of the country by millers and exporters is resulting in a liberal movement for the season. Primary receipts of wheat today were 847,000 bu against 445,000 bu last year. Inspections at Duluth came to 68 cars against 12 last year, while at Minneapolis 210 cars came to hand compared with 139 a year ago. Clearances fell off today, the wheat and flour outgo being 466,000 bu, whereas they had been running well over the 1,000,000-bu mark.

Exporters at the seaboard reported the working of a fair trade in wheat and oats, a good proportion of which was put through by a Duluth operator.

While the wheat demand from Eastern millers is still quiet, it is reported that they are putting out inquiries more freely and are endeavoring to locate stocks.

A substantial call for oats for export was reported at Chicago, with Armour and other large interests prominent in it. That resulted in putting up the market at the start, but it subsequently eased off. With the loading out of the steamers now at the local elevators, oats and other coarse grain supplies at this point will be at a minimum.

Flaxseed Firm.

Buying by crushers led to a firm market in flaxseed, quotations being again slightly advanced. Delay in arrivals of the Argentine seed contracted for in this country and reports being received by the trade from correspondents indicating that the acreage sown in the seed in the Northwest is likely to be smaller than even the most pessimistic had indicated, is contributing to the creation of a bullish feeling in its market.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.97⅞ asked, and closed unchanged at $1.97¾ asked. July opened unchanged at $2.00¾ and closed ¼c up at $2.01 asked. September opened unchanged at $2.03¼, and closed unchanged at $2.03¾ asked.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed unchanged at $1.7⅞ bid and July ⅛c up at $1.82¼.

At Buenos Aires, flax closed 1⅜c up at $1.72¼ and London unchanged at $1.87⅝.

Modern Miller says: "Chinch bugs are reported from many points but are said to menace corn more than wheat. Kansas wheat prospects are fully maintained. Rain is needed in Illinois, and in Southern Illinois the rainfull has been only 20 per cent of normal since Jan. 1. Central Illinois prospects are good. Indiana and Ohio have a good stand and Missouri shows good improvement."

With the rush of steamers loading at the elevators today, it is estimated stocks of coarse grains here will be reduced to the smallest tonnage in years. About 4,000,000 bu wheat will be left in the houses of which approximately 1,750,000 bu is at the Consolidated elevator.

D. A. Willard of the Duluth board of trade, has returned from a five weeks' trip to the Pacific coast, during which he took in the Panama and San Diego, Cal., expositions. He says that travel to San Francisco is not heavy as yet, but that they are looking forward to good crowds there from June on. Fruit is a drug on the market in California, Mr. Willard was told, and as a result growers are holding large quantities of apples and other lines in storage, awaiting better prices.

The following from B. W. Snow was received through Charles E. Lewis & Co.: "I have reports from my agents in fully two-thirds of the important wheat-growing countries, and the data just confirms the statement that the wheat condition of 88.5 per cent, which I reported on April 1, has at least been fully maintained and probably has improved a little during the past month. Almost perfect weather conditions west of the Mississippi river have resulted in a marked improvement in Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri, and these states, with Nebraska, now show a condition little, if any, below the promise of a year ago at this time. In the Ohio valley and Lake region, where the spring shortage of moisture is marked, the condition shows improvement in spite of lack of April rain in Tennessee, Kentucky and Michigan, while Ohio, Indiana and Illinois about hold their own. The lack of moisture has done no serious damage up to date, but the position of the crop is becoming critical over a widening area, and without general and generous rainfall in the near future, the crop prospect will begin to decline. The amount of winter killing is very small, probably the smallest in recent years, and the acreage standing for harvest will exceed 40,000,000 acres."

Le Count wired this morning from Mansfield, Ohio: "Wheat is looking splendid all through this territory, but it is needing rain. This whole country is short of moisture, but the crop is in no way seriously in danger. Six rains have made considerable top moisture."

Minneapolis cash market was steady with demand fair. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 4@6c over May and velvet chaff at 2@3c over May. Flour sales were moderate. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at $1.60 to $1.64 and No. 2 northern at from $1.56 to $1.61. Wheat stocks in Minneapolis elevators decreased 840,000 bu in the week.

Argentine shipments: Wheat, 4,920,000 bu against 456,000 bu last year; oats, 600,000 bu against 622,000 bu last year; corn, 655,000 bu against 2,049,000 bu last year.

Visible: Wheat, 8,832,000 bu against 1,240,000 bu last year; corn, 2,193,000 bu against 5,100,000 bu last year.

Argentine weather appears settled being colder in parts. Seeding for the new wheat crop has commenced, but is interfered with by wetness. Corn condition is causing difficulty, but improvement will be noted if coldness continues and it is dry.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Beneficial Showers and Easier Liverpool Quotations Have Bearish Effect.

Chicago, April 30.—Prospective beneficial showers for a large part of the domestic crop region had a bearish effect today on the price of wheat. Besides Liverpool quotations were easier influenced by the outlook for more liberal supplies from India. Offerings here, however, were quickly absorbed. The opening, which varied from ⅞c to 1⅛c, was followed by a reaction to a range that averaged slightly under last night's level.

Comprehensive reports indicating that the crop condition percentage of a month ago had been fully maintained and that acreage losses in the United States were the smallest for many years led subsequently to a new dip in prices. A number of holders were on May contracts. The market closed heavy, 1@1⅛c under last night.

Corn, although at first weak, with wheat made a sharp rally. The reason for the upturn was free buying on the part of one of the largest houses in the trade. After opening ⅜@½c to ⅝@¾c down, the market sagged a little further, and then mote than overcame all the loss.

Afterward the market again relaxed with wheat. The close was unsettled ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c under last night.

Predictions of rain eased oats later, though prices recovered owing to the bulge in corn.

Trade in provisions was about evenly divided. Values accordingly showed but little change.

BIG PROFITS IN COPPER METAL

Present Prices Mark Climax of Greatest Advance in Market's History.

With lake copper reported to have sold yesterday up to 21½ cents a pound and electrolytic being contracted for on a basis of 19 cents, abundant reason is furnished for the remarkable market boom in mining stocks during the last few weeks.

Present prices compare with an average quotation of 11⅜ cents a pound in October, last, and the greatest metal advance in the history of the trade during a comparatively short period has been recorded. Not since the summer preceding the 1907 panic has there been a quotation anywhere near equaling the present figures.

The current high price of copper has resulted in the resumption of practically all the high cost producers and if the low cost producers operate to expand full capacity an unprecedented production of metal will result. Many producers regard the long extended advance in quotations as unhealthy, stating that they would rather see a more normal market. The lowest cost producers are estimated to be now selling copper at a profit of from 130 to 150 per cent. The present strength in the market and more especially in lake copper is considered to be accounted for by the great demand from the manufacturers of munitions. It is conceded, though, that the demand from the electrical companies and from domestic industrial sources has increased very materially of late. Exports of copper during the period from July 1, last, to Feb. 28 fell off to the extent of 300,651,000 pounds, amounting to 166,55,000 pounds, as compared with 467,576,000 pounds during the same period in 1914, according to the returns of the department of commerce. Shipments to Germany were curtailed to the extent of 186,262,000 pounds during that period.

Commenting on the consumption phase of the copper metal situation, the Boston correspondent of the New York Evening Post says:

"Six months ago there was no one to speak a good word for copper. Europe's great war was in progress; Germany and Austria which had taken 45 per cent of America's copper exports in 1913, were cut off absolutely from the copper supply of the United States; shipments from our ports to other countries were reduced; domestic trade was seriously deranged. So rapidly did demand for copper shrink that a general curtailment of output equalling 50 per cent was forced upon the mines, that curtailment continuing right up to the opening of the present year.

"That was six months ago. What of the present? The war is still in progress; Germany and Austria are absolutely blockaded against the United States; exports of copper to all countries but England, France, and Italy are small; domestic trade (except in war munitions) is still deranged. Yet copper is up 7 cents a pound over October, and at its highest price of eight years."

SHARP REACTION IN COPPER STOCKS

Heavy Declines in Many Issues on Profit-Taking Sales.

Mining stocks reacted sharply at Boston today on the appearance of heavy profit-taking and liquidation in some issues.

Butte & Superior was again a feature, selling up to $72, a new record price for it. It then sold off to $70 and closed a fraction off at $71.12.

Calumet & Arizona declined $2.25 to $72.75, Copper Range $1.12 to $58.87, Granby $2.75 to $87.50, Greene-Cananea 75c to $32.25, Lake 50c to $16, Mohawk 50c to $77, North Butte 50c to $37, Quincy $1 to $88 and Shattuck $1, ex-dividend 50c to $30.

At New York, Amalgamated Copper closed $1.12 off at $76.75 and Anaconda 63c off at $36.75.

In the Boston curb list, as reported to Paine, Webber & Co., South Lake sold at $8, Denn-Arizona at $9@9.50, Rainbow at $8.75, New Baltic at $3.87@3.75, Oneco at $2.75, Warren Development at 99c, United Verde Extension at $4, First National Copper at $8.20, and Jumbo Extension at $1.18.

Alex Scott closed at $9.50 bid, Savannah at $1.50 bid, and Interstate Callahan at $14.75 bid.

Calumet & Hecla is said to have sold over 45,000,000 pounds of copper in advance at prices from 15 to 20 cents, some for delivery as late as September.

Spot copper at London closed at £77; off £2 7s 6d; futures at £78 10s; off £2 5s, and electrolytic at £87 10s, off 10s.

WAR STOCKS ARE STRONG

Standard Issues Yield to Selling Pressure and Close Irregular.

Former Leaders Show Increasing Heaviness in the Final Hour.

New York, April 30.—Speculation in the so-called war shares was resumed at higher prices, Westinghouse crossing par with a gain of over 2 points, while General Electric, Pressed Steel Car and New York Air Brake rose as much or more. American Can, whose earnings are being benefited by the foreign conflict, was again active. New York Central was the only standard railway issue to record material improvement, gaining 1⅜, but Missouri Pacific and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas shares reflected probable adjustment of impending obligations. Rock Island, local tractions and the copper group manifested a tendency to yield.

Standard stocks fell sharply soon after 11 o'clock today, foreign advices, particularly the bombardment of Dunkirk by the German naval forces being viewed with concern. At any rate it furnished the short interest with an excuse for making fresh commitments. Declines from maximum figures of the first hour ran from 1 to 2 points, the reversal embracing the war specialties except Westinghouse, which steadily increased its lead on enormous trading and by noon showed a gain of over 5 points. Industrials as a whole were weaker than railway shares, except Canadian Pacific, which fell 3 points presumably on London selling. Bonds were irregular.

Westinghouse continued the dominant feature, advancing to 108, an overnight gain of 10 points, on dealings that exceeded the combined operations in the usual leaders. The movement otherwise was irregular.

War stocks were very active and strong today, but standard issues yielded to selling pressure.

The movement was more conflicting in the final hour, some specialties adding to early gains, while former leaders showed increasing heaviness. The closing was irregular.

CANADIAN ROAD'S EARNINGS DECREASE

The great derangement which has come about in general trade in Canada through the war is reflected in the large decreases in earnings of the railroads operating there.

Net income of the Canadian Northern in March was reported at $2,062,415, a decrease of $299,897 from last year. For the nine months the road's net earnings decreased to the tune of $1,311,000, the aggregate being $8,681,000.

Directors of the company have announced that net earnings for the six months ended Dec. 31 last, were insufficient to enable them to declare any interest on the 5 per cent controvertible stock on May 1. It is also considered unlikely that any interest will be paid on that stock next November. Officials of the road hope, however, that a large crop will so improve business conditions throughout the Dominion that the payment of interest may be resumed in 1916.
